B.C. Bucks the Trend As Jobless Rate Rises

Times News Service

OTTAWA — The unemployment rate in Canada remained at its 14-year high in November but British Columbia, and four other provinces, bucked the national trend and showed a decline in jobless figures, Statistics Canada reported today.

Across the country, unemployment nudged up to 7.3 per cent of the labor force from 7.2 per cent in October. In B.C. the rate dropped half of one percentage point to 8.1 per cent, still above the national average.

The number of workers without jobs across the country rose by 9,000 to 734,000 while the number of employed also climbed, by 15,000 to 9,388,000.

In the same month last year the unemployment rate was 5.5 per cent.

Young people remained the hardest-hit category as the unemployment rate for those 14 to 24 years of age climbed 0.4 to 13.3 per cent.

The rate for women 25 years of age and over climbed 0.3 to 4.5 per cent while for men in the same age group it dipped 0.2 to 5.0.

While the unemployment rate decreased in five provinces it rose in four.

Rates for the 10th province, Prince Edward Island, are not calculated because of its small population.

Among the increases, the sharpest jump was in New Brunswick, where the rate rose nine-tenths of one percentage point to 13.5 per cent, the second highest rate in the country.

Newfoundland recorded the sharpest drop in unemployment, but retained the country's highest jobless level.

The Newfoundland rate was 18.1 per cent, down from 19.6 per cent in October.

The jobless rate rose in Ontario to six per cent from 5.8 per cent in October, and was up in Quebec to 9.2 per cent from 9.1 per cent.

The Saskatchewan rate rose one-half of one percentage point to four per cent.

Alberta continued to have the country's lowest jobless rate at 2.9 per cent of the labor force, down from 3.4 per cent.

The Manitoba rate was 3.7 per cent, down from four per cent, and the Nova Scotia level declined one-tenth of one percentage point to 8.4 per cent.

MB Brass Pay Cut

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan-Bloedel Ltd. has ordered 10 per cent cuts in the salaries of its top executives and has delayed by six months the usual salary review of its other non-union employees, the president of the forest products company said Monday.

Denis Timmis said he had written all salaried employees to tell them of delays in increases and of the "serious losses" suffered by the company.

In the three months ended Sept. 30, MacMillan-Bloedel lost $32.6 million, bringing its nine-month financial position into a deficit of $12.8 million. Of the losses, $19.5 million, was caused by shipping difficulties.

Timmis said the salary cuts affect about 20 top executives.

In 1971, at a time of earlier profit reductions, MacMillan-Bloedel cut those executives' salaries over $50,000 by 10 per cent and those between $35,000 and $50,000 by 5 per cent.

In addition, this time directors' fees have been cut from $3,000 yearly to $1,500 and the $7,500 extra pay of the six directors on the executive committee has been reduced by 10 per cent.

Wholesale Prices Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Prices at the wholesale level continued to move generally higher during October — for a fifth successive month — and were well ahead of comparable year-earlier levels, Statistics Canada reported Monday.

The industry selling price index rose by one-half of one per cent in October and was 8.6 per cent above October, 1974. Pushing the index strongly higher were price rises of three per cent by iron and steel mills, 1.1 per cent by smelters and refiners and 7.2 per cent by steel pipe and tube mills.

Food and beverage prices, a major influence on the index, also were up three-tenths of one per cent on average.

The general wholesale price index rose three-tenths of one per cent in October and was 5.1 per cent higher than in October a year ago. Out of eight major industry groups measured by this index, only vegetable and animal products and non-ferrous metals showed any price decline.

Both of the wholesale indexes have been rising steadily since June.

Barrett Demands Socred Apology

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Premier Barrett, holding his last election rally outside the Greater Vancouver area, demanded Monday night that the Social Credit party publicly apologize for seeking campaign funds from Americans who own property in British Columbia.

"I demand a public apology for this outrage," he told a cheering, capacity crowd of about 2,000 persons at a school gymnasium in Fort George riding.

Barrett, fighting a sore throat as he heads into the final days of campaigning, read from a newspaper account of the fund-raising campaign and, with a flourish, threw the paper over his shoulder.

Mike Bond, Social Credit finance committee official in the neighboring riding of Omineca, said earlier Monday that 40 letters, soliciting money to help defeat Barrett's New Democratic Party government, were sent to Americans holding land in the riding.

The letters came to public attention because one was sent to Frank Kweesling, a Los Angeles lawyer who is uncle by marriage to Doug Kelly, who represented the riding for the NDP in the last legislature and who is seeking re-election.

Premier Barrett repeated his promise to bring in legislation, if re-elected, that would ban the sale of B.C. land to non-Canadians.

He said Social Credit "believes our land should be sold to anybody."

Barrett, who earlier in the campaign rapped Social Credit for spending money in the United States on campaign advertising, continued his attack on Washington State Senator Warren Magnusson.

"I don't want any senator making comments about what

Storm Hits Two Towns

PERTH, Australia (TNS) — Cyclone Joan lashed two ore mining towns in northwestern Australia today with torrential rain and 155 mile per hour winds.

The cyclone struck Mount Tom Price and Paraburdoo, uprooting trees, lifting roofs and deluging the district with flooding rain, a police spokesman said.

Cyclone Joan, which formed in the Timor Sea north-northwest of Darwin a week ago, swept down the northwest coast of Australia before crossing inland Monday near the iron ore exporting town of Port Hedland, 1,050 miles north of Perth.

BIG SALE TIGHTENS B.C. TURKEY SUPPLY

VANCOUVER (CP) — Consumers in British Columbia may find a shortage of turkeys in the 14-to-16-pound range this Christmas because of an aggressive out-of-province sales campaign that worked too well.

Bill Ritchie, chairman of the B.C. Turkey Marketing Board said Monday that when the board was faced with a surplus of frozen turkey at the beginning of the year, it began to sell "very aggressively" to buyers from out of the province.

"Because of this, and because the 14-to-16-pound size is popular," said Ritchie, "there may be a shortage."

He said buyers in Alberta were particularly responsive to the sales campaign. Ritchie also said that about 80,000 pounds of turkey have been brought into the province in an attempt to counter any shortage.

Gunmen Reject Exchange

Times News Services

LONDON — Trapped Irish Republican Army gunmen rejected an offer of food in exchange for one of their hostages today, spurned a supply of water and disrupted their hot-line with police in an intensifying war of nerves on their third day under siege.

The police retaliated by cutting off electricity to the apartment living room where the gunmen were holding Mr. and Mrs. John Matthews. It left the three or four IRA gunmen without lights or television news of their ordeal. The apartment has other heating.

There were fears that Britain's most wanted man, Michael Wilson, had escaped during the chase into the Matthews apartment last Saturday and was not inside as originally thought.

"We have not made much progress," a police commander said. "But I think they are gradually being worn down and will come out eventually."

The gunmen, without food for three days, refused an offer for a meal in exchange for the release of Mrs. Matthews, 53.

The IRA men also rejected an offer of more water — the first delivery was made Monday — and disconnected the hot-line when they did not want to speak.

PAIR SUSPENDED FOR USING FRENCH

QUEBEC (CP) — Two air traffic controllers at Montreal's Dorval International Airport have been suspended without pay for using French to issue air-traffic control instructions, the Quebec Air Workers Association said Monday.

The Quebec City-based association said one worker was suspended Saturday and a second earlier Monday.

The association, which represents 500 commercial aviation workers in the province, said it deplored the attitude of Maurice Pitre, regional director of the federal air traffic control service and Louis Desmarais, chief of the Dorval air traffic control centre for issuing the suspensions.

A spokesman for the association said other controllers may be suspended as a result of a federal ministry of transport decision limiting the use of French in air traffic control instructions to flights in certain lightly-travelled air corridors.

The association did not give the names of the suspended controllers and airport officials were not available to confirm the suspensions or their duration.

Postal Rate Hike On Foreign Print

OTTAWA (CP) — Postal rates for foreign-printed magazines and newspapers will increase sharply Jan. 1, the post office said Monday.

The higher rates will affect some 200 foreign-printed periodicals imported into the country for mailing to domestic subscribers and news dealers. Not hit by the increases are such foreign publications as Time magazine and Reader's Digest, which are printed within Canada and qualify for the same, lower mailing rates as Maclean's magazine and other Canadian periodicals, a post office official said.

The new rates are on a sliding scale, depending upon weight, and include increases to 3.5 cents from 2.5 cents for publications weighing two ounces or less and increase to 45 cents from 24 cents for publications weighing two to four pounds.

For example, the cost of mailing the U.S.-printed Newsweek magazine to Canadian subscribers will increase to nine cents from six cents Jan. 1. The heavier Playboy magazine will cost 17 cents instead of 10 cents to mail.

Publications printed in Canada are mailed at much lower bulk rates of five cents per pound with a minimum charge of two cents per periodical.

SC Finale . . . Carnival Color, Evangelical Fervor

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

VANCOUVER—It wasn't a circus; it wasn't Billy Graham; and it wasn't Shmockey Night.

There was carnival color, evangelical fervor, and the dogged determination of sports fans—but the clue to the event was a long political speech.

There were stars—skating's Karen Magnussen, track's Harry Jerome and hockey's Babe Pratt—but they weren't performing.

It was the Social Credit election finale. A happy, boisterous gathering of 12,000 confident supporters in Vancouver's Pacific Coliseum.

Jack Brockman, the man behind Shmockey Night, organized Monday night's rally and the proceedings ran like clockwork with bands and spotlights synchronized to the minute.

Socred candidates in constituencies "from Merritt to the sea" were on hand, each with a delegation vying to be the loudest, most partisan and most faithful.

By far the largest rally of the provincial election campaign, it was billed as a night of entertainment and fun for Socred supporters who have worked hard for their election victory.

Only Thursday's election results will decide whether they have that victory, but there seemed no question in 12,000 minds Monday night.

At least 50 chartered buses were used to bring in supporters and the cavernous Coliseum began filling early. By starting time, the arena was alive with a warmth unusual for Socred meetings.

The walls were covered with posters and the air filled with thousands of waving placards as each delegation tried to outdo the other. The room was a mass of boater hats and every color of balloon.

Roosters, chickens and eggs marched around the room in triumph and procession (elaborately dressed Surrey delegates doing chicken-and-egg joke signs) and bands and cheerleading groups competed from all corners.

Bobby Hales' 16-piece ensemble hooked into the sound system and its jazzy numbers flowed from the foot of the stage into the darkened recesses of the Coliseum.

The massive, blue-draped stage sported a simple sign: Social Credit—A Way to Work Together over a picture of a calm, smiling Bill Bennett.

The grand effect was marred only slightly by a long white banner, hung from the rafters behind with the words: "Hang in there Lau baby," (Allan Lau being the Socred's troubled candidate in Vancouver Centre.)

Party president Peter Hyndman opened the speeches by urging the faithful to relax and enjoy the entertainment adding they "didn't want to compete with B.C.'s largest nightclub act which began in August 1972 . . . and closes in Victoria Thursday to open in the Cave Friday night."

Radio sportscaster Al Davidson hosted the evening's line-up which began with his daugher singing night-club style favorites like Put a Little Love In Your Heart and Rock-a-bye Your Baby.

"We want plastic man," came a cry from a dark corner. But next on the agenda was folksongs and Christmas melodies from six beautiful young girls — The Blades of Grass, from North Vancouver.

Mr. Inkspot, Bill Kenny, wound up the musical show with more old goodies, like ". . .Sit Down and Write Myself a Letter" and ". . . Make Sure It's True When You Say You Love Me."

LAND FREEZE BIG ISSUE

The land freeze and back-to-work legislation are the two key issues in Nanaimo riding, where Agriculture and Finance Minister Dave Stupich is still considered the front-runner but slipping back toward the Socred candidate. Al Forrest assesses the situation on Page 5 in the last of eight reports on the Vancouver Island ridings.

Bennett's Big Vancouver Night

Then Lower Mainland candidates trooped out on the stage with the three sports heroes filling in as replacements for absentees.

Each introduction met with cheers from one section of the crowd, but the wildest, loudest of all came for "the giant-killer." George Kerster is challenging Premier Barrett in Coquitlam and the crowd went hysterical at the mention of Kerster's name.

On an earlier radio hot-line show Bennett predicted Kersler would win in Barrett's Coquitlam riding.

He said in an interview later that canvassing results from workers for Kerster show the premier trailing.

"I've never seen anything like it," Bennett said.

"The enthusiasm of those people is just unbelievable . . . their polls show they have Davy beaten."

The faithful almost raised the roof at the Coliseum when Bennett appeared, almost 90 minutes after the show began, and they continued to shout as he greeted the 30 candidates and kissed the two women on stage.

Bennett seemed happier and more bubbly than ever before in public, but he varied little from his regular speech he has been giving around the province.

He promised an ombudsman, an auditor-general, and greater rights for parents and boards of education.

He said the Socreds had no intention of abolishing social programs initiated by the NDP, or any other previous government and he pledged to extend those benefits when the economy improves.

Hecklers were few. Four young men who began to shout interjections were quickly surrounded by placard-toting supporters who tried to block their view and their voices. But it stayed relatively good-natured and Socred officials were quickly on hand to make sure there were no incidents.

Bennett said Socred candidates don't need help from people outside the province and said his party's campaign was not an "anti-campaign, a fear campaign or an anti-American campaign."

He talked about people from other parties who joined Social Credit and said they didn't join out of expediency or opportunism, but out of a courage which will become recognized on voting day.

The crowd grew a litte listless during the speech, but began cheering again when he talked about eliminating welfare abuse and repealing the Mineral Royalties Act.

He got them to their feet when he promised "to return the full treasury that the Barrett government inherited and the Barrett govennment destroyed."

"The weak link in the economy is the government and we'll change that on Thursday," Bennett said, concluding with the Socred theme "We can get B.C. moving again."

The wild ovation continued for several minutes until the band started up with The First Noel and Santa Claus appeared on stage to say farewell to the crowds.

is going on in politics in B.C.," said Barrett.

Magnusson last week accused the NDP government of gouging Americans by charging $1.60 a thousand cubic feet for natural gas.

Referring to a weekend incident where a heckler was roughed-up at a Social Credit rally in Victoria, Barrett said:

"All hecklers are welcome at my meetings. We don't have anyone to beat them up."

After scheduled appearances on three radio and television talk shows in Vancouver today, Barrett was scheduled to attend an evening rally in his home riding of Coquitlam.

Meanwhile, Progressive Conservative leader Scott Wallace made a surprise visit Monday to an all-candidates meeting in the Vancouver-Burrard and Vancouver-Point Grey ridings.

"Despite some of the elements that have been brought into this campaign, I've been proud of our candidates," Wallace told about 200 persons.

In an interview, Wallace said he is hopeful his party can take three seats, his own Oak Bay riding, Comox on Vancouver Island (held in the last legislature by Karen Sanford of the New Democratic Party, is seeking re-election), and Yale-Lillooet (held by Public Works Minister Bill Hartley, who is also seeking re-election).

"But I think my mind's telling me there's going to be a Social Credit sweep," Wallace said, "while my heart is saying they don't deserve it."

CALL FOR A PIZZA BROUGHT RELIEF

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — A customer telephoned a pizza parlor to place his order, but wound up getting this request: "Call the police."

"Sorry, sir, I can't fill your order," manager Robert Dunham told the customer. "I'm all tied up. But would you mind calling the police?"

Dunham reported a masked man carrying a revolver and rope stole $285 of the pizza parlor's money Sunday night and tied him to a chair.

He said he was able to scoot the chair near the telephone and waited for it to ring so he could relay his message for help.

Hostages Released By Moluccan Gunmen

AMSTERDAM (UPI) — South Moluccan gunmen released two sick hostages today and another man died of injuries suffered when he leaped from a window of the Indonesian consulate to avoid capture.

The developments came as new negotiations got underway in Holland's twin hostage drama that saw two terrorist bands still holding more than 50 persons in the consulate and in a train hijacked a week ago 75 miles north of Amsterdam.

A Dutch official announced the death in a hospital of Indonesian consulate clerk E. Abedy, 52, of injuries when he jumped from a third floor window as seven gunmen stormed into the building last Thursday.

He was the fourth person to die as a result of the seizure of the consulate and the capture of a train a week ago. Three other persons were killed in the train.

Both sets of gunmen said they staged the hostage captures to win Dutch support in their campaign to wrest South Moluccan independence from Indonesia. The islands — once part of the Dutch empire — were formerly known as the Spice Islands and some 40,000 former residents live in Holland.

the weather

The unsettled mild weather which has persisted over B.C. for the past few days will continue through Wednesday. A number of stations have reported record or near record temperatures for the date. Bands of rain will continue to move across extreme southern B.C. as disturbances move inland. Farther north mixed rain and snowshowers will be present along the coast with occasional snow inland. The cold Arctic air is expected to remain north of all regions.

Thanks for the memories.

Remember those stirring promises that heralded the coming of The Insurance Corporation of British Columbia? The promise that the "profits" made by ICBC would remain in the province? The boast that ICBC would be self-supporting? That subsidies would never be required?

That was before Autoplan actually got into operation ... and in less than two years these promises have dissolved into pipedreams.

Remember the $36 million deficit?

"This plan will stand as a beacon to the sound business management of the NDP." So said the Hon. Robert Strachan, the Minister responsible for ICBC, when he introduced Autoplan. The beacon has since faded fast. In its first year of operation, ICBC reported a deficit of $36 million. But remember that $36 million deficit figure. All the forecasts are that it will look good compared with what ICBC will drop in its second year.

And all the high hopes that Autoplan would never be subsidized? Just another pipedream. In June the government proposed that a subsidy of up to 10 cents a gallon on the gasoline tax could be used to support auto insurance. One way or the other, the taxpayer has to pay.

Remember the ICBC strike?

In May 1,800 employees of The Insurance Corporation of British Columbia went on strike. This strike lasted 15 weeks. There were an estimated 100,000 claims still awaiting settlement when the strike began. Another 100,000 new damage claims occurred during the strike itself. About 350,000 driver certificate renewals had to be ignored. The monopoly was immobilized for more than 100 days. If you were in an accident and wanted action — tough.

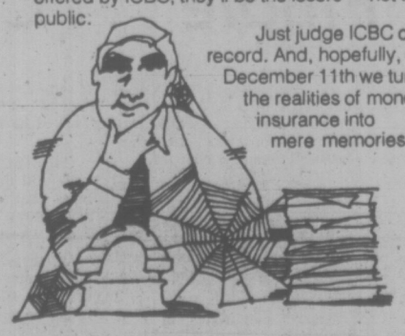
The Insurance Corporation of B.C. spent $32 million on capital expenditures and another $19 million on start-up costs. Just to create another government bureaucracy.

And has it been fun dealing with yet another government monopoly? The feeling that you had to take or leave whatever was offered? The frustration that came with the realization that you had been robbed of the ultimate defence of consumers everywhere — the right to take your business elsewhere.

All the opposition parties in this election recognize that the public good will not be served if ICBC remains a monopoly. They all say Autoplan should have to compete with the private insurance companies. After all, if the private companies are inefficient or cannot match the service or rate offered by ICBC, they'll be the losers — not the public.



Just judge ICBC on its record. And, hopefully, on December 11th we turn the realities of monopoly insurance into mere memories.

India Clamps Press

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Publishers of India's newspapers were told today they face fines, jail terms and close-down of their newspapers for printing news or comment held "objectionable" by the government.

Authorities published the full text of the new "publication of objectional material ordinance," whose outlines were announced late Monday.

It was clearly designed to make permanent the press censorship that has been in force since Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's declaration of a national state of emergency on June 26.

In addition, the ministry of information and broadcasting soon is expected to announce a plan to merge India's four news agencies into a single unit, and to reduce the scope of private business interests from the newspaper publishing field.

$2,250 STOLEN FROM HOME

Colwood grocer Ben Lowe and his wife went to bed early Monday and woke up five hours later to discover a nearby dresser drawer had been rifled and more than $2,250 stolen.

A Colwood RCMP spokesman said only bills were taken and that a large amount of coins had been left behind. He said the bills were in a cash tray on top of a dresser and in a bank deposit bag in one of the drawers.

Lowe, who lives in an apartment above his food store at 2224 Sooke, went to bed at 3 a.m. after working on his books Sunday night. When he awoke at 8 a.m. the money was gone.

Greeks Jailed For Torture

ATHENS (Reuter) — An Athens court martial sentenced 23 Greek army officers and men today to prison terms ranging from 3½ months to seven years on charges of torturing political prisoners.

The five-member court issued its verdict after 18 hours of deliberation. The judges acquitted 13 of the 36 defendants, including nine officers.

The prosecution witnesses alleged the defendants buried political prisoners up to their necks, threatened them with execution and unleashed wild dogs in their cells. They also beat them with batons and leather belts to make them confess their activities against the military regime, which collapsed in July last year, the prosecution said.

About 200 witnesses—all former political prisoners—gave evidence for the prosecution during the trial, which began Oct. 13.

The defendants had served in various military units near Athens, including the special-investigation branch of Athens military police which became the regime's most-feared security service.

City Housing Starts Show 29% Jump

Greater Victoria housing starts are up 29 per cent in the first 11 months of 1975 compared with a year ago, helping to put B.C. ahead of the national increase in new housing for the period.

Provincial Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson said B.C. showed a 4.9 per cent increase in starts compared with 1.3 per cent increase for all of Canada and a drop of 9.7 per cent for Ontario, usually the national leader in new housing.

Greater Victoria had 3,287 starts from January to the end of November this year compared with 2,546 in the period last year.

There was a decline in Greater Vancouver, to 11,882 from 13,570 starts in the same 11 months last year.

Preliminary statistics from Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. quoted by Nicolson show that in B.C. communities of 10,000 or more population there were 23,373 starts in 11 months this year and 22,284 in the period last year.

Outside the two metropolitan areas of B.C. in communities of 10,000 and up, starts were 33 per cent higher.

Nicolson predicted total starts in the province this year including communities of less than 10,000 population will be the fourth highest year in CMHC records.

The smaller communities account for 25 per cent of total starts and last month for communities in the higher category starts were 175 per cent higher than November 1974; 2,569 compared with 935.

Nationally this year to date there have been 162,080 new housing starts, up from 160,079 in the period last year.

We Need Lougheed Chant at Rally

TORONTO (CP) — About 400 persons held a rally Monday night to try to persuade Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed to change his mind and run for the national leadership of the Progressive Conservative party.

Chanting "We need Lougheed," the group, which represented Metropolitan Toronto's major ridings, signed a five-foot-long Christmas card urging Mr. Lougheed to enter the race.

During most of the three-hour meeting, party members compared notes on Mr. Lougheed's chances of running, and winning.

"I've talked to most of the 120 delegates (to the leadership convention) and I'd say that a good 70 per cent of them want Mr. Lougheed to run," said Bob Tebbutt, program director for the Metro Progressive Conservatives.

Mr. Tebbutt said Mr. Lougheed, who has announced that he will not run for the leadership, has taken that stand because he is in the midst of a legislature session in Alberta.

"Face it, he couldn't get up and say he's going to leave it," Mr. Tebbutt said. "So he's got to scotch all the rumors right now and I don't blame him."

However, Dick Perdue, president of the Broadview Riding Association, said that once Mr. Lougheed sees the support he has in Eastern Canada he may reconsider.

The leadership convention to find a successor to retiring Robert Stanfield will be held in Ottawa in February.

Worthy of Voters' Attention

As noted in this space Monday, the Times generally supports Premier David Barrett and the New Democratic Party in the current election campaign. We also believe a number of outstanding local candidates are worthy of the voters' attention. In this election especially, many individual candidates could be buried as left and right square off, muscling others out of the arena. This would be a travesty, as anyone who has taken the time to sit in the legislature listening to debate knows.

For this and other reasons, we hope Dr. Scott Wallace wins his Oak Bay seat. He is a rock of integrity in a house that often hangs heavy with personal vitriol. His record on health care issues and his political determination should make him a favorite with Oak Bay's iconoclastic voters. We have similar feelings about David Anderson in Victoria. He is an effective member of the legislature and a skilled debater. His logic and honesty are graceful counterpoints in a place more usually associated with dissonant chords. After much debate over the second member from Victoria we think Charles Barber deserves a chance. Barber has been criticized for his youth and his ability to get funds from various levels of government. We feel these are sterling credentials for a politician.

Over in Esquimalt, Frank Mitchell deserves attention. A 20-year veteran of the Esquimalt police force, he knows the worth of the government's Co-ordinated Law Enforcement Unit, which is waging a successful battle against organized crime. Mitchell's common sense and experience as a former MLA would be valuable in the legislature. Saanich and the Islands, the Times feels, is up for grabs. Incumbent Hugh Curtis not only switched political parties in office, he voted against the agricultural land freeze and farm income assurance — things that may be important to Saanich voters.

Following an examination of the strong campaigns in Saanich, we hope Carol Pickup is elected. The 36-year-old nurse is a third generation islander and a member of the Victoria General Hospital board. Her strong campaign is an indication of her ability to work.

Cowichan-Malahat, former stronghold of the NDP's Robert Strachan, is another riding where a strong three-way campaign is being waged between Liberals, Social Crediters and the NDP. We favor Liberal candidate Jev Tothill. He is running a campaign based on the issues, something this newspaper likes to see. Tothill is interested in diversifying the riding's economic base. An intelligent articulate teacher, he would be a valuable asset in the legislature.

Like any other voter the Times has its biases and choices. We think the above-named candidates are the best in their ridings. There are names left out that might have been included on a longer list. Editorials don't decide elections. The electorate does. On Thursday the voters of the province will make the ultimate choices.

Monopoly on Stupidity

Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall's letter to employees of Panco Poultry, the government chicken-processing plant in his home riding of Surrey which employs 400 people, was a crass and heavy-handed piece of politicking. To threaten voters is inexcusable—and that's the only word for Hall's action.

The "dear friend" letters said in part: "The question is really very simple, only one party and one candidate is pledged to a continuation of the operations of Panco Poultry, and that is the government party, the New Democrats, and Myself (capital M in the original!) as the candidate in Surrey."

Could the meaning be any clearer? Unless the NDP gets back in, you'll lose your job. It's right next door to saying: "Vote NDP or else you'll lose your job." Meaning, if the NDP forms the government again and they find out you didn't vote for the NDP, you're out.

Besides being a misstatement of the facts—the other three parties have said that no crown corporations will be sold if that means jobs will go down the tube—Hall's letter ranks as one of the stupider political stratagems of the campaign. It is surprisingly bad judgment from a man who used to be provincial secretary of the NDP and is one of the shrewder and brighter minds of the Barrett cabinet.

It's right up there with the classic lulus of the campaign—Ron Andrews, the North Vancouver-Capilano Socred candidate, saying the NDP will confiscate your house and your land; Bill Bennett saying the NDP is telling provincial government employees to vote socialist or be fired; Premier Dave Barrett and Human Resources Minister Norman Levi sending "Christmas cards" to Mincome recipients just pointing out what side their bread's buttered on.

It's bad business all round, and shows that neither of the major parties has a monopoly on stupidity.

DVA Tardy

I am writing this in regard to the way the department of veterans' affairs is treating our veterans.

I am a veteran of two wars and am receiving both a disability pension and war veteran's allowance.

Now I am supposed to receive those cheques in time to have three days grace for cashing those cheques before the end of the month.

Now all of the other pension agencies such as welfare, old age, mincome and Canada Pension have been delivered on time — so why can't the DVA have theirs delivered on time?

They knew the post office was on strike so why couldn't they make arrangements with the post office or some other agency to have their pensions delivered on time?

The veterans who fought and ruined their health fighting for a decent living used to be classed as first-class citizens, but since Trudeau got to be prime minister the veteran has been a second-class citizen and is compelled to go begging to the government for a measly bit of a pension which is way too small to provide a decent living and is put off until all the others have their pensions before they get their pittance.

Now all you veterans who are dissatisfied with the way the DVA is operating, get together and write a letter to the editor and maybe we can shame them into doing a better job for the veteran, and make the veteran a first class citizen once again.—A Second Class Citizen.

DARS Replies

I would like to draw your attention to the rather misleading headlines in a recent article in your paper — Rules Simple But Severe at New Detox Centre.

It is my understanding that the facility that Mr. Evans is in charge of is a workshop for alcoholics and should not be confused with the Victoria detox centre at 941 McClure Street. To my knowledge, there is only one detox centre in Victoria and that is the one that is operated by the Greater Victoria Drug and Alcohol Rehabilitation Society (DARS), which is funded by the alcohol and drug commission of British Columbia.

We would like to commend you for your interest in the activities pertaining to the chemically dependent and would hope that in the not too distant future you might be interested in writing an article about this new society of DARS which has, for the first time, put into effect a system of care as outlined by the alcohol and drug commission program policies.—George Stegen, Executive Director, Drug and Alcohol Rehabilitation Society, 1080 Mears Street.

Bothered, Bewildered

I seek guidance from the Times columns presuming, to a large degree, that the preponderance of its information is of an unbiased nature in conformity with the fact that its subscribers are multitudinous in attitudes, desires, political and religious beliefs, etc., making it incumbent upon newspaper mangement to assure its readers that, in general, its daily content is amicably neutral, and not overly slanted in any extreme direction whereby any person who invests his money in your newspaper, particularly as a regular subscriber, can become bewildered or offended thereby.

However, I am bewildered just now, and this unpleasant experience has caused me to address this letter to you.

To be fair, I concede that it has been my understanding down through the years, that it appears to be an accepted fact that the Victoria Times has a favorable attitude toward the federal and provincial Liberal parties, and at the crucial times seeks to impress the electorate with the virtues of that party, and I am sure that any fair minded reader accepts its right to do so.

However, this is what causes me to become so bewildered: During the present provincial election campaign, since the actual official nomination date, I am much impressed that your editorials and letters columns have been slanted somewhat, I think vindictively against the present opposition party leader as an individual, and your quite recent issue editorial and letters to the editor page was a colossal example of this, even to the incongruity of portraying a political picture under the heading of letters to the editor, thus occupying space that may have contained a reader's letter expressing contrarywise opinions.

I agree that it is ever the privilege of an individual elector to express his opinion in writing, and yours, Mr. Editor, to allow its publication. However, when I read the seemingly loaded comments on that particular page, I felt that in all fairness your next issue would have portrayed the other side of the matter by editorials and individual letters. Such, however, was not the case, and I felt that a neutral consideration of the opinions of ALL your various readers was not so exemplified.

Further, because of the above suggested Liberal party leaning of the Times, it is a disappointment to me that your newspaper does not appear to have elucidated expansively on the aims, ideals and proposals of the Liberal party in B.C. if elected to government, as compared with the presumed good accomplishments, or otherwise, of the immediate past government, and the policy statements of the other two contending parties.

BILL BENNETT

I am also bewildered by the sorry situation of two eminent Liberal contenders apparently embarking on what seems to be a vehement personal vendetta against the leader of the opposition, in which, one can feel, they are possibly joined by the immediate past premier.

One of your editorials criticized the leader of the opposition for not agreeing to take part in what we were told was to be a most important broadcast. Now, because of his non-participation, we are given to understand that the broadcast is to be cancelled. More bewilderment — surely, if the broadcast was so important, why did it have to be cancelled? Surely the other three party leaders could have made it a credible occasion. Consequently, I am wondering if it was likely that the leader of the opposition was to have been made the butt of the show. Under such possible circumstances doubtless he was wise to say no. —Bewildered by sad political methods.

Editor's note: The Times is not a Liberal paper. It is not an independent-Liberal paper. It is an independent paper. As to Bewildered's charge that our letters' column is slanted, that may be true. It can only reflect the views we receive. The Times will publish any view as long as it is in good taste and not libellous.

Hollywood Sets

The present stand-off regarding the final disposition of the last Maclure-designed house in the city core demonstrates graphically that:

Nothing was learned from public attempts to save the B.C. Land Building, last ditch governmental restraining orders are a sorry admittance of historical ignorance and neglect, and politicians really don't give a fig about preserving the urban environment when it comes to choosing between old buildings and the possibility of increased tax revenue.

It is paradoxical that it is the concerned public that forces its elected officials to the wall on the issue of historic preservation. It is ironic that the public seems to have a monopoly on foresight, historic expertise, and alternative usage. Perhaps they can see with a clearer eye the inevitable results on the human psyche of monolithic apartments, office buildings and parked cars awash in a sea of concrete.

Its true that the disappearance of a minor Maclure on Burdett Street would not affect the cityscape to any radical degree. We can live without it, just as we live without Roccabella, the Savoy Mansions, the cathedral manse. However so slightly though the city is diminished, just as it is diminished day by day as houses and buildings from less talented hands slide into oblivion, taking with them the style and character that used to typify Victoria.

The threatened Maclure could be saved, it could remain as a residence for those who enjoy proximity to town, (the beginning of your downtown housing Mr. Young?) providing a continuity and a sense of neighborhood, established roots rather than a transitory waiting room. It could, in fact, serve as prototype and inspiration for a combined municipal-provincial program whereby older houses within walking distance of the city, (the earliest suburbs) and those acres of second and third floors in downtown commercial buildings could be renovated as living quarters. The older houses could be made available at lower than prevailing rates on the proviso that buyers restore the houses sympathetically, according to "authenticity" guidelines.

Pseudo-malls and brightly painted buildings do nothing to pump life blood back into city streets, nor do beautiful Inner Harbor, bereft of commerce, or Olde Townes that close down at 5 p.m. Only the presence of people can prevent downtown Victoria from becoming a vast, expensive Hollywood set, deserted every evening by those who only work there. — T. Palfrey, 3158 Jackson Street.

W. A. WILSON

Ministers Just Look Silly

OTTAWA — This would be a good moment for cabinet ministers to cool off, get their tempers back under control and recognize the demands of leadership.

We are seeing all around us these days signs of the developing social strains for which this long and extreme period of inflation is responsible. A major controversy is raging over the government's current approach in inflation. About the last thing the country needs is to see its national leaders putting on silly demonstrations of bad temper.

There seems to be no doubt that Health Minister Marc Lalonde did get misquoted by the CBC last week — the corporation's apology has to be taken as acknowledgement of that. But Lalonde got himself into his difficulties through a streak of stubbornness and bad temper.

There was an unfounded rumor that the RCMP wanted to talk to him in some way connected with the Sky Shops affair. All he ever needed to do was to brush it aside and tell anyone asking that they had their facts wrong. Instead, he managed to turn it into a sort of continuing saga, that did him more harm than anyone else.

Pitifully Weak

The problem is not that anyone thinks badly of Lalonde because of an ill-founded rumor last week. There has been no evidence that he is connected with improprieties — if there have even been improprieties, which isn't proven. The problem is that he has made himself look silly when better judgment would have saved him from that.

If the opposition in this parliament were not pitifully weak, the prime minister would have had a bad time last Thursday through admitting — one might even say advertising — that he had instructed Jean Marchand not to talk to the RCMP until he himself had talked to the commissioner.

Trudeau was angry because newspapermen had found out that the RCMP intended to visit Marchand. It turned out to be embarrassing to watch an opposition perform its functions so ineptly.

The prime minister's action was foolish because it invited the general public to believe that he was in some way trying to interfere with a police investigation. None of the Ottawa correspondents who have had years of experience with Trudeau's petulance towards the press has much difficulty with the problem. Everyone here must realize that nothing would be more likely to make Trudeau intervene in such circumstances than a fit of pique against newspapermen. But we benefit from a special, if not an especially agreeable, element of particular knowledge on this subject. The public at large does not.

The prime minister ought to be sensible enough to avoid invitations to them to believe the worst. Good standards of government involve appearances as well as questions of substance.

Jean Marchand joined this parade of foolishness by getting into the position where Solicitor-General Warren Allmand had to rebuke a colleague publicly as "completely unfair" to the RCMP. Marchand had suggested that an anti-French bias in the force may have been responsible for a television crew getting to his office ahead of the scheduled visit by the police. Since the current commissioner of the RCMP is French-Canadian, Marchand's outburst lacks probability in the first place. In the second, if there should be any truth to it, French power seems to exist in the right place to contend with it.

It is possible to have a good deal more sympathy for Marchand than for the others. He has always been ebullient and his health problems now are serious. It must have involved great disappointment for him when he found it necessary to step aside as minister of transport and accept cabinet membership without a portfolio. One can conclude that he would hardly be human if he were not feeling under strain.

The real problems of the day are vastly more serious than whether Marc Lalonde did or didn't say that "WASPs are out to get French-Canadians." As to that, everyone with his head screwed on properly knows the unspoken truths—some WASPs certainly are out to get French - Canadians, some French - Canadians are out with a vengeance to get les maudit anglais. Between the bigotry of both extremes it is not so hard to find some good will left in the country. Given our major problems, we need it.

The social tensions developing in this country should not be taken lightly. No one can reasonably predict how the developing confrontation between the national anti-inflation policy and organized labor will turn out but all the indications are that the country is heading into an extremely unwelcome polarization of pro- and anti-labor feelings.

It is easy enough to criticize the leaders of the postal workers as inept for keeping their members out on a sterile strike long after they knew very well they had all the money that was coming. But this costly walk-out was also a determined challenge to the government's anti-inflation policy.

Serious Developments

In many ways it was an understandable one because it was the Liberal party which so convincingly fought the case against price and income controls. When the prime minister and his colleagues changed their minds they did almost nothing to build popular support for the new policy. Trouble in securing its acceptance was inevitable.

The developing confrontation does not end there. This week we have seen a large crowd of Toronto teachers chanting "bullshit, bullshit" at the minister of finance as he sought to make some sort of case for the wage controls. Yet who has attempted in this country to establish what would be satisfactory and satisfying incomes for school teachers. For years now the question has been approached as a power struggle. Efforts at persuasion have been muted where they existed at all.

While the Toronto teachers were shouting insults at Finance Minister Macdonald the Montreal riot squad was called out to cope with teachers around the headquarters of the Catholic school commission there. The following morning Louis Laberge was on the radio talking about a general strike as a weapon in the attempt to defeat the government's anti-inflation policies.

These are, surely, serious developments. I do not see how ministers can effectively approach them if first they make themselves look silly.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of December 9, 1915

The manner in which women in the motherland and on the continent are now actively discharging duties and responsibilities formerly regarded as men's work and the useful aid they are giving to the work of war, were among the reasons advanced by Mrs. Ralph Smith, wife of the member of parliament, at the People's Forum in Vancouver to prove that women had shown themselves competent to exercise the franchise. That they would exercise the franchise with vigor, she said, was shown by the experience in New Zealand, where, at the last general election, two per cent more women than men went to the polls.

The Campaign: NANAIMO

The Land Freeze and Bill 146 Have Cut Into Stupich Support

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

(Eighth of Series)

NANAIMO — The 1975 campaign of NDP candidate Dave Stupich bears all the earmarks of Napoleon's retreat from Moscow.

His once mighty army of support has dwindled and he is beset on all sides by enemies. Anything that could possibly go wrong has gone wrong.

His survival is in doubt.

The Social Credit Party, sensing victory, is staying out of sight, coming out only occasionally for a hit-and-run raid. The raids take the form of media advertisements on the issues of alleged government mismanagement of ICBC, the mining industry and education and with plenty of stress on the $100 million overrun by Norm Levi's department of human resources.

The ads, however, avoid the two real issues in the Nanaimo battle.

Farmers Cooled Off

Nothing need be said by Social Credit about the farm land freeze and the action of Premier Barrett legislating pulp and woodworkers back to their jobs — the citizens are saying it for them on the talk shows and at public meetings.

"Things are getting a bit better on the farm land freeze question," one NDP campaign worker said. "In the 1974 federal election here the farmers were very hostile. They have cooled off a bit now. They're still dead against us but they have cooled off."

These were NDP voters in 1972 who helped Stupich get 52 per cent of the vote (compared to 32 per cent for Social Credit).

It was the farm land freeze that almost cost NDP MP Tommy Douglas the Nanaimo seat in the federal election of 1974, according to his campaign workers, who had to take all the heat. Douglas held on to win but it was very close.

As a result, the Stupich committee is starting from a base of the 1974 NDP vote (40 per cent) rather than the 52 per cent that Stupich got in 1972, which is ancient history.

The farm freeze has not only alienated rural voters, it has hit businessmen and real estate salespersons who have invested in farm land (with low taxes) in hopes of reselling at a profit for subdivisions.

Liberal candidate Bill Matthews of Gabriola Island presents a vivid example of what the freeze has done to land values. He was able to buy an 83-acre farm at Nanoose for $95,000 or just over $1,000 an acre. An inferior land-holding outside the freeze area is selling at $7,000 an acre.

If the land freeze were lifted, the Matthews farm could probably go as high as $1 million, based on $10,000 an acre. Despite this, Matthews can see some good in the land freeze, but adds there are hundreds of people who have invested in farm land who are strongly opposed to the freeze, particularly when it affects property that is only marginally useful for crops.

Many of these investors live in Nanaimo City where the tide for Social Credit is running strong. Here the whole business community has united behind the Social Credit banner. There are thousands of woodworkers in the city as well and these are basically NDP people, but there are cracks in the ranks this year.

It was no accident that Premier Barrett selected Nanaimo as the site for his announcement of the freeze on commercial rents and the extension of the price freeze. This is a troubled riding for the NDP and the vote of the small merchant is drifting away.

While Stupich is starting with something over 40 per cent of the vote, this does not mean he will finish with it.

Many of his supporters are threatening to abstain as a result of Bill 146, which ordered pulp and millworkers back to their jobs during the strike. The IWA members viewed the order with mixed feelings because many felt they were in a losing strike anyway but the pulp workers felt they were winning and that makes all the difference.

Turned in Cards

Some pulp workers have turned in their NDP membership cards. A few have switched to the Conservative party and many say they will not vote at all. They probably will vote but it is not clear for whom.

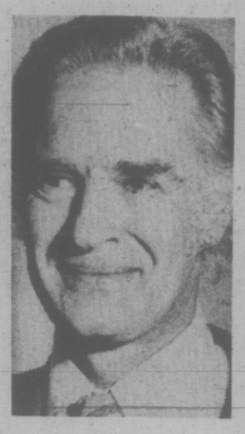
The result in Nanaimo may well depend upon the Cedar electoral poll.

This town is the bedroom community for the one pulp mill in the riding at Harmac, seven miles south of Nanaimo. There were 800 votes cast in Cedar in 1972 and 75 per cent went to Stupich. This time there will be about 1,300 voters and, under normal circumstances, Stupich could expect to get 1,000 — which would probably be enough to win.

There was confusion in Cedar last week.

The executive of the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada have been trying to reach a consensus on the election but it has eluded them. And they are aware that even if they do agree the workers will make their own political decisions anyway.

Many workers say they will abstain. Those planning to vote NDP say the party is the "best of a bad lot."



STUPICH

MOORE

At nearby Harewood, where the NDP got 60 per cent of 3,000 votes in 1972, voters are wrestling with the same question. But here there are more IWA members who were less upset about the back-to-work order and the Stupich vote could hit 50 per cent in this area.

But Stupich has more troubles elsewhere. For example, Departure Bay. This is the Oak Bay of Nanaimo, a waterfront subdivision for doctors, lawyers and businessmen.

In 1972 only 731 of the area's 2,000 votes went to Social Credit.

Stupich got 711 votes (it was the only poll he didn't win) and the Conservative candidate got 320.

This time there are about 3,000 voters in Departure Bay and Social Credit Party workers found so much support they lost count. The NDP and Conservatives have written off the area. There are a total of 32,000 eligible voters, up 6,000 from 1972.

At an all-candidate rally in Nanaimo, Social Credit candidate Graeme Roberts clearly won the day. The jeering of Stupich was more intense than the booing of Roberts.

Jeered Into Silence

The applause for the candidates was: Social Credit Roberts 38 seconds, NDP Stupich 24 seconds, Conservative Marjorie Moore 21 seconds. Communist Ray Holmgren 14 seconds, Liberal Matthews 12 seconds. (The Communist applause was by eight people who made a lot of noise).

When Stupich mentioned the farm land freeze he was jeered to silence. When Roberts said a Social Credit government would stop making B.C. a magnet attracting young Americans and Canadians with generous welfare payments he got the loudest ovation of the night.

The meeting was stacked by Social Credit supporters, it's true, but it points up the apathy of NDP supporters who normally would attend meetings like this in droves.

While trouble has been brewing for Stupich he has had to spend much of his time in Victoria attending to his two cabinet posts, finance and agriculture.

"I really don't know whether I'm going to win or not," he said.

His campaign workers were also cautious, awaiting a consensus from the pulp workers.

It is a far cry from the days when Nanaimo was a coal-mining town and the CCF could rely upon the miners no matter what happened, Stupich said.

Backed by Miners

The last coal was mined in 1950, just after Stupich entered provincial politics. This will be his eighth campaign. Of the previous seven, he won three: 1963, 1966 and 1972. He tried first in 1949 at the tender age of 27. In 1952 and 1953 he topped the polls but eventually lost in both years to second-place Tory Larry Giovando under the alternate ballot. He sat out 1956 to article as a chartered accountant and stepped aside in 1960 for former MP Colin Cameron, who had lost his seat in Parliament during the Diefenbaker landslide of 1958.

Stupich has fought three memorable battles with Mayor Frank Ney, who ran as a Socred.

Stupich won two out of three, losing only in 1969. But he is just as glad he is not facing Ney a fourth time. For one thing, the campaign would be a lot noisier.

For instance, there would be the great battle of Nicol Street. In the previous three elections this entrance to Nanaimo contained more than 1,000 signs per mile. It was the one place in B.C. where you could tell for sure there was an election on. This year it is quiet. The 1,000 NDP signs are down to 34. The 1,000 Socred signs are down to four.

Roberts, the Social Credit candidate, is deliberately running a low-profile campaign and the NDP has not had to respond to a sign war. The NDP has 3,000 signs in the riding but they are scattered over a wide area.

Stupich has been minister of agriculture since 1972 but got the additional portfolio of finance on Oct. 3 of this year.

"How does it feel to be finance minister? I don't know. I haven't really had the job yet. I've just been finance minister in name for a few weeks. I am looking forward to being finance minister in fact if we are re-elected."

Stupich concedes he was a bit disappointed at first in not getting the finance post in 1972 when it was rumored to be going his way. However, in retrospect, he believes Barrett made two right decisions: keeping the finance portfolio for the first three years to get a feel for government operations and then turning it over to someone else to free the premier for other things.

NDP headquarters is the old CCF hall on downtown Wharf Street. Here there are as many pictures of party veterans J. S. Woodsworth and M. J. Coldwell as Barrett and Stupich. While the party has traditionally emphasized policies and downplayed personalities, in this campaign the main things going for the NDP are Barrett (who drew 2,400 to a meeting here, compared to 1,200 for Bill Bennett) and the continuing personal popularity of Stupich.

Up at Social Credit headquarters, a modern business office on Nicol Street, the talk is issues, issues, issues.

The main issue, says Roberts, is sound business management of government operations. His interests could lead him naturally into the finance portfolio in a Social Credit government, although there will be a long line-up for that job.

Ballyhooed Convert

Roberts ran for the Conservatives here in 1972 and his conversion to Social Credit in March of 1974 was announced with all due fanfare in Victoria by Bennett as the first of many to come. Roberts, a car dealer, says he helped persuade Hugh Curtis to join Social Credit and is a friend of Oak Bay Socred Frank Carson and other Socred car dealers Newell Morrison and Peter Pollen.

Roberts, 44, was born in Victoria, leaving at age 13 for the mainland. He worked briefly as an underground miner at Salmo, B.C., before becoming involved in car sales in Vancouver. He and a partner set up a Toyota franchise in Nanaimo eight years ago and now they have 44 employees.

"This is a very clean campaign," Roberts said. "We believe we have enough votes to win but it will be close."

His main problem is the personal appeal of Tory candidate Marjorie Moore, a 29-year-old blonde who is an experienced debater and political organizer.

Most of the votes going her way will be taken from Social Credit.

The Nanaimo Conservative Party organization, in fact, had decided not to run a candidate for fear of splitting the Social Credit vote. Moore, area organizer for the four up-Island ridings, said the party should field a candidate even if she had to run herself. They finally agreed.

Worked in Comox

In fact, Moore had planned to contest the nomination in any case. She had worked for eight months as campaign manager for Conservative candidate Vic Stephens in Comox and believes he is going to win there.

"When I saw what a person could do with hard work I decided to try it myself in Nanaimo."

She has had only two months to knock on doors, however. She talks optimistically of winning but her best reasonable hope is to come a respectable third. While her oratory is bringing cheers at campaign meetings, the fact she is an outsider (from Comox) and not a member of the two major contending parties is a handicap in her campaign.

Her budget is $1,700 and is already spent. By contrast Stupich and Roberts are spending $12,000 each. (Liberal Matthews is spending $400 and the Communist candidate Holmgren about $100).

Moore was born into a Conservative family and got annoyed when many people, including her father, said she should vote Social Credit to keep out the NDP.

"If you believe in the Conservative Party you should vote that way. No vote is wasted," she says.

"I enjoy politics but it comes as a surprise to me when someone remarks that I am a woman. I've never thought of myself as a woman. I mean, I think of myself as a person who is involved in politics."

This is her first try for political office and she says it certainly won't be her last.

For the Liberals, Matthews is making his second run, having come third in Nanaimo in the federal election of 1974. He is financing much of the campaign himself although there are few signs and little media advertising.

Matthews is a retired colonel in the Canadian Army who first joined up in Victoria in 1935 and went overseas with the Canadian Scottish. He organized the Alberta-Ottawa canoe race for the Canadian Centenary in 1967 and the B.C .canoe race for the Centenary of 1971. He describes himself as a gentleman farmer.

The liberal vote was under 5 per cent in 1972 and is not expected to be much higher this time.

Always Angry

Holmgren, the Communist candidate, is an intense 27-year-old logger from Cedar whose main support comes from a small group of teenagers and some disgruntled woodworkers.

His campaign is treated as a bit of a joke in Nanaimo especially as his leaflet says he has had civic experience because he ran for Nanaimo city council and got defeated. Holmgren takes his politics very seriously, however, and always seems to be angry. Some voters expressed grudging admiration for his courage but his vote support is almost nil.

Who will win?

Stupich is clearly out in front but what he is leading is a retreat. Like Napoleon, it is not so much a question of a glorious victory but survival.

He still has the troops but if they quit on him his seat is in danger. The Social Credit hordes are at the gates in Nanaimo.

The Golden Handshake

GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

The federal government has created two types of retired persons in Canada — those who are former federal civil servants, and the rest of us.

The rest us, either on or approaching retirement pensions, have to take our lumps with inflation. We have got to struggle through, somehow, with pension benefits fixed long ago by careful actuarial calculation, the buying power of which is now decreasing by 10 per cent and more a year. At no other income has the burglary of inflation struck so hard.

Not so, however, for the public's federal employees. Virtually alone in Canada — alone, that is, except for members of Parliament who are in the process of giving themselves an even richer golden handshake — those who retire from federal service will be able to surfboard over the breakers of inflation with pensions fully indexed to the cost of living.

Without any evidence of intelligent study having been done to determine the full costs of an indexed scheme, the government — with speedy consent from the opposition parties — bestowed this blessing on its employees two years ago, lifting the existing 2 per cent cap on annual pension benefit increases.

The bargain-basement price tag on this plum was an extra contribution from federal workers of .5 per cent (rising to 1 per cent by January 1, 1977) of gross income — on top of regular pension plan contributions of about 6.5 per cent — with matching contributions from the government.

The government assumed full costs of indexed benefits for those who retired before 1970. And for those retiring after 1969, the government said it would pay out of general revenues the difference between the former 2 per cent cap and the full indexing benefits that could not be met by money in the matching fund.

Little wonder a trend to early retirement among civil servants who no doubt joyously noted that with persistent inflation their pensions could gallop past their anti-inflation-controlled incomes a few years down the road. And little wonder that pension experts are worried about not only the costs of the government's indexed plan but of the effect it will have on private pensions which are inextricably linked — through the labor and financial markets — to public plans.

With continuing high inflation, federal pensions could double or triple 10 or 15 years in the future. With more civil servants electing early retirement — grabbing their pensions, say, at 55 and slipping off into consulting or other work — the balance could be dangerously impaired between those receiving benefits and those still contributing.

To combat these combined factors of high inflation and early retirement, either matching contributions would have to increase exorbitantly or — and inevitably this is what would happen — the matching fund would be wiped out and general revenues would be eaten into insatiably. (Indeed, the Public Service Superannuation Account, out of which pensions are paid, was showing growing deficits even before the introduction of indexed benefits.)

What of the rest of us?

Private pension plans have no public treasury behind them to cover gaps. They have to stand on their own, by law be actuarily sound, and, as they now work, the option of indexing is virtually denied. How can an actuarily sound pension plan be fully indexed when inflation is an unruly variable that cannot be calculated in advance? And how could private pension plans be geared to produce the benefit increases that the federal scheme gives without requiring prohibitive matching contributions from companies and their employees?

One pension expert gives a rule of thumb. Private plan costs would have to increase 35 per cent to produce a 4 per cent increase in benefits. They would have to be doubled to produce a 10 per cent increase — the current inflation norm in Canada. And the times-factor would increase to 2.5 if the retirement age were lowered from 65 to 60.

All this the federal government's workers get for a skinny one per cent contribution but what private company or its workers could afford it — each having to pay in maybe $1 of every $8 of an employee's income? Ah, but what company and its workers feel that their employees — the employers of us all, the civil servants — should get something denied to them?

If Ottawa can defend the justness and necessity of providing for its workers in this bounteous fashion, it can hardly do less than the same for us all — pay the difference between our one per cent contributions and the full cost of indexed benefits.

And if Ottawa were to do this, it could throw its anti-inflation program, the economy and the entire country out the window. It is ridiculous, of course — ridiculous for the government to think it can get into such a giveaway bonanza and still claim to fight inflation.

ICBC 'HIJACK' CHARGED

VANCOUVER (CP) — A helicopter, hired by a Social Credit candidate and carrying a sign protesting rate increases for the Insurance Corp. of British Columbia, hovered outside a radio station studio where Premier Barrett was being interviewed Monday.

The helicopter stayed outside the studio for about half an hour and dangled a 1972 car with a sign saying: Big ICBC Rate Hijack.

Wally Ronald, campaign manager for Evan Wolfe, who is running for Scoail Credit in Vancouver—Little Mountain, said he chartered the helicopter.

"We just wanted to bring to everyone's attention that next year's ICBC premiums are going up much more than the average 19 per cent being talked about," Ronald said.

Barrett said he had no information beyond the 19 per cent increase previously announced for the Crown-owned insurance company.

He called the demonstration a "primitive, childlife approach."

Socred Hopeful Sues Columnist

VANCOUVER (CP) — Walter Davidson, Social Credit candidate in Delta riding in Thursday's provincial election, said Monday he has launched criminal libel proceedings against Sun Columnist Allan Fotheringham.

The action followed a column published Saturday in which Fotheringham said Davidson was asked to resign from the Vancouver police force in 1965 and that he withdrew as Progressive Conservative candidate for Burnaby Seymour in the 1972 federal election because he had been "picked up for shoplifting" at a local department store.

Davidson told a news conference Monday that he had been accused of theft of a value of $22.13 in 1972, but the charge was not proceeded with.

He also produced a letter from Mayor Art Phillips that said the mayor had learned from Police Chief Don Winterton that Davidson resigned from the force in the normal manner in 1965 to enter private business and that he has no criminal record.

Delta prosecutor John Campbell later said he refused to process the charge until after the election because he sees the possibility of an attempt to abuse the courts.

"It is a private information sworn by Davidson," Campbell said." The Delta police have taken no part, this is Davidson's complaint against Fotheringham.

"It is the same as if a woman comes in and says, 'my husband beat me up.'

"I have suggested to our Justice of the Peace that process on this issue (be) after the election. At that point we will see how serious Davidson is about this matter."

He said he was not suggesting the courts are being abused by the issue, "But I am saying there is a possibility they are being abused."

"If Davidson wishes to proceed after the election, then a summons will be issued. We don't want to be involved in the politics that may be a part of this whole thing."

Nunweiler Blasts Bennett

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Alf Nunweiler has accused Social Credit leader Bill Bennett of making "totally inaccurate statements" regarding the proposed steel mill for northern British Columbia.

Nunweiler said Monday he is disturbed that "Bennett has been telling audiences across the province the (NDP) government didn't do any economic or environmental studies before announcing the proposed steel mill for Kitimat or Prince George."

Nunweiler said the Social Credit leader "has obviously never heard of the numerous studies carried out under Phases One and Two of the steel mill study program."

As for public involvement, "someone should remind Bennett that public information centres operated in both communities for almost three months," he said.

Bennett's statements show that the Social Credit leader "knows next to nothing about northern B.C.," he added.

Social Credit will not abolish rent controls.

Any removal of rent controls at this time would only create a chaotic housing situation.

Social Credit is committed to keeping the present legislation which limits the extent of rent increases.

This is only part of the answer to the high cost of shelter. A Social Credit government will encourage and assist in the construction of more, low-cost rental housing, so that more people can live comfortably and decently, within their means.

Putting fear into the minds of British Columbians of all ages by suggesting that our party will abolish rent controls is unfair and a sad commentary on the election campaigning of the present government.

Ottawa Quits Consortium On Arctic Gas Pipeline

OTTAWA (CP) — After investing almost $3.75 million in the Canadian Arctic Gas Pipeline Ltd. consortium, the Canada Development Corporation has decided to withdraw as an active member of the Toronto group proposing a Canada-U.S. Mackenzie Valley gas pipeline.

The decision, effective Oct. 31, was made public by Canadian Arctic Gas at the session of a Federal Court of Appeal challenge of the continuing involvement in federal regulatory hearings on the northern pipeline by Marshall Crowe, formerly president and chairman of the CBC and now chairman of the National Energy Board and head of the three man NEB pipeline panel.

CDC's departure reduces he number of active participants in Canadian Arctic Gas to 15 companies, compared to a one time high of 28 companies.

But CDC president H. A. Hampson says that the government-controlled corporation, will continue as an "associate" member, attending meetings and receiving material but not voting, since the corporation is maintaining its "provisional commitment" to purchase up to $100 million in shares in the pipeline consortium if the project is approved by governments.

The "provisional commitment" of the $100 million equity investment by CDC in Canadian Arctic Gas can be cancelled after Dec. 31.

Hampson said that CDC decided in September to cease active participation in the pipeline when it became obvious that it was going to take much longer than anticipated for the project to obtain the necessary approvals and when CDC had already contributed more than it had originally intended to the consortium.

He added that CDC had considered the matter for more than a year.

Originally, the corporation had anticipated contributing to the project for only about two years when it first joined in late 1972.

By the time CDC had cut its active ties with the consortium after three years, it had contributed almost $3.75 million to cover on-going expenses of the pipeline consortium and its predecessor study group, Hampson said.

He defended this investment on the grounds that it was necessary for CDC to properly evaluate the investment opportunity in the proposed pipeline project. And because the CDC is still interested in investing $100 million in the project, the corporation is for the time being retaining associate membership with the consortium.

This association with the consortium can be terminated by either side at any time.

Can't-Fail Event

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

After a long drought Victoria has had a veritable onslaught of dance companies within the last couple of months and there is more to come.

Latest, and currently at the McPherson Playhouse with Ronn Guidi's version of Tchaikovsky's Nutcracker, is the Oakland Ballet.

This group, proclaimed according to the program as a professional repertory company "which presents both classical and contemporary ballet" has visited us before on more than one occasion, doing th same ballet..

The Nutcracker comes as close as possible to being a can't-fail event in the Christmas season.

The E. T. A. Hoffman fairy tale about the little girl who is given a nutcracker doll as a Christmas gift and dreams that it becomes a handsome prince who conducts her on a visit to fantasy land, simply belongs to the season.

It's a pretty and charming work that gives rise to all sorts of delectable costumes and interesting divertisement opportunities.

It has one of Tchaikovsky's most attractive scores and in youth-appeal is paralleled only in ballet repertoire by Delibes' Coppelia.

So much for the work. As to this performance it is well below the best standard this season has produced so far.

The dancing is stodgy and mostly inexpressive. Some of the principals reveal technical adequacy but it is technique without spirit, without buoyancy. These comments are also strongly applicable to the corps de ballet which is as uninspired as Guidi's choreography.

The undisciplined appearance of the whole leads to the impression that the company spends too much time preparing shows and not enough in solid work. Costume design and execution is good but the scenery, with its insistence on an exactly mid-divided cyclorama, is irritating.

Performances Monday afternoon and evening are being repeated this afternoon and tonight. The evening curtain is 8:30.

Wheat Price Optimism

CLARESHOLM, Alta. (CP) — Export wheat sales by the Canadian wheat board "well over $5 a bushel" should ensure farmers of a good final payment for the crop year, Orville Reber, Southern Alberta producer representative to the board's 11-member advisory committee, says.

The Burdette ,Alta., farmer told a meeting here that while he could not — because of wheat board policy — release exact grain sale prices, "it appears the board has sold all good spring wheat."

"The board has committed itself to sell all this year's spring wheat at a good price," Reber said. "It may even take some of next year's crop to fill the sales order."

While the outlook for farmers with good quality wheat is bright, Reber said the price picture for winter wheat, barley and oats is not as good.

"Winter wheat is in tough straits. The market is just not good."

Cropping patterns in Europe, where a new variety of wheat was developed in Germany capable of producing 150 bushels an acre, have created a surplus of feed grains in the world which could contribute to a drop in feed grain prices.

Finance Companies Are in the Money

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

When accounts are tallied at the end of December it will become clear that 1975 was the year of the banks and other financial institutions.

All forms of financing are profitable in Canada this year while most other economic sectors are in the red.

The improvement is in part a return to normal high profits for the finance industry after a weak year in 1974. Last year interest rates were rising and financial institutions were caught in a squeeze, paying almost as much to attract money as they were earning when they loaned it out.

This year, however, the rates are stable and profits are assured.

A spot check of the banks shows that earnings were up 34 per cent for the first nine months of this year.

Their earnings were up 50 per cent in the third quarter and continue to be strong as the year comes to a close.

Loan and trust companies have also done well this year. After the third quarter their earnings were up 42 per cent from 1974. They had faced similar cost pressures last year and were in a good position when rates stabilized in early 1975.

Oil companies, pipelines and merchandising firms will report good years at the end of December. Some utility companies will also show profit increases.

However, more sectors will show lower earnings this year, reflecting the general world recession.

Canadian base metals and forest companies have taken the brunt of the decline. Low earnings are nothing new for both areas, being in a highly cyclical business, but all metal prices have slumped at the same time and the demand is low.

After three quarters, earnings in 1975 were down 77 per cent for Canadian base metals. British Columbia's copper industry was particularly hard hit.

The decline in forest earnings also was a major depressing factor in the B.C. economy.

The fall strike in the forest industry was a serious blow to B.C. newsprint producers. The large lumber mills bore up well, having surplus production on hand when the strike was called.

The decline in lumber earnings was due mainly to market conditions while the strike was the main factor in the drop in revenue for pulp and paper. There is still a small surplus in the pulp market while demand for newsprint continues to be strong.

Gold producers report a 56 per cent drop in earnings after nine months, reflecting lower prices.

The "down" list is almost endless. Earnings for beverage firms are down 30 per cent, for steel down 21 per cent, for real estate down 20 per cent, for manufacturing down 17 per cent and for food processing down 6 per cent.

Construction company earnings are also down as are companies specializing in construction products.

With luck some transportation companies may break even but losses are more likely.

Money-Saving Coupon Use Up

TORONTO (CP) — Consumers are using an increasing number of money-saving coupons being offered to stimulate sales of new and established products, manufacturers say.

Coupon redemption started to increase two years ago and is becoming one of the best methods of sustaining consumer demand, says a spokesman for Nielson Clearance House of Canada in Toronto, a redemption company for major food and drug companies.

Ralph Davis, vice-preisdent and director of advertising for Kellogg Co. of Canada Ltd. of Toronto, said coupons represent half of the company's promotional budget.

"We increased couponing two years ago because we felt it was a good marketing method that would suit purposes," he said. "We were aware of the price reaction by the public and couponing is one way we are capitalizing on that."

Most manufacturers say the coupons are an expensive method of promotion. Handling charges by retailers this year rose to five cents from three cents a coupon.

The cost of distributing three million 10-cents-off coupons with a redemption rate of 15 per cent is $142,500, said O. E. McIntyre, of O. E. McIntyre Ltd. of Montreal, a direct mailing company.

Ironically, studies have shown that coupon users are from middle- and upper-income homes where the head of the household is between 35 and 50 years old, he said.

McIntyre said persons receiving lower incomes may not be as sensitive to print advertising and, therefore, "do not perceive what's going on as prosperous people do."

'Rotten Call' May Hasten Use of Replays

By The Associated Press

Buffalo Bills' owner Ralph Wilson said Monday the official who made a controversial call in sunday's critical Miami Dolphins-Buffalo game "should be fired from the job and never allowed to work another game."

Speaking of a call made by head linesman Jerry Bergman on an apparent Miami fumble in the Dolphins' 31-21 National Football League victory over the Bills, Wilson said: "It was a rotten call that cost our team a chance for the Super Bowl. I will not again send my team out to play a game that he's working."

Buffalo had fought back from a 21-o deficit and trailed the Dolphins 24-21 in the final quarter. Miami had the ball deep in its own territory. On second down, Mercury Morris appeared to fumble at the Miami 28 and Buffalo recovered.

But Bergman ruled the whistle had blown before the fumble, and he assessed a 15-yard penalty against the Bills' Pat Toomay on the grounds that Toomay had elbowed him in rushing after the loose ball.

"The official who made that call should be barred from football," Wilson said of Bergman. "Anyone that incompetent should not be allowed to officiate."

It was the second time this season—a St. Louis Cardinals-Washington Redskins game was the other—that a controversial call affected a game between NFL playoff contenders. In the first game, the Cardinals were awarded a touchdown on a play in which replays seemed to show that the receiver had dropped the ball before both feet touched the ground. NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle said in an interview that neither he nor the league was opposed to ask the league's competition committee to study the feasibility of instant replay and using replays to settle controverial calls. He said he will report to the league's annual meeting next March.

Some of the Bills, such as Wilson, risked a possible fine because of their public attacks on officiating, barred by the league's constitution.

Wilson said he would appeal the game, but a league official said an official's judgment call cannot be appealed. If Wilson were to enact his threat to keep Buffalo out of any game officiated by Bergman, the Bills would be subject to forfeit and fine.

The NFL said it would review films, talk to participants and take appropriate action, but what that would be was not known.

Toomay was incensed over the penalty called on him.

"What happened is that I saw the ball squirt out of Morris's grasp and I ran to recover it," he said. "The official was right in my way so I pushed him to get at the ball. It happened during the flow of play and he was in my path. I never heard of such a penalty —roughing an official—in my life."

"It was a fumble," said Bills' coach Lou Saban. "I've never seen anyting like that called in football. My God, a call like that can change the complexion of the game. The ref said, 'He (Toomay) hit me with an elbow.' What the hell, he was standing right on the ball."

Rozelle was questioned about the St. Louis-Washington call at a congressional hearing and two Washington lawyers unsuccessfully tried to get a federal judge to step into the matter.

Wanted: Old Keepsakes For B.C. Hall of Fame

The weekend in review, and talk about violence in hockey. What about the political arena and the goon squads in evidence there? If they police the hockey games, as indicated, who will pay the shot, and will the same rules hold true for political rallies? And then maybe you heard Alan Eagleson, business agent for Bobby Orr, Canada's rep to the International Ice Hockey confrontation, et al, describing the condition of his star attraction on the weekend.

Eagleson said that Orr was in good spirits, was looking forward to rejoining the Boston Bruins sometime in late January or early February, and quoted the doctor who operated on Orr as saying that he saw no reason why the operation on Orr's troublesome knee shouldn't be a success and it should be just as good as it was after the third . . . and the fourth operation . . . Which left open the question: What about the first, the second and the fifth? Still, it is good to hear that all is well with Orr, the truly unfortunate part being that he won't be able to take part in the Russian series. Again.

And anyone who happened by Playland Curling Club on the weekend may be excused if they did a double-take when they saw Duncan's pleasant veteran, Gordie Stewart, in action. The original brush-cut kid of the geriatric set, Stewart has succumbed to the style of the times and gone full length and flowing white. He would probably welcome a hot comb for Christmas. On the same theme, maybe Jack Trueman might fancy a moustache cup. Still, if grown men want to grow more hair, what's so terrible? Look at Keith Dagg, the winner! I knew a fellow once who had a moustache, handlebars, waxed on the ends, the whole bit, until he awoke one morning to find a centipede nestled fast asleep on his upper lip. Next!

When Peter Webster, executive director of the B.C. Sports Hall of Fame, was here last week, he was saying he would welcome stories and pictures from the past on famous teams and famous athletes from the city because the Hall desperately needs them. The key to his plea, was: "If anyone has anything at all, please don't throw it out, send it to us. We can use all we can get." The point was brought home when the picture of the 1946 Dominoes was being presented to the Olympic Coin Sport Art Tour, it was noticed that, although Art Chapman was shown in the picture, his name wasn't included in the cutlines. Surely, an oversight, but who was to know? Or, as Webster said: "It's the only picture we had; surely there must be more around Victoria somewhere. And that goes for all sports," he emphasized.

It was interesting to note, too, that Kamloops Chiefs are having financial problems, even though leading the Western Division of the Western Canada Hockey League, and averaging 2,100 fans a game. Already $150,000 in the red since moving from Vancouver, the Chiefs need to fill the 2,500-seat capacity rink every night just to break even. Contrast the Chiefs' plight, where the players get about $60 a week, with that in Denver of the World Hockey Association. In Denver the professional Spurs are attracting only an average of 3,000 fans into the building each game and they are paying most of their players $20,000 and up. Any figure filbert should be able to work that one out. There is simply no way anyone can make ends meet in Denver and with the record of the defunct World Football League before them and the American Basketball Association starting to follow suit, what's a fellow to think about the future of the Spurs and some other WHA clubs. Minnesota almost didn't meet its last payroll; San Diego has always been a disaster area since leaving the WHL, and the Calgary Blazers, nee Vancouver, nee Philadelphia, etc., have not only gone deeper in the glue at Calgary, but they are also costing the Calgary junior club dearly. The town, once a hotbed for the juniors, simply can't support two losers. And won't . . . Meanwhile, over to B.C. Attorney-General Alex Macdonald. He has said it might be necessary to police hockey games to have witnesses present to tell of the violence, if any. That's great, except for two small items. Sports writers have been telling that story and presenting the facts for years, but nobody has listened. Secondly, the hockey people say they can police their own game. Okay, Alex, tell THEM to do it. Out of their funds not ours. Maybe then, they'll legislate the necessary rule changes. Just maybe!

BULLDOGGED BY A BRONCO during National Football League game Monday night in Oakland is running back Mark van Eeghen (30) of Raiders. Wrestling van Eeghen to turf is rugged linebacker Randy Gradishar of Denver Broncos as Ray May (59) moves in on action. Raiders had some problems but mounted enough offence to score 17-10 victory over Broncos.

Raiders' Defence Counts Ten Sacks

OAKLAND (AP) — Oakland Raiders defence rose to the occasion by knocking down Denver quarterbacks John Hufnagel and Steve Ramsey all night.

"Ten sacks!" said rookie Oakland safety Charles Phillips, who intercepted three passes in the Raiders 17-10 win over the Broncos. "That's what makes my job easy—when the line is putting pressure on the quarterbacks.

Otis Sistrunk, from his defensive tackle position, led the charge on the Denver passers. He took part in five of the sacks which took some heat off the Oakland offence and helped the playoff-bound Raiders win their seventh successive National Football Leagu egame.

"Our defence always rises to the occasion," Phillips added. "But our offence is so potent that it was just a matter of time until we scored."

The time seemed interminable to Oakland fans, who did some booing during the 28-minute wait.

The normally explosive offence run by quarterback Ken Stabler seemed to be working with a silencer. Denver was ahead 3-0 on Jim Turner's 18-yard field goal which followed an Oakland fumble in the first quarter.

"They took almost everything away from us," admitted Stabler, who completed just two of his first nine passes and suffered two interceptions. Oakland's offensive efforts had accounted for only 30 yards by late in the second quarter.

But Horace Jones then sacked Hufnagel, making his first NFL start, at the Denver 21-yard line and the Raiders drove 44 yards after taking a short punt.

Fred Biletnikoff shook loose to catch passes which gained 15 and 16 yards and Harold Hart ran two yards for the touchdown which sent Oakland ahead.

In the third quarter, after Phillips' third interception against Hufnagel, the Raiders drove 48 yards for another touchdown, scored by Pete Banaszak on a one-yard run. That was about it offensively.

DAWSON DELAYS BIG DECISION

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Len Dawson's long, distinguished career may have ended in the shadow of his own goalposts, in pain and frustration.

If so, it would seem an unfitting way for the American Football League's all-time leading passer to go out.

The 40-year-old Dawson has maintained that this, his 19th season as a professional quarterback, maybe his last. But he insists he still has not made a decision and will not do so for several weeks.

In any event, he will play no more this year. Midway in the fourth quarter of Sunday's game between San Diego Chargers and Kansas City Chiefs, Dawson fell beneath a Charger pass rush and broke his right thumb.

The Chiefs went on to lose to lowly San Diego, 28-20, dropping their record to 5-7. It was San Diego's first win of the season.

An obviously disappointed Dawson said later: "It sure wasn't a very glamorous finish if this is the way I went out."

From 1957—Dawson's rookie year at Pittsburgh—through his last play Sunday, he passed for 28,711 yards and 239 touchdowns.

Hurled Stick at Fans, Clipper on the Carpet

Times News Service

Kristof threw the stick during a B.C. Junior League game last Friday in Penticton during a turmoil over a disputed goal at the 20-minute mark of the third period. He drew a match penalty.

The game, tied 5-5, and an indefinite suspension pending a ruling on his case, was suspended without a 10-minute overtime period normally played to break ties.

Kristof's case will be dealt with by the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association.

BCJHL President Brian Couling said Monday in Kelowna that Nanaimo goalie Jerry Simpson and Howard Walker of Penticton were each suspended three games for persisting in a fight during the same dispute.

A similar suspension went to Mike Proch of Penticton for swinging his stick in the general direction of the crowd and Penticton coach Joe Beggs was fined $150 for failing to control his players.

Morley Anderson of the Clippers was given a five-game suspension for a first-period altercation with the timekeeper and Couling said that if Anderson "is involved in any similar incident this season, he will be dealt with most severely."

Clippers hold a one-point lead over Langley Lords atop the Coast Division standings and statistics released Monday show Nanaimo rookie Gary Lupul shares the scoring lead with Mark Taylor of Langley. Each has 55 points.

KEN REITZ

Cards Taking Another Cruz

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals have turned third base over to hard-hitting minor leaguer Hector Cruz by sending Ken Reitz to San Francisco Giants for left-handed pitcher Pete Falcone.

"He (Cruz) has been the best ballplayer in the minor leagues the past two years," Cardinal manager Red Schoendienst said Monday in announcing the trade at baseball's winter meetings.

"The Giants have needed a third baseman for a number of years and Reitz is a good ballplayer," Schoendienst added.

Cruz, who teamed with his brothers, Tommy and Jose, in the St. Louis outfield when called up late in 1973 season, was named the Most Valuable Player in the American Association last season.

He clubbed Class AAA pitching for 29 home runs, 116 runs batted in and a .306 average.

The trade is subject to approval by the National League becaue of the impending sale of the Giants.

Reitz, 24, gives the Giants the league's Gold Glove winner of 1975. He hit .269 with five home runs and 63 runs batted in last season after a .235 rookie year in 1973 and a .271 campaign in 1974.

Falcone, 22, who was 12-11 with an earned-run average of 4.17 as a rookie in 1975, joins right-handers Lynn McGlothen, Bob Forsch, John Denny and Harry Rasmussen as starting candidates along with southpaw John Curtis.

A draft session earlier Monday found only five clubs willing to part with $25,000 to grab minor league talent.

Detroit Tigers, drafting first, took 22-year-old right-handed pitcher Bruce Taylor from the Cincinnati Reds' Indianapolis farm club of the American Association.

Meanwhile, organized baseball's official rules committee made the designated hitter rule an official playing rule Monday, optional for use by all major and minor leagues.

The action does not affect a pending American League proposal to use the designated hitter in World Series, all-star and exhibition games at all parks.

The baseball meetings resume today.

Injury to Knee May Keep Cougars' Goalie at Home

Dan Rogers, the backup goalkeeper for Victoria Cougars, may not be able to make the road trip to Alberta with the Western Canada Hockey League club.

Rogers suffered a knee injury during practice Monday and manager-coach Pat Ginnell has called up Gerry Simpson, who was sent to Nanaimo Clippers only last week, to back Murray Bannerman.

While participating in a one-on-one drill, Rogers toppled over and suffered what appears to be stretched ligaments in his right knee. He was unable to walk and had to be helped from the ice.

Cougars open their five-game trip Friday with a game against Calgary Centennials.

Meanwhile, Saanich product Kevin Schamehorne will be out of the New Westminster Bruins' lineup for at least two months because of a broken arm sustained when he crashed into a goalpost during a game Sunday against Edmonton Oil Kings in New Westminster.

Schamehorne underwent surgery Monday and a plate was inserted in his arm.

League scoring statistics released Monday show Bernie Federko of Saskatoon Blades holding a four-point lead over line-mate Blair Chapman. Federko has 72 points to Chapman's 68.

Jim Gustafson of Victoria is third with 64 points, including a league-leading 42 assists. He's the only Cougar among the top 12 scorers.

Fred Goddard Heads Boxers

Fred Goddard was elected Monday to a two-year term as president during the annual general meeting of London Boxing Club, which encompasses a variety of sports.

Also elected for two years were Dennis Begley, first vice-president; Derek Elcoat, second vice-president; Pam Dunmore, secretary; and Steve Taylor, treasurer.

Brian Turnbull, Ian Duddy, Kjeld Brodsgaard and Fran Elcoate were elected to one-year terms as directors.

End Soccer Violence Or We'll Quit—Refs

ST. CATHARINES, (CP) — Members of the Ontario Soccer Referees' Associaton agreed at their annual meeting Sunday to renew attempts to reduce violence in the sport.

Unanimous approval as given a resolution warning that referees will withdraw services next year from teams whose players assault game officials.

Some referees complained they were harrassed and assaulted during matches earlier this year and received solid support when they asked the OSRA to reaffirm its opposition to violence.

The OSRA does not have statistics on the number of charges pressed by referees last season but association president Paul Avis of Toronto said he has personal knowledge of five or six cases processed by the courts — with varying results.

Lawsuit Endangers On-Field Medical Care

KANSAS CITY (AP) — General-manager Jack Steadman of Kansas City Chiefs says a lawsuit filed against the National Football League club last week might change the working relationship between athletes and their teams.

John Lohmeyer, a defence lineman on the active roster, filed a $150,000 damage suit Dec. 2 in Shawnee County District Court in Topeka, Kan.

Named as defendants are the Chiefs and, more significantly, Dr. Joseph Lichtor.

Lichtor was the Chief's team physician in 1973 when Lohmeyer, then a rookie, was injured in a game against Cleveland.

He was taken out of the game, then put back in. Later his injury was diagnosed as a fractured neck bone. Lohmeyer subsequently underwent surgery and an extended period of rehabilitation, but recovered fully.

The suit seeks damages for "loss of wages, loss of one year of his contract in pro football, aggravation of injury, pain and suffering."

Steadman said in an interview that the suit sets a bad precedent for sports from high school through the professional level.

"If team physicians become involved in these types of frivolous lawsuits, it could greatly restrict their ability to obtain malpractice insurance."

Steadman said two physicians in California have been notified their malpractice insurance will not be renewed if they continue as team physicians.

"Now we have a situation where a doctor is having to make sideline examinations and decisions without the benefit of all the sophisticated equipment available to him either at his office or the hospital.

"But if orthopedic surgeons and other physicians are unable to insure their practice because of their association with professional sports organizations, or even college or high school teams, we're not going to be able to provide the sideline care we now have."

Steadman said possible results can only be speculated upon, but would doubtless work to the detriment of the team as well as the players.

"I assume the next step we might take would be some type of a release from any responsibility to the players, before we could allow them to play."

He said another possibility might be to send players to a hospital for emergency room treatment rather than giving them immediate attention on the sideline.

LAVAL JUNIORS WIND UP STRIKE

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — Laval Nationals ended their players strike Sunday night and lost a 5-3 decision to Trois-Rivieres Draveurs in Quebec Major Junior Hockey League play.

The Nationals, last in the league's West Division, had been warned that they faced suspensions for the remainder of the current season unless they decided to return to play.

The Nationals voted to return to play after Paul Dumont, the league's executive director, said the league would suspend the team and draw up a new schedule if the Nationals did not return.

The players decided on strike action following the resignation of coach Jacques St. Jean. The walkout forced the postponement of a game Friday in Chicoutimi.

St. Jean's resignation came after the failure of a group, of which he was a member, to purchase the club. Head scout Jean-Guy Lavoie was named interim coach of the Nationals.

HOWE WON'T FINE HIMSELF

TORONTO (CP) — Gordie Howe said Monday night he has no intention of fining himself for drawing a two-game suspension from the World Hockey Association.

Earlier in the day, there were reports Howe would fine himself his pay, $2,500 a game, for the games he will miss for abusing referee Ron Asselstine in a WHA game Friday night in Houston.

But Monday night Howe, who is a right winger and president of Houston Aeros, said in a telephone interview he felt the $1,000 fine handed him by the league in addition to his suspension was too steep.

"Ask some guys who know me," he said. "They know I wouldn't give money away.

"Actually, as president, I'm in a good position. I can give myself a bonus to make up for the fine."

Earlier in the day, chief executive officer Ben Hatskin and Bud Poile, vice-president in charge of hockey operations, set Howe's suspension at two games and added an $850 fine to the automatic $150 that went with the game misconduct handed Howe by Asselstine in the game.

Goalie Ron Trahame, who also drew a game misconduct in Friday's game, had his suspension lifted and his fine left at the automatic $150.

Both Howe and Grahame were handed indefinite suspensions by the league Saturday and missed that game with Phoenix Roadrunners. Hatskin's ruling means Howe will miss tonight's game with Cincinnati Stingers before returning to action.

Asselstine was given time off to decide his future. On Friday night, he said after the game he was quitting because of his run-in with Howe.

GORDIE HOWE
. . . bonus instead?

Earlier in the day, chief executive officer Ben Hatskin and Bud Poile, vice-president in charge of hockey operations, set Howe's suspension at two games and added an $850 fine.

Pro Tennis Hits Hotheads

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The International Professional Tennis Council, which controls the world circuit, announced a strict new disciplinary code Monday in a bid to stop tantrums and clowning on the court.

Derek Hardwick, president of the International Lawn Tennis Federation, announced the new code following the $100,000 Masters Tournament, which had its share of troubles.

The statement issued by Hardwick mentioned no names. But these are some of the incidents the council has been discussing in the last week:

● When the Masters Tournament opened a week ago Arthur Ashe of the United States walked off court after his opponent, Ilie Nastase of Romania had held up play by clowning and arguing. Both players were disqualified at first, but the tournament committee later confirmed the disqualification of Nastase and awarded the match to Ashe.

● Nastase was twice previously disqualified this year. He also was accused of not trying in a tournament in Toronto and had his $8,000 prize money withheld. He has appealed against the decision and the case is to be heard by an independent tribunal in London.

● Nastase and Connors were hissed by the crowd and strongly crjticized by tennis writers after clowing in a doubles match in the Dewar Cup. They appeared on court wearing bow ties and drank champagne between games.

Ashe, as president of the Association of Tennis Professionals, is a member of the council but did not attend all the council meetings during the Masters Tournament, in which he reached the semi-finals.

Nastase, after starting the tournament in disgrace, came back to give a highly disciplined performance against Sweden's Bjorn Borg in the final and won the first prize of $40,000.

These are the fines which the council can impose on players who violate the code, effective Jan. 1:

● Not trying to win a match, $1,000.

● Physically or verbally abusing the umpire, linesmen, opponents or spectators, $1,000.

● Defaulting or withdrawing from any singles or doubles match without medical authority after a tournament has started, $1,000.

● Failing to start a match within five minutes of the scheduled time, $250; within an additional 10 minutes, $750.

● Throwing a racket or hitting or kicking a ball out of court in anger, $50.

● Using obscene language, or hitting a ball by officials, ball boys or spectators, $200.

● Walking off court and refusing to participate in a final ceremony, $1,000.

● Appearing on court in unprofessional dress, $50 the first time, with the fine doubled each succeeding time. Specifically banned are sweat shirts, dress shirts, tee shirts and Bermuda shorts.

Any players who collect fines totalling more than $3,000 in any 12-month period will be automatically suspended for 21 days. The new code also bans players from accepting money or gifts to guarantee their appearance in tournaments. The fine for violating this is $2,500. For betting on a match or accepting bribes, players can be fined $5,000. Fines will be deducted from players' prize money.

James Bay Athletic Association took a 41-29 lead in the first half and held on to defeat Stevens Interiors 74-68 in one of two Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League games Monday night at Royal Oak Junior High School.

In the other ecounter, Independents hammered Victoria and District Junior Men, 87-67.

Mike Gains scored 12 of his 13 points before the break to pace James Bay in the early going but John Campbell emerged as the overall leader with 24 points, all on baskets.

Mike Squire led the well-balanced scoring attack of Independents with 14 points while Brian Wright, the only other player to hit double figures out of the 12 who dressed, contributed 13.

Tony Carlson set the pace for Junior Men with 16 points.

Grundison 2nd In Two Events

SEATTLE — Rob Grundison emerged with the top record out of two Victoria Amateur Swim Club entrants in the 28th annual Husky invitational meet here at the weekend.

Grundison finished second in the consolation finals of both the 100-yard butterfly and 200-yard freestyle medley and finished eighth overall in both events.

Cathy Rushcall, the other Victoria swimmer, was third in the consolation final and ninth over-all in the women's 500-yard freestyle.

Hockey Merger Up to Eagleson

TORONTO (CP) — Several teams in the National Hockey League are pressing again for merger with the World Hockey Association, the executive director of the NHL Players' Association said Monday.

Alan Eagleson said such a merger could not take place without the consent of his association.

"Although many clubs have contacted me in this regard I am unable to discuss the topic due to the nature of the five-year agreement," he said.

The agreement between the league and players states that in the event of a merger the players will be entitled to terminate the agreement with respect to certain provisions in the standard player contract.

In the event of a merger, the players would ask that compensation and option clauses be removed from the standard player contract.

NHL president Clarence Campbell said in Montreal he couldn't foresee a merger taking place in light of his league's agreement with the players.

Sources say the NHL teams pressing for a merger are Philadelphia Flyers, St. Louis Blues, Pittsburgh Pengins and New York Rangers.

Lakers Nipped

George Fuller didn't leave enough time for Lake Cowichan to complete their comeback Monday night and Victoria Western Homes Buckaroos came away with an 8-7 Big Six Hockey League victory at Memorial Arena.

Fuller scored his second goal of the game for Victoria with only six seconds left on the clock. The fourth-place Lakers had pulled even at 19:47 and seemed assured of their second tie in as many starts.

Jim Pickering also connected for two Victoria goals while singles were fired by Neal Palone, Dave Pickering, Randy Krantz and Keith Dixon.

Doug Hanna led the Lake Cowichan effort with three goals and the other tallies were contributed by Bob Hall, Jim Kipp, Bob Balicki and Larry Myers.

One in the Eye for the Magazine Voyeurs

Playboy magazine made centrefolds of nude women a publishing institution and Playgirl later extended the concept to photos of naked men for women.

But Playgirl lined up beside Playboy today — opposing nude pictures. Not all nudes. Just "tasteless" ones that reveal too much, too blatantly.

Playgirl publisher Douglas Lambert praised his Playboy counterpart, Hugh Hefner, for "his recently announced intention to re-establish the original high standards of taste that set Playboy above the imitators that have inundated the market."

"Playgirl's use of nudity has been sensual, not vulgar; erotic but tasteful and done with respect for the human body," said Playgirl editor Marin Scott Milam. "We applaud Playboy's decision."

The two magazines are not related.

Garbage War Escalates With New York Beating

NEW YORK (UPI) — City streets and curbs are littered with 35,000 tons of garbage piled up in an eight-day strike by private sanitation workers that has escalated into firebombings and attacks on garbage trucks and workers.

In the latest outbreak of violence, the cab of a sanitation truck was destroyed by a firebomb Monday as its crew was picking up meat wastes.

About noon, a dump truck hauling paper waste was forced to the curb on the cross-Bronx expressway by two cars carrying 10 men who, police said, smashed the windows with golf clubs and slashed the tires.

No injuries were reported in either incident and no arrests were made. Last week, two trucks were set afire and the crews of both vehicles were beaten.

Mayor Abraham Beame Monday night called for around-the-clock talks to end the walkout by some 1,700 members of Teamsters Local 813, which has resulted in the garbage piled up outside restaurants and other commercial buildings.

The mayor also ordered officials to work out a schedule for the sanitation department to pick up garbage in critical areas.

STERILITY LINKED TO DES: Nader

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader's health research group said today there is new evidence indicating that male children whose mothers were treated with the drug DES during pregnancy may be afflicted with sterility and testicular abnormalities.

The organization, in a letter to Health, Education and Welfare Secretary David Mathews, urged the government to warn doctors not to prescribe DES to pregnant women without telling them about the potential consequences for their offspring.

Cases of vaginal and cervical cancer among women whose mothers took DES during pregnancy have been documented. DES, which stands for diethylstilbestrol, was used to prevent miscarriages. It is also used in animal feed.

United Lays Off

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With 1,400 daily flights grounded by a machinists strike, United Airlines laid off 13,000 workers without pay as negotiators continued to sort through issues today.

Representatives of United and the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers have been meeting with mediators of the National Mediation Board and W. J. Usery Jr., President Ford's special labor troubleshooter.

The strike began Saturday and involves about 16,700 workers.

Non-Union Help Eyed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Washington Post is "considering" hiring non-union pressmen to end a nine-week-old strike following the overwhelming rejection of the company's final contract proposal.

Questioned Monday about what alternatives the newspaper would pursue to end the strike, Post vice-president and general manager Mark Meagher said that hiring non-union personnel is "just one of the alternatives we are considering."

He declined to be specific about the others, but said they will be announced soon.

Largest Theft Ring Operators Jailed

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Eight men from Vancouver and Burnaby were sentenced Monday in British Columbia Supreme Court on robbery charges from an operation described by police as one of the largest theft rings uncovered in Canada.

Mr. Justice Albert Mackoff sentenced Ernie Yen, a Vancouver grocery store owner, to four years and a fine of $25,000 after his conviction on 43 counts of possession of stolen goods. If the fine is not paid, he is subject to another three years.

Bill Yen, found guilty on 10 counts, was sentenced to 18 months and a $10,000 fine. He is subject to one more year if the fine is not paid.

Joe Lee, a brother-in-law of Ernie Yen, was fined $2,000 and sentenced to four months. Lester Chan received two months and a $1,000 fine.

Two men described by police as minor partners, Chris Abbott and Roderick West, received one day in jail, fines of $300 each and 18 months probation. Gary Chiu received the same sentence.

Eugene Chan was jailed for two months and fined $1,000.

Prosecutor John Hall said the value of the stolen goods, recovered in raids by police on 18 private homes and two warehouses in the Greater Vancouver area, was valued at more than $150,000.

Hall said he believed the operation was one of the largest ever uncovered in Canada and the stolen goods represented the proceeds from at least 50 burglaries.

b.c. briefs

Canadians Extradited To U.S.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three Canadians alleged by a United States grand jury to be part of an international drug ring smuggling heroin to Milwaukee from here, have been ordered extradited to the U.S. by County Court Judge W. T. Trainor.

Turned over to U.S. authorities Friday were Roy Dorn, Andy Smith, and Chuck Mancor, who had been arrested here on the grand jury indictment and held pending their extradition hearing.

Judge Trainor ruled that Douglas and Donald Palmer, who were also charged in the Wisconsin indictment, were not subject to extradition and they were released.

The indictment alleged 10 counts of importing heroin from Vancouver and elsewhere in British Columbia and distributing it in Milwaukee and elsewhere in Wisconsin.

Two Acquitted

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Lloyd James Ambridge and Philip Joseph Garnot were acquitted Friday of a charge of murder punishable by life imprisonment in the March 19 death of Chris Solmonson. Solmonson died outside a Prince George hotel after a fight.

Fund for Museum

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A fund drive is to begin next spring to replace the Fort George Museum and the artifacts destroyed in a fire Saturday. Museum society president Bill Jones said the building, which was valued at about $175,000, was insured, but the artifacts were covered for only $20,000.

Choir, Brass Combine

The choir of St. John's Anglican Church, Quadra at Mason, will combine with the Western Brass Ensemble and organist Edward Norman in a concert at the church at 8 p.m. Sunday.

Music to be performed includes Bach and other baroque compositions, Vaughan Williams and Daniel Pinkham.

Bail Set In Kidnapping

BURNABY (CP) — Bail was set at $5,000 in provincial court Monday for Tan You Sooi, 22, of Malaysia, who is charged with kidnapping two Indonesian women.

Juge Page remanded the accused to Dec. 15 for trial date.

Tan is accused of kidnapping Monica Gunawan, 19, of Burnaby and Shianita Layarda, 19, of Vancouver from Miss Gunawan's home Nov. 1. They were found five days later by police, who were informed that a ransom note demanding $1 million was received.

Exam Rolls Normal

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attendance on the first day of Christmas exams at the University of British Columbia Monday was normal despite picket lines thrown up around the campus by striking members of the Association of University and College Employees.

"Students obviously got the message that exams would be held as scheduled and there appeared to be no more than the normal number of absentees," said Ken Young, associate registrar at the university.

He said Monday was a relatively light day for exams, with only 35 scheduled. Among the 35, however, was English 100 which required 61 rooms for the nearly 4,000 students who wrote it.

"Attendance for the English 100 exam was 98 per cent and that is normal . . . for such an exam," Young said.

He said today is the heaviest day of the two-week exam period, with 153 separate exams scheduled.

Johnson Not Guilty: Jury

Rodney Trevor Johnson, 2407 Vancouver, was greeted by his family and friends and his wife Kathy as he left the court a free man.

The jury deliberated five hours and 15 minutes, returning only once to ask direction from Judge Peter Millward on the legal definitions of armed robbery, aiding and abetting and prior knowledge.

Johnson's trial lasted six days. Both the Crown and the defence agreed on one point — that there was robbery — but disagreed on who did what.

Evidence was that Johnson and two friends, Dan McIsaac and Tony Vogelaar, went out drinking the evening of April 12 and met a Surrey electrician, Maurice Dutour, who had come to Victoria to celebrate his wedding anniversary.

After the Century Inn pub closed, they went to Sappho's nightclub, leaving there in the early morning hours in Vogelaar's truck, apparently bound for 1166 Summit where Johnson and McIsaac lived.

But they drove north on Blanshard, turned on Cloverdale and then parked on Seymour.

The Crown, through its witnesses Vogelaar and Dutour, said McIsaac and Johnson committed the robbery while the defence, through its witnesses McIsaac and Johnson, said Vogelaar and McIsaac did it.

McIsaac was convicted last summer of robbing Dutour and sentenced to 30 months in penitentiary.

The wallet and contents involved in the robbery allegedly contained $60 and some credit cards. A starting pistol was alleged to have been used by Johnson.

Johnson took the witness stand to tell the jury he didn't agree with the robbery, didn't participate in any way and didn't receive any benefit.

Defence counsel Doug Christie said Dutour was "very intoxicated" and Vogelaar's evidence was the most reliable, "if true", because he had the least to drink of the four men.

"But he knew the way to Johnson's house so why did he drive all the way to Seymour. Why go to a dimly-lit street with three drunks?" asked Christie.

He said Vogelaar used McIsaac and Johnson to steal groceries from Woodward's "and he used them, or attempted to use them, that night."

Of Vogelaar, Christie said at one point: "With all due respect to Mr. Vogelaar, he's not a very convincing liar." And, he suggested, it was "by the use of perjury" that the jury was being asked to convict Johnson.

Thw case for the defence was ended if the jury could be sure Vogelaar was telling the truth and Dutour could recollect accurately, he said.

"Are you prepared to allow Vogelaar to use the Crown, to use the court, to escape the consequences of his act," Christie asked.

Crown counsel Barry Mah Ming told the jury Vogelaar wasn't on trial.

He said Vogelaar was an immature 19-year-old at the time, influenced by others, who didn't go to police immediately because he was scared.

"He was quite honest," Mah Ming said, because he voluntarily admitted the groceries theft.

Mah Ming said McIsaac was trying to help his friend Johnson, with whom he was living, "get off. Why should two go to jail?"

Ming said today he will recommend to Regional Crown Counsel Wally Anderson that an appeal will be launched.

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Itching Piles." It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night.

If you want satisfactory relief—here's good news. A renowned research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions.

All this was accomplished by a healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—developed by a world-renowned research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Concerning Leadership are they SERIOUS?

Here's a Sample Of the "Strong Leadership" We Hear so Much About

If this Province keeps Barrett's leadership, I hope we all realize we shall pay dearly for it.
Let's get the Government BACK TO GOVERNING, not running the whole society. With all the expense, it is still inefficient! The Liberal Party believes, too, the party in power should have the support of at least 50% of the voters. Under preferential voting we can avoid the argument of choosing the extremes and have a government representative of at least half the electorate.

No Air Canada Firings in Report Wake

Times News Services

OTTAWA — There will be no Air Canada firings as a result of the Estey inquiry into the airline, Transport Minister Otto Lang told a news conference Monday.

Furthermore, no executive rapped in the report tabled in the Commons earlier in the day, would be barred from consideration for the top job in the corporation vacated by Yves Pratte 11 days ago, he added.

The report, by Ontario Supreme Court Justice Willard Estey, tells a sad tale of well-intentioned Air Canada officials plunging into questionable ventures and of top executives slow to react and investigate these deals.

Estey says he found no dishonesty among airline executives and no effort by them to benefit personally at the expense of Air Canada.

And, he says that despite the problems he investigated, this "large national undertaking ranks amongst the world's leading airlines."

A separate, confidential report submitted to the cabinet by Mr. Justice Estey was not released by Lang.

But the minister said it dealt with some financial matters that were heard behind closed doors at the inquiry and were not of "major public interest."

Jack Murta, Tory transport critic, said the Estey report indicates the "government itself must accept responsibility for a number of major problems facing the airline."

The Estey inquiry was launched after questions in the Commons by Conservative Elmer MacKay, newspaper reports about a $100,000 payment to Montreal travel agent R. Y. McGregor and Air Canada involvement in a villa development in Barbados.

Yves Menard, who was marketing vice-president before resigning last February, is criticized by Mr. Justice Estey for his role in both deals.

In Montreal Monday, Mr. Menard said:

"I was the guy in charge and as such I am ready to accept my share of the blame."

An Air Canada spokesman said the airline's board of directors was studying the report and would issue a statement today.

Pratte is on vacation out of the country, the spokesman added.

The report makes some recommendations for improving the financial organization of Air Canada and extending its corporate powers to avoid further troubles. It also suggests the president's job should either be eliminated or strengthened.

Lang has said president Ralph Vaughan's role in the airline now is being discussed. The "exact division of responsibilities" between the two chairmen and the president was being examined.

Vaughan and several vice-presidents are criticized for not speaking up early enough in efforts to deal with the McGregor and Barbados transactions.

Poor internal communications, questionable business ethics in the international airline industry and tight limits on the airlines corporate powers all contributed to these deals, the report says.

Battle Against Inflation A Civil War, Austin Says

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Jack Austin, former right-hand man to Prime Minister Trudeau, said Monday the government's anti-inflation program is as much an act of war as any military action.

"We are not at war in a military sense, but just as surely we are at war in an economic sense," he said in his first speech since being sworn in as Liberal Senator from British Columbia a month ago.

"The apprehended danger is to the security of our society and our willingness to live in peace and good order with one another."

Senator Austin, principal secretary to Trudeau for about 15 months until his Senate appointment, spoke during debate of the government's anti-inflation bill.

"It is a civil war in economic and social terms: the enemy is ourselves. . . .

"The value and importance of the social qualities of our lives . . . are disappearing under the attack of economic self-interest," he said.

He defended government growth — a common target of critics who see only increased spending — as the direct result of increased demand by the public.

It is largely because we have been getting what we want from government. In a democratic state it is impossible for government not to respond to the decisions society is taking.

"Each of us must come to realize that the state cannot be the forum for the immediate fulfilment of every private and group want. We will have to become more tolerant and less demanding, more the conciliator, less the advocate."

Failure to do so, he warned, would be the imposition of "massive measures of discipline" by some future government.

WAR MEASURES REPLACEMENT?

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday it is important to pass legislation that could be used in place of the War Measures Act during future domestic crises.

"The manner in which it would be presented and the timing would depend a great deal on the disposition of the House," he said in the Commons. He did not elaborate.

Trudeau said work on alternative legislation started in 1971, following the Quebec kidnapping crisis the previous fall. But no legislation has been passed.

Ottawa Accepts Limited Backing

OTTAWA (CP) — Faced with reluctance by provinces to commit themselves to the full length of the federal anti-inflation program, Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said Monday that Ottawa is prepared to accept provincial participation for an 18-month term.

Several provinces, including Ontario and Alberta, said at a federal-provincial finance ministers meeting last month that they would not want to initially commit themselves for more than 18 months.

Replying to Conservative Leader Robert Standfield in the Commons, Macdonald said he would prefer that the provinces sign up for the full 3¼-year length of the program, but shorter commitment was better than none at all.

The provinces would be able to sign formal agreements to have the federal wage guides apply to provincial public servants for a shorter period such as 18 months "with the expectation" their participation would be reviewed and extended at the end of that time, he said.

Preference For CUPW

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey said Monday he has instructed local postmasters to give regular postal workers as much overtime as common sense permits before deciding to hire casual workers.

Casual workers are hired by the post office on a temporary basis when movement of mail is heavy — especially at Christmas. Limits on casuals was a major issue in the seven-week strike that ended last week.

Changes Rapped

OTTAWA (CP) — Proposed changes in the Immigration Act which would limit the waiting time for a landed immigrant to take out citizenship papers to three years from five were attacked by opposition MPs in the Commons Monday, as "citizenship made easy".

DRAWN-OUT TAX FIGHT HAS A SPEEDY FINALE

OTTAWA (CP) — In a debate that ended in bitterness and acrimony, the Liberal majority on the Commons broadcasting committee defeated Progressive Conservative attempts Monday to delay and modify tax legislation affecting foreign publishers and broadcasters.

After more than two weeks of public hearings the 20-member committee approved, without change, legislation denying advertisers in Canadian editions of Time magazine and Reader's Digest and on U.S. border television stations the right to claim tax deductions for their costs.

The committee rejected Conservative amendments to delay the Jan. 1 implementation of the bill by one year and to grant exemptions to U.S. television stations willing to invest money in Canadian programming.

What was expected to be a long, late night session to consider individual clauses in the legislation ended after less than two hours with Tory James McGrath protesting that Liberal refusal to support amendments made "a sham and a farce" of the committee system.

McGrath said "heavy-handed" Liberal whips refused to allow Simma Holt (L—Vancouver-Kingsway) and other dissident caucus members to sit on the committee and oppose the measures.

The committee rejected two amendments by Benno Friesen (PC—Surrey-White Rock) aimed at sparing KVOS Television which broadcasts from Bellingham, Wash., but obtains 90 per cent of its income from advertisers in the Vancouver-Victoria area.

The proposal followed an offer to the committee last week by KVOS president David Mintz to invest at least $2 million a year in Canadian television in return for an exemption.

ROAD DEATHS DROP BY 5

Canadian Press

At least 59 persons died in traffic accidents in Canada during National Safe-Driving Week, five less than last year.

Ontario led the toll for the seven-day period which ended midnight Sunday night with 23 traffic deaths. Quebec followed with 16, British Columbia and Nova Scotia each with five, New Brunswick, Newfoundland and Alberta with three apiece, and Manitoba with one.

Theatrical Skill Workshop Set for Youths

An open house will be held by the Victoria Youth Theatre from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday to launch a program aimed at giving young people an opportunity to develop theatrical skills.

The affair will be held at Springridge Theatre at Gladstone and Fernwood.

All those interested in joining the growing membership can choose whatever degree of participation suits them.

Kate Palmer, the new co-ordinator, and other workshop leaders, will be on hand to chat over coffee and outline the theatre's plans.

Young people, roughly between the ages of 15 and 30, will have the opportunity to attend workshops on movement, mime, acting and design given by playwrigths, directors, technicians and performers.

Ms. Palmer says the organization also hopes to provide exposure to theatre productions in Victoria and Vancouver.

The program will include involvement in several productions which will be entirely the work of the members, with each performance open to the public.

Those interested in full participation from January through June 30 will find the action taking place Monday and Wednesday evenings and Sunday afternoois.

Memberships are $5 for the year. Honorary memberships are also open to everyone for $5 and up.

Ms. Palmer, who studied fine arts and theatre at the University of Calgary, will be assisted in some of the workshops by a former artistic director of Playhouse Holiday in Vancouver.

Don Shipley, who was also an assistant to Stratford Festival head Robin Phillips last summer, is in charge of an $18,000 L.I.P. grant which will be used to develop the Springridge Theatre into a cultural centre for the community by making some limited renovations to the building.

DESJARLAIS BACK IN JAIL

36-Hour Dash: One Year

Paul Joseph Desjarlais's brief, 36-hour taste of freedom has cost him another year in jail.

The burly 30-year-old former inmate of William Head institution appeared in Victoria provincial court this morning where he pleaded guilty to being unlawfully at large.

Desjarlais was discovered missing from the federal prison at William Head at 10:30 p.m. Saturday. On Sunday he held a Metchosin pair, April and Colin McKenna, captive for more than six hours, forcing them to drive him into the city. The next day shortly after 11 a.m. he was arrested near Chemainus as RCMP were investigating a report of a stolen vehicle.

Judge D. K. McAdam said the one-year sentence will have to be served first before Desjarlais serves the remaining portion of an eight-year sentence he was serving at the time of his escape.

Prosecutor Nick Lang noted that before Desjarlais fled the prison his earliest release date was Feb. 26, 1978.

The accused had also been charged with escape but the Crown withdrew the charge after Desjarlais pleaded guilty to being unlawfully at large, an offence which carries a maximum penalty of two years in jail.

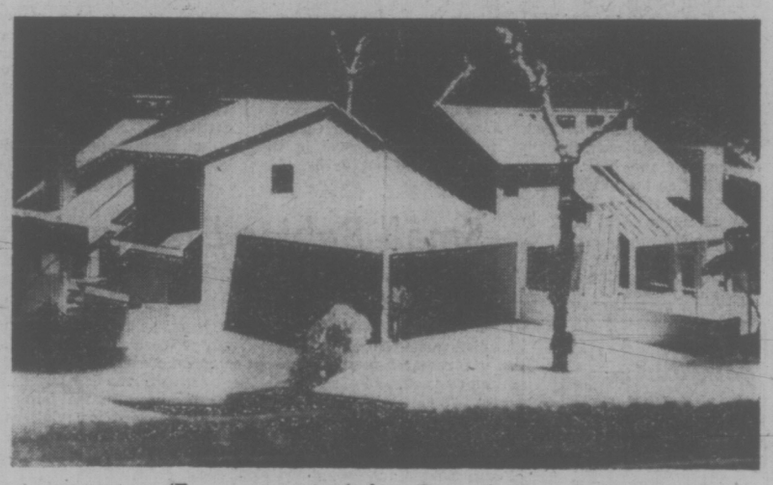
In addition Desjarlais was charged with breaking into S. J. Peden, 2855 Quesnel, and possession of a stolen 1975 GMC mini motorhome.

He was remanded on both of those charges to Dec. 16 for election of trial method and plea.

Lang cited Desjarlais's criminal record which dated back to 1962 and included convictions for escape, breaking and entering, robbery, car theft, assault of a police officer and possession of a dangerous weapon.

Defence counsel said the accused told him "his emotions sometime get out of control of themselves . . . and he couldn't stand staying in prison any longer."

Housing Co-Op Proposal Too Lavish for Province



'Too expensive' for Central Mortgage

A housing co-operative's plans to build a 50-unit development on four and a half acres of provincially-owned land near Hillside Avenue are in jeopardy because the provincial housing department considers the concept to be too lavish and an under-use of scarce building land.

Ken Rayfuse, chairman of the Mount Stephen Housing Co-op, said today that after nearly two years of preparatory work and detailed planning the group learned Monday that it would probably not be given a lease on the land.

Officials in the housing department and the Victoria office of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation consider the scheme "too expensive," he said.

Rayfuse told a press conference this morning that CMHC officials appear ready to renegotiate the concept, but it would be futile to discuss financing until the housing department gives a firm commitment on the use of the property at Mount Stephen and Ryan, near the Bishop Cridge centre.

Rayfuse, a civil servant employed at the Provincial Museum, was careful not to make any charges of political interference, but he was strongly critical of the lack of guidance and encouragement by the department of Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson.

"If we had half the support from the department that Dunhill Development (the Crown development agency) and the United Housing Foundation (a Vancouver-based group which has undertaken many co-op housing projects) receive, we could have had these units built months ago," he said.

Rayfuse said the association's only hope now is that it may be able to reopen discussions with the two levels of government by making substantial cuts in the size of the 32 biggest units.

The original design included nine four-bedroom units of 1,515 square feet and 14 three-bedroom units of 1,220 square feet. The group would offer to cut 120 square feet from each unit and also make other savings.

Rayfuse said the original construction cost of a three-bedroom unit would have been a little over $35,000, or $27 per square foot, compared with average costs of around $32 per square foot for other co-op housing developments.

He released copies of correspondence with the housing department and CMHC, including an Oct. 9 report from Neil Jackson, architectural adviser to the housing department.

This said in part: "Not only are the houses luxurious in area but the structural forms are complex and would be expensive. These are the kind of dwellings one might expect to be erected by people with far higher incomes than are listed in the brief submitted by the co-op group.

"The designs could certainly provide very attractive houses, but it would be possible to house 50 per cent more people at least for the same cost, with no difficulty."

Rayfuse said the group's proposed density of around 12 units to the acre was less than the co-op average of 16 units per acre, but the 20 families who were members felt it was "the absolute maximum we could see for our particular design."

He said they felt strongly that the design should represent a departure from the "standard box" type of construction and layout usually found in such schemes.

For six weeks the members had met daily with their architect, Ken Tebbutt, to thrash out in the most meticulous detail their views on what form the housing should take.

The result was an approach which could be a model for similar housing developments in the province, he said. "We feel it's something unique and we're mighty proud of it."

Duplex Loans for Esquimalt

Extension of the provincial home conversion loan program to Esquimalt was announced today by Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson, bringing the applicable areas to three in Greater Victoria.

Nicolson last month designated Victoria and Oak Bay as eligible areas in which owners may apply for loans to create suites and duplexes to increase the housing supply.

In Esquimalt the municipality asked for designation only of its R2 residential zone, allowing for development up to duplex size. This area amounts to 419 acres in Esquimalt.

Up to 1,200 single family units may be enlarged under the program in Esquimalt, and an owner may apply for a loan of up to $12,000 for the first unit so created.

In the other two Greater Victoria areas property may be expanded beyond the first unit with funds of up to $6,000 per unit available through the program. Secondary loans will not be available in Esquimalt.

Nicolson directed further inquiries to department of housing building superintendent Ken Wright, at 838 Fort, 387-5391, and reiterated the advisability of municipalities making application for designation rather than individuals.

'Bunch of Defeatists' Comment Gets Action

BAIRD
. . . exasperated

A one-liner spoken by an exasperated school trustee Monday night may have gained a minor victory for the exceptionally bright child in the Victoria school district.

Usually quiet spoken Trustee Janet Baird labelled her benchmates a "bunch of defeatists" when it became apparent there was little support for her motion on the above-average student.

She had urged that the administration conduct a survey to find out what is being done to stimulate and challenge the above-average student.

But the discussion indicated trustees were not too happy about the motion, arguing about the definition of "above-average" and the costs and benefits of surveys.

Baird said the school district "is not doing a particularly good job" for the above-average child and urged the board to set priorities for the exceptional students.

"But first I'd like to find out what is going on in the district.

"Quite often the exceptionally bright child has been turned off because of lack of challenge. We should do a survey and get the results as a first step."

"A survey is impossible," countered trustee Dr. Mark Fisher.

He said Baird's motion was a "motherhood statement" and "we'd all like to help . . . but how in God's name do you survey them — in terms of the class average or what?"

Countered Baird: "It's an area we're not even addressing ourselves to. We've done it with other exceptional children (the handicapped) and at the moment I don't think these (above-average) students are getting a fair shake.

"What a bunch of defeatists."

When school board assistant superintendent, Dr. John Wiens was called into the discussion, he said "the board can't expect a survey to give definitive answers."

But he agreed the survey might be a step in the right direction and Baird's motion won the general support of the board.

Chairman Bill Ross said the problem is funding. New programs for the exceptionally bright student would likely be a major expense.

"In the end it will probably mean money at a time when the board is reducing staff and library facilities need book replenishing."

A more basic question would be to try and develop a better working relationship with teachers in the field to give more assistance to the exceptional student.

The motion will be further discussed at the next board meeting, Dec. 15.

No Irregularity—Deputy

Allegations of irregularity in a senior appointment for the education department have been dismissed by the deputy minister.

In a brief statement Monday deputy minister Jack Fleming said he and a member of the Public Service Commission had investigated the charges made last week by Ken Warren, of Sooke School District administration, concerning methods of filling the post of director of special education in the division of integrated and supportive services.

The allegations had been "fully investigated by me and the public service commissioner involved and we are completely satisfied that this appointment is being made in accordance with regulations laid down by the Public Service Commission," Fleming said.

"As for the specific charges made by Mr. Warren against two members of the department and one consultant to the department, I have been advised that the individuals involved have instituted legal action."

A writ was issued Monday in B.C. Supreme Court to Kenneth Russell Warren, Stuart Underhill, publisher of the Times and Times Publishers Limited, claiming a libel against Frances Louise Fleming, assistant superintendent of the special education branch of the provincial department of education.

Mrs. Fleming's claim against Warren is for damages for libel and-or malicious falsehood contained in a typewritten letter dated Nov. 30 from Warren to Premier Dave Barrett, and seeks an injunction against Warren to restrain him from speaking, writing or circulating any further information on the matter.

The claim against Underhill and the Times is for damages and-or malicious falsehood contained in an article headed "School Allegations Probed" printed in the Times on page 49 Dec. 5. An injunction against further publication on this matter by the Times is also sought.

TOWN TALK

Mrs. Marjorie Jenvey, of 2807 Gosworth Road (near the Hillside Shopping Centre) realized almost every woman's fantasy last weekend. She found a mink . . . by the garbage can!

This one, though, wasn't ready to wear.

Said Mrs. Jenvey: "I was taking some garbage out and I'd just lifted the lid when I saw this little thing by the can.

"He seemed quite friendly so I patted him and he put his front paws on my leg. Then I picked him up and carried him into the house. My husband just about had a fit."

Minkie, as she's named him, is obviously thoroughly domesticated so she's trying to trace his previous owner through radio found ads.

Meanwhile, he's made himself right at home, snuggling up for the night in a box on the sundeck and eagerly gobbling up tasty scraps including raw meat off soup bones.

Mrs. Jenvey said she even raided the freezer for minnows which her husband Frank uses for fishing bait. Her furry guest "hides them in odd corners," she said.

If no one comes along to claim him, however, she could end up with a mink for Christmas.

A cattle farmer on Kangaroo Road in Metchosin has neatly adapted his farm sign to include a political double entendre.

The sign normally reads Seabreeze Shorthorns (Polled), but after the last word the name Kahl has been added. Lyle Kahl, that is, the Social Credit candidate in the Esquimalt riding.

For the uninitiated, "polled" has another meaning besides that relating to elections. When applied to cattle, it means hornless.

Perhaps the message symbolizes that B.C. voters are on the horns of a dilemma? Or that we're a pretty bovine lot?

Still on the election theme — and what isn't, these days? — there's an example of positive thinking in the Victoria Social Credit campaign office on Douglas.

A small blackboard on which the party workers sign in each morning is cheerfully headed: "Only (blank) more days of socialism left," and today the number was down to two.

But if the confident forecast falls flat on its face and the socialist hordes storm the citadel again, probably to hold it for a minimum of three years, will the sign then read: "Only 1,100 days of socialism left?"

Camping in the snow at a height of 5,000 feet protected only by a tent may not be everyone's cup of tea, but John Lemay is happy.

He took time out from his work as an independent prospector, a dying breed in B.C. today, to write to the Times to say thanks for helping him get where he is.

Lemay became a familiar face this summer to anyone walking by the Legislative Buildings. He sat on the buildings' lawn for almost a month, protesting delays in the awarding of a prospector's assistance grant.

After several Times stories, Lemay got his grant and headed out to the old Franklin Mining Camp, 40 miles north of Grand Forks. He's been there since September, prospecting for copper and tungsten and doing just fine.

He sends his thanks to the Times, to the Salvation Army which gave him room and board and to the French Canadian Social Cultural Club which offered moral support during his protest.

The Big Banana, if anyone's interested, is now a big union banana.

A look through the list of union certifications granted by the B.C. Labor Relations Board in September reveals that The Big Banana Holding Ltd. of Victoria is now organized by the carpenters union.

Carpenters working at the Big Banana? What do they do? Carve bananas out of wood? Nail them to trees?

Carpenters' business agent Jim Sawyer says he too thought the name was a joke and a put-on until the owner of the company happened to pull out a cheque book and there it was in black and white — The Big Banana.

Actually the holding company was formed to build a Greek restaurant on Store Street near Sam Bawlf's renovation project.

Twenty-four year old Janina Fialkowski, a Canadian pianist at the outset of a promising international career, came to Victoria this week to give a private performance for the benefit of Mrs. Alex Gillespie, Oak Bay Manor.

Mrs. Gillespie is her grandmother who had been unable to attend Miss Fialkowski's enthusiastically received recital at Vancouver's Queen Elizabeth Playhouse on Sunday.

Montreal-born Fialkowski is a protege of 88-year-old Arthur Rubinstein, who has called her "a born Chopin interpreter."

Last year she was winner of a silver medal and prize at the first Rubinstein piano competition held in Israel. She is now a touring artist on the roster of New York's Sol Hurok agency and has given successful concerts in both Israel and Poland.

Monday she attended her first Victoria Symphony concert and expressed both surprise and pleasure in the calibre of the orchestra.

Course Marking Rapped

A "very real problem" facing univeristies is widespread skepticism and lack of confidence about the adequacy and purpose of course-marking procedures, a special University of Victoria report says.

Prepared by the UVic academic standards committee the report urges "scrupulous scrutiny" of marking procedures.

Recommendations of the report, to be considered Wednesday by UVic senate, include:

—a thorough long-term examination of marking procedures with a deadline of January 1978;

—that each faculty be allowed to appoint a divisional marking review committee that could recommend raising or lowering of grading and techniques in the interim period.

—that any instructor, whose marking comes to the attention of the committee, shall have opportunity to convey his own views of the matter;

—that department chairmen make every effort to review grades "that strike him as irregular . . . or inequitable and any subsequent action be told the senate before release of marks;

—that senate review these procedures two years after implementation.

"It soon becomes clear," the report says, "that what is needed is nothing less than a well-articled and carefully reasoned educational philosophy for the contemporary university."

Headed by committee chairman David L. Jeffrey, the group was instructed to make recommendations after concern was initially expressed about the number of students who received exceptionally high marks in some courses.

Woman Hurt

A Victoria police report said Mrs. Winifred Emery, who lives alone, fell at 4:30 a.m. landing on grass. The report said the accident occurred just over an hour after her return from the same hospital for treatment for an unspecified illness.

Balsam Ban Still Applies

The ban on cutting balsam for Christmas trees or transporting the trees or branches to other parts of the province is still in effect, the B.C. Forest Service said today.

An official said the reason for the ban is to control an insect — the balsam wool aphid — which has caused extensive damage to trees.

"So far the pest has been contained in a small area of the Lower Mainland and the southeastern region of Vancouver Island," he said. "Its spread could threaten thousands of acres of timber in the interior and along the Island coastline."

'Magic Rope' to Get You Moving

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS

Winter will soon be upon us —the season when drivers encounter their biggest problems from the elements. If shelling out a stiff sum for a tow truck doesn't particularly appeal to you, try these tips for liberating stuck vehicles.

Often, coming unstuck from snow is only a matter of getting enough traction. Snow tires or studs will usually take care of this . . . and, if you have a front-engine auto, keeping a little extra weight in the trunk will help.

Still, those measures don't always do the job. On sheet ice, for example snow tires get even less traction than standard tires because—at any given moment — they have less surface area in contact with the road. Which is why that extra weight in the trunk should be sand.

Please note that you can't just scoop up a couple of boxfuls somewhere and leave it at that. Unless your non-skid material is properly prepared before it's packed away, you may find yourself trying to throw a 100-pound frozen brick under your wheels.

There are two ways to keep stored sand from freezing:

(1) Mix salt with it, or (2) dry it thoroughly and stash it in an airtight container. The first method is easier, but salt eats cars and makes the soil and water much more saline than they should be.

Tire chains—another traction-boosting device — will easily pay for themselves whether you live in the city or country. For emergency or light duty, short clip-on lengths of chain (available for a couple of bucks) will do. For frequent use or for rural roads, though, you should get a good set of wraparounds, which will cost from $15 to $40 depending on size and quality.

You don't really have to drive over the spread-out chains to fit them to the wheels. First make sure there are no twists or kinks anywhere in one of the pair. Then drape the chain over the top of the tire and hook up its catch-link on the inside of the wheel. (Practice will enable you do this without lying on the ground.)

The next step may be a bit of a fight, depending on how tightly the chains fit: Work the cross-links down over the tire's tread while pulling the ends of the chain until you can fasten the outside catch-link. Finally, add the spreaders. Then repeat the process on the other rear wheel and drive away.

It pays to take a tip from the boy scouts and be prepared for the conditions you're likely to meet. This means you'll have to find room in your auto for a few "extra" items.

One piece of emergency equipment — a shovel — is a must . . . and is required by law in some jurisdictions. A bow saw or axe can also come in handy. It's really frustrating to have a single downed 8-inch tree between you and your destination when the only woodcutting tool you're carrying is a penknife. Of course, no reader of this article would ever drive about without a working flashlight.

You'll most likely have a jack with you anyway, and if yours is a bumper model of good quality, it can be used in a pinch to get your vehicle out of mud. Set the jack on a wide, flat plank or rock and hoist the auto up enough to get boards, stones or whatever under the tires.

Always expect the jack to slip while you're doing this (that is, stay clear of the support and try not to keep your hands under the automobile or truck wheels any longer than necessary). Be aware, too, that the planks, etc., may be shot backward when you get the stuck car rolling . . . which means that your helpers should grasp the door handles and push from the sides rather than the back.

Some people have had success by using the jack in combination with a lever (to push the vehicle sideways in the proper direction) or by placing the jack horizontally to help push, but there's an element of danger in both of these methods. Here are two other ways to get out of jam:

First, if you live in the country, you might consider dropping $35 on a come-along (Fig. 1) — a compact manually operated winch. (The two-ton model is only slightly more expensive than the smaller sizes, and is well worth the difference.) It can get a vehicle out of almost any drift, ditch, or mudhole.

The operation is simple. The winch has a grab-hook on the back of its frame and a hook and length of cable on its spool. (Check the line for wear periodically, and make sure all connections are secure.) When in trouble, one fastens the towline to the auto's frame or some other solid portion of its anatomy and the winch-hook to a piece of chain moored to a sturdy rock or tree. (If possible, protect the trunk of a live tree with an old inner tube, piece of cardboard, etc., to prevent damage to the bark.) These hookup positions can be reversed, depending on where it's convenient for the winch operator to stand.

If you're alone, you'll just have to muscle the vehicle along, but it's best if someone else can help by driving. When the cable is very taut and the auto is just starting to move, the driver should spin the wheels fast enough to help progress and reduce friction. (Don't do this, of course, if the car is simply digging itself in deeper.)

When the machine moves forward, the cable will go slack and the driver must then hit the brakes to keep the vehicle from sliding back while the winch operator catches up.

But there's another little known and highly effective device: the magic rope. The key to this setup is the nylon rope; it doesn't jerk like a chain, but is elastic like a rubber band. The result is that the towing vehicle can drive away from a stuck vehicle at some sped. The springiness of the nylon lets momentum work for you.

To use the magic rope, be sure any tangled, cords are untwisted, back the rescue truck up against the immobilized auto, and attach one end of the line. Then coil the remaider of the rope so it will feed smoothly, and fasten the other grab-hook to the towing behicle. All that remains is to drive the already mobile machine away. The shock travels very slowly and evenly through the nylon, and the car moves forward smoothly rather than jerking as it does behind a cable or chain. You shouldn't have to drive the tow car or truck away at more than 15 mph to make the magic rope work.

If you want to make a towing device like this, you can get the necessary half-inch nylon rope at a marine supply house. A few friends might do well to get together and share the cost (because this stuff is expensive). And don't plan to use the cord for any other purpose, because those knots will never come out.

Small Babies Distinguish Color, Light Intensity

SEATTLE (AP) — Babies as young as two months can distinguish color, say two University of Washington scientists, who research may bring about detection of color blindness at an early age.

"Some babies who have color blindness in the family have troubles with the same colors their color-blind relatives have trouble with," said Dr. David Peeples, a research psychologist who is working with Dr. Davida Teller, professor of psychology, physiology and biophysics.

"Babies two months old are able to tell the difference between two colors and can distingush very small changes in the intensity of the light," Dr. Teller said.

In their research, the professors have used young macaque monkeys which have full color vision by four to six weeks of age. Monkeys are similar enough to humans that monkey babies can be used in place of human babies in experiments.

"Patches put over the eyes of monkeys may one day help opthalmologists decide whether or not to use eyepatches on infants or young children after corrective surgery for crossed-eyes or in cases of damage to the eye," said Dr. Teller.

IT'S HARD WORK, HASSLE CLOWNING IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL (CP) — It could be called the year of the clown because the city is full of them. So far, 1975 has seen them in parks, on the street, in shopping malls — even on television commercials.

Not so long ago, life in Montreal wasn't very funny for this kind of performer. Work was scarce, and police frowned on jesters who did street routines in exchange for spare change.

Zeko and Wudja should know. Two years ago, they used to sit in their yellow-and-black striped kitchen plotting strategy and drinking coffee. They were trying to figure out how they coud make a living out of clowning around.

Downstairs is a mask factory and costume room. The rest of the place is chock full of gold thrones, dusty wine bottles and other physical non-sequiturs.

Zeko is Jeanne Harte and Wudja is Terry Noble. They are an actress and actor who decided several years ago that more than anything else they wanted to be clowns.

"When you're a clown," explains Terry, "there's magic in the nose. Once you put it on, whether it's bulbous and large or round and skinny, you're a clown. Not an actor, not a person. A clown. And that's something special."

Contrary to what the public might think, he adds, clowning is a very self-revealing occupation.

"You'd think that a clown would have more to hide behind on stage than a regular actor. Clowns have masks and makeup. But the actor has a role to mask his own personality. It's easy to hide yourself in a figure like Hamlet. A clown's character is an extension of his own personality."

He said that clowns often are more than just funny — they're mirrors that reflect people and their idiosyncracies. Whether they're miming a fat banker, making fun of a tragic scene or just teasing the crowd, they're trying to get people to participate.

Montrealers are slowly getting the message. In places like Dominion Square, Beaver Lake and Girouard Park, clowns have become star attractions, particularly at lunchtime, when police usually give them a free hand to entertain onlookers.

Clowns who two years ago had to take acting and modelling jobs now are finding enough public acceptance of their craft to make a living at it.

Dad Flubbed Line

DEAR ABBY: You asked if any of your readers had ever witnessed a wedding at which the minister asked, "If there be anyone present who knows any just cause why this couple shall not lawfully be joined together, let him speak now or forever hold his peace," and someone actually spoke up:

Well, I have. It was at my wedding. When the minister spoke those words, my father, who was terribly nervous and is slightly hard of hearing, stepped forward and in a clear, strong voice said, "I DO!"

Poor darling thought the minister had asked, "Who gives this woman in marriage?"

I knew my father had been rehearsing that "I do" for weeks, so I quietly said, "Not now, Daddy . . ." But it was too late; the church was already rocking with laughter. Sign me . . . BLUSHING BRIDE.

DEAR ABBY: Four girls who work in an insurance office complained that they sometimes ran out of work to do, but their boss doesn't permit them to manicure their fingernails, do needlepoint or read magazine. They have to LOOK busy.

They asked, "What should we do?" And you, Dear Abby, the very paragon of honesty, suggested that if they like their jobs, they should keep "looking" busy.

That's not like you, Abby, and it's not honest.

There are always extra things to do around an office. You should have advised the secretaries to find such work and honestly do it.

Why didn't you?—CLERGYMAN READER.

DEAR READER: Because the secretaries insisted that there was absolutely no work for them to do. But you make a good point, which didn't occur to me until several readers suggested that the girls obtain permission to do typing for charitable organizations.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for your column on fire prevention. A friend told me that when she had a fire, she was in such a panic when she called the fire department that she couldn't remember her OWN address. Now she keeps the number of the fire department and her own address near every phone. It is also vital for babysitters. — PALOS VERDES READER.

Fine Marriage Test —Buy Old Building

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Want to test your marriage? Buy an old building and renovate it.

"Literally thousands of decisions have to be made whenever a couple restores an old house and each decision is an opportunity for a fight," said Ronald Clem Labine. "Strong marriages will become stronger while weak marriages may crack and fall apart."

Labine's observations of the social scene were made from the expert height of editor and publisher of the Old-House Journal, a monthly newsletter offering "renovation and maintenance ideas for the antique house."

His own marriage has been strengthened since he and his wife Claire, a television producer-writer, became "brownstoners" eight years ago.

"Brownstoners" form a somewhat exclusive club in New York. They're purchasers, usually young-married couples, who buy three-storey home of brownstone or brick in rundown neighborhoods at a bargain price and then restore them.

The Labines have three children and their experience in renovating their Brooklyn home led Labine, 38, to quit his job as a market researcher for the McGraw-Hill publishing house in New York and inaugurate the journal.

Since then, he has built the circulation of the publication to 10,000 with subscribers in all 50 states, several hundred in Canada and six in England, including three copies which are sent to the library of the Royal Institute of British Architects in London.

Only about two per cent of circulation is in New York, largely among people who, like the Labines, have bought brownstones built about the turn of the century, Labin said.

Outside New York, the newsletter is read by anyone who has purchased an antique house and wants some tips about how to bring it back to some of its former glory.

Labine, a cheery, mustachoed man with thinning hair, said people have a tendency to do too much to old-houses.

"When a person buys an old house, we urge that, beyond making sure the plumbing works and the roof doesn't leak, you do nothing to it until you learn more about it."

One way to do that is to check with local historical societies or read about period history and design.

"You may find that the things you thought were added later were really original," he continued. "You enrich the experience by understanding your house. If you've got 100 years into the thing, why not learn about it?"

The Labines bought their home for $25,000, a bargain price for a well-built home, but he said he put another $2,000 into it in renovation, not counting the price of labor.

Nevertheless, he recommends buying an old home as an excellent way to beat high real estate prices.

"I feel that old houses in inner-city areas are the only bargains left in real estate today," he said. "And for persons who have a sense of adventure and creativity, renovation can be a positive and rewarding experience."

Welch Medical Report

By DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

The nationwide plague of overweight that makes fortunes for authors of weight-loss manuals and propels thousands of blubbery citizens into a seemingly endless procession of crash diets may well have its roots in the lavish way their mothers were fed during their pregnancy, in the feeding of babies in infancy and the physical changes during early childhood.

Attention to feeding habits and knowledge of the ways in which fat cells are laid down in the developing infant are beginning to suggest that it may become possible to predict which babies are going to become overweight adults and which ones will not be prone to obesity.

As things are now, there is too little firm evidence to be sure, but there are studies that cast serious doubt on gramdma's conviction that a fat baby in necessarily a healthy baby.

Dr. Charlotte Neumann, assistant professor of pediatrics at the University of California-Los Angeles School of Medicine, is concerned because she has found that more infants these days ae doubling thier birth weight in three or four months instead of five or six months, and she is afraid that they are not bigger and heavier but just fatter. She suspects the trouble is in the way they are fed.

Bottle-fed infants are doubling their weight in 113 days (3.6 months) as comapred with breast-fed infants, who reach their doubled weight in 124 days (4.0 months), which Dr. Neumann suspects is due to the ease with which a bottle-fed infant can be coaxed to take the last ounce of milk in the bottle.

If further study verifies her findings that babies are fatter because of changes in infant-feeding practices, she is concerned that these fat babies are goin to turn out to be fat grownups.

Among the contributing factors, in her view, is the tendency for fat cells to multiply and grow larger in the first few months of live in response to excessive calories.

Dr. Jerome Knittle, professor of pediatrics at the Mt. Sinai Medical School in New York, has repoted that it is not until a child is two years old that a tendency to obesity can be identified for sure.

After their second birthday, obese children appear to have attained adult levels for fat-cell size, and they continue to increase their fat stores by increasing the number of cells.

In children of normal weight, on the other hand, fat deposits do not begin to show an increas in fat-cell size and number until just before puberty and into adolenscenc.

The mechanism by which this difference takes place is not clear, but fürther study could make it possible for doctors to recognize the tendency to overweight before it actually develops and start preventive measures when they could really be effective.

A study of adults who were born in time of famine and starvation in Nazi-occupedied Netherlands during the last months of World War II suggest that what the mother eats during her pregnancy and how much the newborn child gets to eat can influence the incidenc of subsequent obesity.

One group of men who were exposed to famine during the last three months of their mother's pregnancy and during their first months of life after birth showed at age 19 a significantly lower obesity rate than a control group born in the liberated and well-fed part of the country. The laying down of fat cells was apparently limited because of the weak stimulus of lowered cloric intake.

Another group whose mothers had been exposed to famine in the first six months only of their pregnancies, with plenty of food available thereafter, showed a tendency to obesity that was nearly twice that of the control group. In this group it was felt that the food deprivation limited to six of the first 15 months of life was apparently not sufficiently prolonged to have a lasting depressant effect on the laying down of fat cells.

Sorting out the environmental and genetic factors, which determine who are destiend to be fat and who of us thin, is not an easy proposiiton, but facts are clearly there and many are beginning to emerge.

The 16-page "Big Little Book of Safe Winter Driving," published by the National Safety Council of the U.S.A., recommends that you arrange for a complete car tune-up before the cold weather sets in.

Because the battery is the heart of the motor, it needs regular care, particularly during the winter. Check fluid levels often. If you add water during freezing weather, be sure to drive your car a few miles afterwards to prevent freeze damage.

When you travel on snow-covered or icy roads, slow down gradually when you approach an intersection or a curve. Never jam on the brakes on a slippery surface or you will go into a skid. If this does happen, take your foot off the gas and steer in the direction in which the rear of your car is skidding.

If you get stuck in snow, try to get out with a rocking motion of the car. If your wheels are spinning, sprinkle sand or rock salt under the front wheels or carry pieces of carpeting with you to slip under the tires in case of need.

The booklet also stresses that the type and condition of your tires are of particular importance for safe winter driving. Even in winter, keep your tires inflated to the recommended pressure.

Oak Bay P◎C ELECTION CORNER

SCOTT WALLACE

As in two previous elections, this column has served as a means for me to speak to the electors in the Oak Bay (East Saanich) Riding, on issues, provincial and local.

Across the province, many voters are fearful of the NDP, and consider their only duty is to vote in whichever way will ensure the defeat of the NDP Government. We do not make our wisest decisons when driven by fear. thinking voters should take a long, hard look at ALL their options. It is not enough simply to defeat a bad government. Electors must choose carefully HOW they replace the NDP Government. It is too easy to play the numbers game and vote for the party which has the best numerical chance of defeating the government. If all voters follow this approach, the next legislature would comprise only NDP and Socreds. In subsequent elections, with only two choices, voters would sooner or later, ELECT AGAIN, another Socialist Government . . . the very thing THE MAJORITY OF BRITISH COLUMBIANS DO NOT WANT!

The P.C. Party has offered, in this campaign, a second non-socialist option to the voter. Our policies are positive, moderate and modern, articulated by a slate of excellent young candidates whose average age is less than forty.

The two main parties are far apart on the political spectrum and are bitterly opposed to each other. Such division and bitterness fosters extremism, which cannot but thwart the wishes of all of us to have reasonable debate in the legislature and constructive, progressive legislation.

If we are to have sound, stable government after Dec. 11, we must have a strong third voice of moderation in the Legislature.

In Oak Bay itself, I have tried hard over six years to represent the whole community and not to speak for special interest groups. Nor Have I opposed policies purely on Partisan or Ideological grounds. I have always tried to judge issues on their merits and on the basis of what is best for Oak Bay and the Province as a whole.

I have fought to preserve the unique residential quality of Oak Bay, by supporting policies designed to protect land from the ravages of short sighted subdivision and bad development.

Today the Developer interests still look greedily at Oak Bay as prime territory, hopeful that the climate of government opinion might shift from preservation, to exploitation of land. Our residential neighbourhoods, our fine parks and our excellent beaches must be preserved in this community.

In Oak Bay and in the Legislature, I have always tried to present a moderate, constructive and positive point of view. This is so essential these days, when society is in turmoil and the political scene is so sharply polarized.

My record of hard work and commitment on behalf of all the people of Oak Bay is there for the closest of scrutiny.

In seeking your support on Dec. 11th., I am renewing that simple, but vital commitment to represent every resident in the riding, and to continue to bring a strong voice of moderation and responsibility to your Legislature.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

There is nothing brilliant in either the bidding or play of today's deal. As a matter of fact, the bidding left much to be desired; and the play by the defenders was not what one would call good. But it does illustrate one important point in declarer's play: that in contrast to the game of chess, one never "resigns" in bridge, even if the contract appears to be absolutely impossible to fulfill.

The deal was sent to me by a corrrespondent in Berkeley, W. Va. I am quoting from his letter, verbatim. North-South vulnerable. North deals.

♥ A 8 7 5
♦ A 8 6
♣ Q 9 5 4 3

| WEST | EAST |
|---|---|
| ♠ 8 6 4 2 | ♠ Q J 10 9 7 5 |
| ♥ 9 4 3 | ♥ 10 |
| ♦ 7 4 3 | ♦ J 9 5 2 |
| ♣ K 6 2 | ♣ A 8 |

SOUTH
♥ K Q J 6 2
♦ K Q 10
♣ J 10 7

The bidding:

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♣ | 2 ♠ | 3 ♥ | 3 ♠ |
| 4 ♥ | Pass | 4 NT | 5 ♦ |
| Dbl. | Pass | 6 NT | Pass |
| Pass | Pass | | |

Opening lead: Two of ♠.

"The following is a hand that I played in a recent bridge tournament in Roanoke, Va. It makes the point of never giving up when you are in a hopeless contract.

"A spade was led and upon seeing the dummy, I was greatly disappointed. How can I bring in 12 tricks without losing two club tricks? Only one chance. Lead out the hearts, and East, with a doubleton ace of clubs, might discard a club, and West will run up with the king of clubs when I lead from my hand towards dummy's queen. So I played accordingly, and East did discard his eight of clubs. When I next led the jack of clubs, West did go up with the king, felling his partner's ace. So I made 6 NT."

To revert to the bidding, briefly. North did not have what one could call a sound opening bid, but his one-club opening was not really a heinous crime. East's two-spade overcall was, by partnership agreement, a "weak" bid showing a from-fair-to-decent six-card suit with not too much outside strength. West's raise to three spades was not justified; and his bid of five spades was simply horrendous.

North's double was made, presumably, to stop South from bidding anymore, but South, undaunted, chose to contract for a small slam (hoping that North had a good club suit).

West's putting up of the club king when South led the jack was an unthinking play, for if South had the A-J of clubs, he surely would have finessed against East's hopedfor king. Thus East rated to have the club ace — and West should have played a low club on South's lead of the club jack.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR

Wednesday, Dec. 10, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Low-key approach is best for now. Communication tangle will be corrected. You will get green light to proceed with new project. But don't force issues. What you need comes your way. What has been hidden from view will be revealed. Libra is in picture.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be ready to ask questions — and receive answers. Conversely, you can also expect to be a target for inquiries. Get basic information organized. Don't depend too much on friendship. Keep up with events that concern your occupation, ambitions, relationship with professional superior.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Study Taurus message for valuable hint. One "in command" wants you to assume more responsibility. Know it and respond accordingly. Aquarian, Piscean could be very much in picture. You will feel more secure. You will please older individual, possibly a parent.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): What seems obvious also is "slippery." Means take nothing for granted. For best results, be versatile. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Experiment. Go places, see people — be open to experience. Member of opposite sex pays meaningful compliment.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be willing to revise, review, to tear down for you, use of reconstruction. Involvement is featured. Emotions command — especially where opposite sex is concerned. Aquarius, Taurus, Scorpio persons figure prominently.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on ability to come to terms with one whose opinions clash with your own. Do so without abandoning principles. Rights, permissions are involved. Legal red tape could be part of picture. What appears to be a "lock" could actually be a "dissolving knot."

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22$: Light touch is best procedure. Be flexible, willing to listen. If receptive, someone could drop a pearl in your lap. Be kind to family member who wants to make amends for recent error. Harmony at home base is essential. Taurus is involved — so is another Libran.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Hold off on speculative investments. Neptune position makes you prey to wishful thinking where money is concerned. Someone approaches you in connection with a "secret" — or oil. Creativity surfaces. You will imprint your own style.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): What appears to be a setback could rebound in your favor. One in position of authority is intrigued, very willing to grant you any benefit of doubt. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure prominently. Be familiar with "bottom line." Means be aware of objective.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Finish assignment, project. Aries is in picture. Relative who is aggressive tests your principles. Stand tall. Refuse to be intimidated. Message, call, short trip — these could be on agenda. Idea needs times to "incubate."

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb. 18): New approach to money situations is indicated — and beneficial. Another Aquarian — and a Leo — could figure prominently. Friend in need may actually be one who is leaning, even whining. Don't fall for sob story!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): If you bow too deep, you could cause key person to despair of your sincerity. Be true to yourself — adhere to principles. In this way, you advance. If you defer to the tune of another, your motives will be questioned. Cycle is such that you land on your feet!

IF DEC. 10 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are frank, creative, independent, self-centered, egotistical and have an abundance of charm. Leo, Aquarius and Aries persons play important roles in your life. You have recently had some horrendous emotional experiences — you're on the way back. Money and marriage pictures brighter in 1976, with September an outstanding month.

When we save energy we fight inflation.

One solution to two problems.

Inflation is a priority problem. The Federal Government has introduced new legislation and appealed for individual restraint.

Energy is another urgent problem. Supplies are dwindling and costs are soaring.

Many of us overlook one important fact: energy conservation fights both dilemmas. Here's how the two problems come together in one solution.

(Reading time: 8 minutes)

On October 13, the Prime Minister spoke to the Canadian people. He said, in part, "We have come to expect that there is some magic by which we can have cheap and plentiful food, energy, housing and government services, together with an ever-improving standard of living.

"I am asking you to live by the fact that all Canadians must restrain their rising demands upon the nation's wealth, so that Canada as a whole will be able to live within her means. That is the only anti-inflation weapon which offers hope of permanent success."

All of us in the community—individuals, companies and governments—are grappling with inflation. We tend to think of energy as a separate problem. It's not.

Energy conservation saves you money.

This year the average Canadian family will spend about $1,000 directly on energy. Money for gasoline, heating fuel and electricity. And prices will undoubtedly go higher because new supplies are high cost.

But you're not helpless. Energy conservation will cut consumption and save you money—or at least help to offset rising prices. You'll have a little more cash to cope with other forms of inflation.

For example, setting the thermostat back 2 C° (4 F°) will save you $30 to $40 this winter. Better furnace servicing, while it costs a little, can cut as much as $100 from your fuel bill each year.

■ Insulation, weather-stripping and storm doors and windows involve an initial investment but can save 10% to 50% on your annual heating bill. That's probably between $30 and $200 a year.

■ Buying a compact car instead of a gas guzzler can save you $500 a year on gasoline. You'll probably also save on the lower purchase price, plus lower costs of maintenance, repairs and insurance.

■ Frequent tune-ups, slower highway driving, car pools and public transit all help.

■ Other measures: turning out lights, cooking efficiently, saving hot water, buying returnable bottles and avoiding throw-away products. They all save energy and money.

Energy conservation cuts business costs.

One of the reasons for the higher prices of most manufactured products and many services is the spiralling cost of energy. Think of all the times in the past year you've heard: "We've had to raise our prices to cover the higher energy costs."

For business, energy conservation is an excellent cost-cutting tool. It works to hold down the costs of such basic commodities as cement, steel and paper; such consumer goods as food, furniture and cars; services ranging from taxi fares to health care.

How much can business save?

Many companies have cut 5% to 15% from their energy bills simply by good housekeeping. New equipment and process changes, which require an initial investment, can save a good deal more—50% in some cases.

And of course all these savings should be passed along to the consumer.

That's fighting inflation!

Conservation cuts future capital costs.

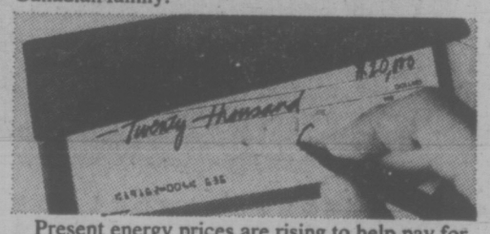
If we continue to gobble up energy at our present rate of increase we'll need many more pipelines, tar sands plants, electrical generating stations, powerlines, uranium and coal mines, gas and oil wells. The projected capital cost of these projects is at least $110 billion between now and 1985. That's an investment of about $20,000 for each Canadian family.



Present energy prices are rising to help pay for that investment and future prices will be even higher in order to carry and pay back the tremendous debts incurred.

This investment requires a doubling of the proportion of our national wealth which is allocated to energy development—from 3% of Gross National Product to almost 6%.

The key question is, where will the money come from? In a tight capital market it will have to come from money otherwise destined to finance schools, hospitals, business expansion and social programs. They may have to wait.

And what effect will such massive capital demands have on interest rates, foreign ownership, the value of the Canadian dollar and the balance of payments? The answers are worrisome.

How much of this projected capital investment can be eliminated by conservation? If we can lower the annual growth rate in energy consumption from 5.5% to 3.0%, then we can reduce our capital investment by 1/3. That's $7,000 per family. That's fighting inflation!

Where can the savings come from? Some examples: If we cut our annual growth rate of energy consumption by only 1/10 of 1% per year the energy saving in 1990 will be more than the total output of a tar sands plant at a current cost of $2 billion or five nuclear power stations at a current cost of about $5 billion. How could we do it? Simply by turning down all residential and commercial thermostats just 2½ C° (5 F°).

If we improve car mileage from the current 17.5 mpg average to 28 mpg in 1985, we'll save the equivalent output of two tar sands plants at a cost of at least $4 billion.

Yes, some conservation measures do call for an initial investment, but a modest one when compared with the energy saving. For example, a national program to reinsulate only the most inefficient houses would cost about $300 million —but the saving would amount to 10 million barrels of oil every year. That's ¼ of the output of a tar sands plant.

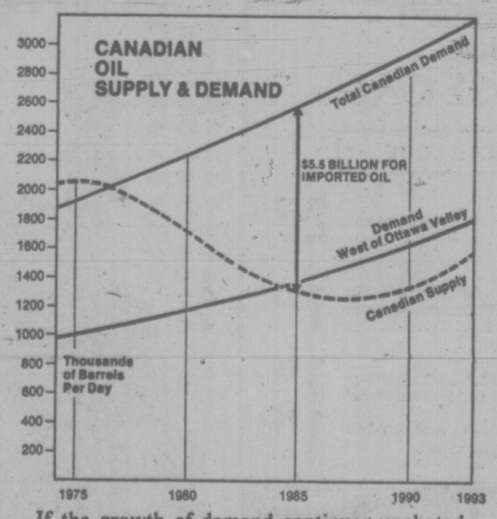
Conservation cuts the costs of imported oil.

Right now, the Atlantic provinces and Quebec use expensive oil imported from the OPEC nations. It costs about $12.50 a barrel and is subsidized by the Federal Government to bring the price down to the $8 per barrel paid by the rest of Canada for western oil.

That $4.50 per barrel is paid for by the tax on oil exported to the United States and by the 10¢ per gallon excise tax on gasoline used for non-business purposes.

But as our production of western oil declines in the years ahead, our exports will be cut back. We'll lose the revenue and tax on exported oil. We'll begin to build up a tremendous national debt—what the economists call "a balance of payments deficit"—for imported oil.



If the growth of demand continues unabated, by 1985 this deficit could be a staggering $5.5 billion per year in today's currency—that's $212 per person. That money is shipped out of the country. It doesn't work for our economy. It doesn't provide jobs or incomes for Canadians.

Here again, conservation can make a world of difference.

By saving oil (and electricity) in the Eastern provinces, we can reduce our need for imported oil. By saving oil in Ontario and the West, we can divert some of our western oil to Quebec (via the new Montreal pipeline) and further cut our need for imported oil.

Conservation cuts "energy costs."

Our growing energy appetite is forcing us to develop more remote and more "complex" sources of energy. Examples: the tar sands, nuclear power, distant hydroelectric sites, Arctic oil and gas.

Of course to find, extract, transport and process these sources of energy takes energy. In fact, we are expending more and more energy to make a unit of useful energy available.

With rising costs for energy inputs, we're spending more and more money for less and less energy.

The proportion of our national energy budget which is consumed by the energy industries has already doubled—from about 6% in 1957 to almost 12% in 1971.

By cutting demand we can lower future energy costs.

Energy conservation can be one solution to two problems.

We can all help.

In a sense we're fortunate. One solution can help solve our dual problems of inflation and energy. All of us—individuals, companies and governments—can play a major part and reap both immediate and future rewards.

Conservation can stretch our energy reserves, cut costs, reduce inflation, improve our environment and our way of life far into the future.

That's a powerful weapon.

Think about it.

ROLLING STONE

IT LOOKED LIKE the third encore was the last Paul Simon would do for the adoring Berkeley Community Theatre crowd. The house lights came on slowly, and the clapping and shouting had finally begun to subside. But then the lights dimmed, and Simon again shuffled into the spotlight — this time with Art Garfunkel. The momentarily stunned crowd roared its delight for two minutes as Paul and Art grinned sheepishly.

It was the second time that Garfunkel had joined Simon during his current tour; he had done several numbers with him the night before in L.A. But the pairing in Berkeley seemed special.

As Simon had mused on stage earlier, only 400 people had showed up for their first Bay Area gig in the same auditorium in 1966. What he didn't say was how crushed they had been, and that it was only the warm hospitality of critic Ralph Gleason that had made the night memorable.

Simon and Garfunkel sang Scarborough Fair and Old Friends. When the 3,500 in attendance stomped, clapped and yelled for more, they returned one last time — with Paul's 10-piece band — for The Boxer and My Little Town, tunes Paul had sung earlier. Somehow, they sounded a lot better with Artie around.

GLUNDER ROAD: Shortly before leaving the U.S. for a handful of European dates, Bruce Springsteen let it be known that he had had it up to his earring with Columbia's hype campaign. He told one reporter that the label's decision to hail him as the "future" of rock "was a very big mistake, and I would like to strangle the guy who thought that up."

So Bruce was not happy when he got to London's Hammersmith-Odeon theatre and found that Columbia publicists had beat him there.

He personally ripped off some of the "Finally the world is ready for Bruce Springsteen" posters that papered the lobby; he ordered that the boxes of "I have seen the future of rock 'n' roll at the Hammersmith-Odeon" buttons not be given out (Born to Run sneaker buttons were distributed instead).

Springsteen's pique seemed to carry to his performance. He hardly moved around on stage; guitarist Steve van Zandt. Zandt later said, "I've never seen him so subdued. But the typically reserved British audience could have been partly responsible, too. After an enthusiastic greeting, they remained cool towards Bruce until his high-energy finale and encores, when they finally got up on their feet.

The next day critics also snipped at Bruce's MESSIAH snipped at Bruce's Messiah buildup, though he got good reviews. Still, one British CBS executive thought Bruce could have tried harder, saying, "We were disappointed."

SUSAN FORD is a big Beach Boys fan, so it wasn't surprising to see her at a party lead singer Mike Love threw at a Washingtoon disco Nov. 18.

But the First Daughter's interest in Mike also seems to stem from Love's preoccupation with Transcendental Meditation. The two met about a year ago when Susan attended a lecture that Love, a TM teacher, gave at nearby Mount Vernon College. Since then, Love has visited Susan at the White House and supplied her with TM materials. Susan isn't a disciple yet, though; she's reportedly still looking into the discipline.

OUR DEBATE TOPIC for the week is health foods. Waving the banner for all the true organic children are Toni and Daryl Dragon—the Captain and Tennille—who contend that granola has kept them together. "I've always had a ton of energy," says Toni, "but I've truly found a difference since I changed my diet. I used to be dead tired after my ballet class, but now after class I feel I could dance all night."

Today, Toni and Daryl (who actually orchestrated their change in diet) lug around an old army ammunition chest full of juices, nuts, herbs, brown rice and a hot plate while touring.

Carillon Concerts

In addition to the regular Sunday afternoon carillon recitals performed on the Netherlands Centennial Carillon by provincial carillonneur Herman Bergink, there will be concerts every day, starting Thursday through to Boxing Day.

The concerts will be at 7 p.m. on weekdays and 3 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays.

There will also be a noon concert on New Year's Eve, a midnight concert at 11:45 p.m. ringing in the New Year and a noon concert on New Year's Day.

Guest carillonneur J. Bruce McKinnon will perform the concerts on Friday this week and Dec. 19.

Included in the programs will be carols of many nations.

New policies to put British Columbia to work.

Policies that will provide opportunity for all our people.

Jobs and the economy.

Economic growth is the key to reducing unemployment in this province. Confidence in government is essential to spark that growth.

Social Credit will open immediate discussions with our major industries, and urge them to move ahead. We will encourage expansion in the forest industry. We will encourage exploration and development in the petroleum industry. A Social Credit government will repeal the Mineral Royalties Act, replace it with fair and sensible legislation to create a go-ahead mining industry, with its many side benefits to dozens of small B.C. communities.

With industries moving forward, we will tax their profits, fairly, to achieve services for our people and special benefits for those who need assistance. With confidence in B.C. restored, investment dollars will flow back into the economy, new business will be attracted to our province.

Jobs for British Columbians – the number one priority of a Social Credit government.

Education.

Social Credit believes it is time to stop the experimenting in our schools and get back to the basics of learning. Time to challenge our youth with goals of excellence and pride in achievement.

Education is an extension of the learning processes which begin in the home. Social Credit will move control of education closer to the community, with local school boards, parents and teachers setting policies and standards which will prepare our students for the times ahead.

Housing.

Ninety-five percent of available land in B.C. is government owned. Social Credit will release more of this Crown land, through the municipalities, for low-cost, serviced lots that would be sold, not leased.

With land costs low, homes can be built that people can afford. To keep home-building costs down, Social Credit will remove the 5% tax from residential building materials. To assist families, there will be progressive increases in the Home Acquisition and Home Owner Grants.

Social Credit believes that every family in British Columbia has the right to own a home and the land under it. People should not be forced to become tenants of big landlords or of the state.

Senior citizens.

Our senior citizens have built this province. To help them continue to live in their own homes, a Social Credit government will eliminate property taxes on the homes of those 65 and over. It will also eliminate provincial income taxes for all those 65 and over, on incomes up to $5000.

Social Credit guarantees the continuance of Mincome and Pharmacare. And they will work better. Mincome increases will be pegged automatically to the cost of living.

A Social Credit Government will be committed to making B.C. the example to all Canada in benefits to its senior citizens.

Health services.

Social Credit priorities in health care will be for benefits to children and to senior citizens.

An immediate commitment will be the construction of community-care nursing units for those 65 and over. Pharmacare will be extended to include benefits for chronically ill children.

Social Credit policy will be to introduce a program of Denticare as soon as possible. However, the costly nature of this program makes its implementation dependent on a renewed and steady increase in the growth of the provincial economy.

Transportation.

Roads, highways, ferries – these are the "life lines" for people in the different regions of British Columbia. Social Credit is pledged to make these transportation links the most modern and efficient in Canada.

Immediate attention will be concentrated on our major highways and roads, which have fallen into disrepair under the present government. Making automobile travel safe is essential. A master plan for new highway construction will follow.

The frequency of B.C. Ferry sailings will be increased. Social Credit is determined to restore efficiency and high employee morale to the B.C. Ferry system.

Co-operation with regional governments and municipalities to provide public transit between urban centres will be assured by a Social Credit government.

Land use.

Social Credit is committed to the preservation of our productive farmland and will prohibit any non-agricultural use of it.

Social Credit will amend the Land Commission to permit full appeal procedures in public, not behind closed doors. It will establish a detailed appeal procedure so that residents in a municipality or regional district can speak out effectively when open space or greenbelt land is threatened by development and it is felt that local jurisdiction has ruled in error.

There are three reasons for this: One – a farmland preservation program cannot be totally administered from Victoria by people in city offices, far from the special concerns and wishes of agricultural communities. Two – urgent requirements for areas like the Saanich Peninsula, for example, may be entirely unsuitable for the Northern Interior. Three – there must be the right of appeal for farmland people.

Agriculture.

A Social Credit government will offer Crown-owned farmland for private ownership by Canadians. It will help establish young people in agriculture under conditions which insure the development of viable production units. It will honour all existing farm income assurance programs and contracts.

Continuing review of the aims and objectives of marketing boards to insure that they meet the best interests of the producer and consumer is a Social Credit policy.

End waste and mismanagement.

One of the prime issues of this election is the inability of the present government to manage public funds, whether it is running a company like ICBC, a welfare program or an education system.

The government spends your money. All governments must live within the taxpayer's ability to pay taxes. In the past three years, the cost of our provincial government has increased 128%.

Social Credit will trim waste and put an end to reckless overspending and losses in government departments and Crown corporations.

Individual opportunity versus big government.

What life will be in British Columbia in the future is a question of choices we must make now.

We can choose a life style which we create through individual opportunity or we can choose a life style which will be imposed on us by big government. Bill Bennett puts it this way: "Government should do things for people not to people."

The issue is clear. Either British Columbia will develop through individual initiative and a large measure of local control over community development, or it will sink into the "State knows best – State does best" philosophy of central government control of people.

The British Columbia Social Credit Party believes that the future of this province rests on the idea that people can be asked to take a great deal of responsibility for themselves and for the development and fulfillment of the communities in which they live.

On December 11th, your vote will decide whether the individual or the State will be the cornerstone of public policy in British Columbia.

Hoodlum's Squeaks with Death

MONTREAL (CP) — The bloody warfare between two rival Montreal underworld gangs was described Monday to the Quebec police commission inquiry into organized crime.

Pierre McSween said he narrowly escaped death several times during the year-long gang war between his family and the east-end Dubois family which left nine dead.

McSween testified that hostilities were sparked in August, 1974, when Real Lepine, a member of the McSween gang, was murdered for refusing to push "Dubois drugs".

It ended with the shooting deaths of four persons, including three bystanders, in the Feb. 14, 1975, "St. Valentine's Day massacre" at a south-shore hotel.

McSween told the inquiry he was in a taxi in the hotel parking lot on the night of the massacre when he saw Dubois gang members Roger Fontaine, Claude Dubeau and Claude Lebeau arrive.

"They weren't cool killers," he said, "They stood too far back and sprayed the place. Cool guys would have walked up to the table and put a bullet in the target's head, that way nobody else gets hit."

He said the target of the hotel shoting was Roger Letourneau, a former McSween gang member. But when the smoke settled, Letourneau and "three innocent bystanders" lay dead at the hands of the "unprofessional hired guns," he said.

McSween said the slayings were a takeover attempt by the nine-brother Dubois gang, which inquiry lawyer Jacques Dagenais described as "one of the most powerful groups in Montreal."

Mr. Dagenais said the gang literally controlled the city's east-central area with an army of about 200 men involved in such rackets as illicit drugs, extortion, protection, prostitution, armed robbery and murder.

Canned Pop Taken From Shelves

MONTREAL (CP) — Several brands of canned soft drinks marketed in Quebec and Ontario by Seven-Up Ltd. are being removed from grocery store shelves as a precautionary measure after tests revealed the drinks may contain an unacceptable level of lead, it was announced Monday.

The recall affects all cans of Welch's Grape Soda, Schweppes, Seven-Up and Diet Seven-Up, a company spokesman said.

Canned varieties of the affected products are marketed throughout Ontario and Quebec with the exception of the Hull-Ottawa area.

The action follows preliminary tests which indicate some of the drinks may contain a higher than permissible level of lead, apparently resulting from the solder used in the manufacture of the cans.

Company plants have ceased using the cans, manufactured by Crown Cork and Seal Co. Ltd., which has altered production of its cans to employ a solder eliminating the lead problem, a spokesman said.

CBS RIPPED-OFF BY HOFFA CLAIM

NEW YORK (UPI) — A man, claiming to know the whereabouts of the body of James Hoffa, took $10,000 of CBS news' money and disappeared without furnishing the network with the promised information, the New York Times said today.

According to the newspaper the man said his name was Chick Medlin, later identified by the FBI as an ex-convict who had been in Lewisburg prison when the former Teamster chieftain was there serving time for mail fraud and jury tampering.

The Times said Medlin persuaded freelance writer Patrick O'Keefe that he could lead him to the body of Hoffa who disappeared last July 30.

According to the Times, Medlin told O'Keefe that "Mr. Hoffa's body was encased in concrete, lying on the ocean floor in 12 feet of water two and a half miles off Key West."

After first making contact with a magazine, O'Keefe brought Medlin to CBS news where last Wednesday night Medlin was interviewed on tape by Morley Safer of the 60 Minutes program.

On the following day, the paper said. CBS agreed to pay O'Keefe $10,000 to lead a CBS news team to Hoffa's body.

"There was no direct contact with Medlin."

The CBS contract with O'Keefe contained a clause that $9,000 of the money would be paid only if Hoffa's body was found where Medlin said it was. Medlin was given the money in advance and he and O'Keefe flew to Florida.

At a Florida motel, Medlin convinced O'Keefe to let him hold the money, the Times said. At the motel they were joined by a young woman who Medlin claimed was his cousin.

According to O'Keefe, the young woman became angered at a suggestion made by Medlin and left.

"At about 4 a.m.," the Times said, according to O'Keefe, "Medlin said he was going to bring her back, and departed."

Medlin never came back. The Times, quoting a justice department source in Washington, said that the department believed that CBS had been "ripped off."

BUSINESSMAN FACES MAJOR DRUG COUNTS

A 30-year-old Salt Spring Island businessman facing two major narcotics charges was released from jail Monday with his own guarantee he will return to court for preliminary hearing March 31 and April 1 or forfeit $25,000.

Kenneth Harry Warder was arrested at 2:30 p.m. Friday when seven RCMP officers raided his residence on Garner Road, Ganges.

Warner appeared in Victoria provincial court Saturday when he was charged with possession of marijuana for the purposes of trafficking. On Monday he was charged with possession of cocaine for the purposes of trafficking.

Details of the charge and raid can not be made public as Judge D. K. McAdam placed a no-publication ban on court proceedings at the request of defence lawyer Peter Freeman.

Aussie Reporters Strike

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — One of Australia's major newspaper chains continued publishing today despite a strike by reporters protesting the group's editorial policies.

The reporters walked out Monday night, claiming the newspapers of News Limited, publisher of the Australian, the Daily Telegraph and the Daily Mirror, were biased against the Australian Labor party in the current election campaign.

A statement issued by the reporters said they were not arguing the publisher's right to "express his views in editorials, but against a very deliberate and blatant bias in the presentation of news."

The News Limited group is owned by Rupert Murdoch, who also has publishing interests in Britain and the United States.

A spokesman for News Limited denied there had been any bias in its reporting of the campaign for the Dec. 13 elections.

The 400 journalists who went on strike in Sydney, were followed by about 50 more in Melbourne and Canberra. All plan to say out until Wednesday, when they will meet to discuss their position. The election takes place Saturday.

Shredded Papers Sold for Bedding

OTTAWA (CP) — About 20 farmers in Eastern Ontario have purchased 2,000 bales of shredded newspaper to replace the beds of straw which livestock have been forced to eat because of a poor feed grain crop.

Ken Fox of Canada Balemart said Monday his company started selling the bales about a month ago after converting a corn shredder and hay baler into a newsprint shredder. The 50 lb. bales sell for $1.25 each, an equivalent-sized bale of straw sells in Victoria feed stores for about $3.25.

The company has been using leftovers from printing companies and plans to put large truck trailers at two shopping centres here to collect paper from people who like to see their garbage recycled, he said.

Thursday he intends to meet with a federal agriculture department official to discuss the results of a study on the effect of making newspaper 10 per cent of livestock feed.

Ottawa's physical environment department issued Monday a statement endorsing the scheme but Pollution Probe, which was originally involved, has said it will not make a decision on whether to endorse it until results of the study are made public.

TIMOR'S FATE SEALED

By KENNETH L. WHITING

JAKARTA (AP) — Portuguese Timor seems certain to become the 27th province of Indonesia.

Diplomatic and governmental sources here say no other practical path is open to the impoverished remnant of Lisbon's empire.

Indonesian troops seized Dili, the capital of Portuguese Timor, on Sunday in support of pro-Indonesian Timorese at war since August with a rival leftist faction called Fretilin.

Spokesmen for Fretilin, the Revolutionary Front for Independent East Timor, said in Australia their forces were withdrawing into the countryside to open guerrilla warfare. The mountainous island has few roads and is ideal for such combat, said a military attache in Jakarta.

Fretilin troops are believed to be well equipped with weapons and ammunition—abandoned Portuguese gear—but might face a food shortage. But Indonesian ships which landed the troops Sunday were reported patroling off the island today, leaving little prospect of reinforcements reaching the guerrillas.

The 8,000-square-mile territory's economy has been at a standstill for four months. Little rice was planted before the rainy season started in November because thousands of farmers fled to escape the fighting. This threatens a poor harvest of the diet staple in February-March even if Fretilin holds out until then.

With the exception of some pro-Fretilin voices in Australia, Indonesia has not been criticized by its closest neighbors for invading eastern Timor. Most appear to sympathize with Jakarta in its attempt to deal with the turmoil on the eastern half of Timor island created by Lisbon's preoccupation with unrest at home and in its former African colonies.

Indonesian Foreign Minister Adam Malik said that Indonesian troops will remain only until the 600,000 people in eastern Timor make "an act of free choice" on their future. Full independence, union with Indonesia and continued association with Portugal are the possibilities, he said.

Despite Malik's statement, diplomatic sources remain convinced that eastern Timor is destined to be absorbed by Indonesia.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Christmas is not far off and as usual more people are being charged with two kinds of offences—shoplifting and impaired driving.

On Monday in Victoria provincial court there were three of the former, and five of the latter, about average for this time of year.

For those charged with theft—all women—the penalties varied from a suspended sentence and six months probation for Dorothy Lam, 57, of 4144 Shelbourne, to a $150 fine for Helen Louise Hetherington, 22, of 991 Cloverdale, and to a $200 fine for Patricia Colleen Klugh, 30, of 929 Esquimalt, who pleaded guilty to four counts.

The penalties for impaired driving were stiffer, with one man Archibald Stewart, 29, of 1615 Belmont, being sent to jail for 14 days for his second conviction.

Fined $400 each by traffic Judge R. B. Allan were Laszlo Kecskemethy, 46, of 3557 Richmond, Anne Jean Warren, 55, of 857 Goldstream, and Arthur Stanley Pelan, 30, of 4286 Metchosin. Albert Alphonse Ramsay, 58, of 2034 Byron was fined $350. All were placed on six months probation, banned from driving for two months and ordered to attend the impaired drivers course.

A 17-year-old youth who fired a pellet gun at a girl was fined $250 when he appeared before Judge William Ostler for sentencing.

Martin Richard Mader of 1447 Hamley had pleaded guilty Nov. 25 to dangerous use of a firearm, the charge stemming from an incident Sept. 20 near Macdonald Park where a 14-year-old girl had been struck in the forehead with a pellet.

Ostler prohibited the youth from owning or possessing a firearm for 18 months.

Victoria police detective Fred Mills had asked the court to order forfeiture of the gun but Ostler said he could not do so because Mader was not the owner.

Anthony David Dennis, 23, of 1269 St. Patrick, was ordered to stand trial in higher court following a preliminary hearing into a charge of possession of heroin laid Sept. 2. Dennis is free on $500 bail.

Vote Wallace

In death there is often a rallying of strength before the inevitable occurs. This is what we are witnessing in the resurgence of Social Credit strength now— the rally before death. In view of this I would urge your readers to reconsider how they will vote. The fear of the socialist hordes, the plastic Socred advertising, may make many vote Socred and this will only prolong the death throes of Social Credit, and in effect prolong the reign of socialism.

This province does not need three free enterprise parties, two are sufficient. The PCs and Liberals will never die out because of their strong federal base, nor will the NDP. But the Socreds are already moribund federally and dead in Alberta. The B.C. Socreds need to die quickly and painlessly.

If, therefore, you have any intelligence, Oak Bay voters, re-elect your existing MLA, a man of proven intelligence, integrity, industry and concern for his constituents and don't be misled by the outpouring of Socred funds and the Socialist bogey. Allan Fotheringham recongizes how lucky you are to have Scott Wallace as your MLA, the students at UVic (who ought to be a radical bunch) recognize it, the Teamsters union recognizes it, the Liberal leader recognizes it, surely you recognize it and will use your secret ballot to vote Scott Wallace, despite the Socred card in your pocket. — C. A. Simpson, 2960 Surrey Road.

Middle Roaders

Few elections in B.C. history have been more cynically engineered; few have been more cynically contemplated by the public. Never have so many office-hungry aspirants sought to become candidates of parties they don't particularly care for; never have leading parties so flagrantly seized on any kind of candidate who seemed to promise a chance of winning them a seat. And never have more people toyed with the negative idea of voting for a party they don't particularly like, merely because it presents a hope of getting rid of a poor government rather than putting a good one in.

The former Social Credit regime went so far to one extreme that it inevitably fostered a socialist machine that is just as far at the opposite end of the political spectrum. Now the voters are confronted with a choice between two evils and are trying to pick the lesser disaster.

Bennett gave away our resources without adequate return to the people; Barrett gets a better return but then gives away the money. Either way, the taxpayers don't benefit very much.

The present election campaign has degenerated into a bargain basement sale, with the two main contenders promising goodies in all directions without regard to cost or desirability. Since one or other of them is likely to form the next government, the best response by thinking voters will be to put as many watch dogs into the legislature as possible, so that both the Socreds and the socialists will be under as much restraint and control as the public can exert.

This means that voters should choose the best of the Liberal or Conservative candidates in each riding and get him or her elected to provide a strong central nucleus to temper the far-out extremes of the Socreds and socialists.

The Barrett theme of "We know best because we're righteous", and the Bennett claim that "We ain't what we used to be" have an equally phoney ring. The next legislature will be a political shambles—and a costly one—if it is left to these two gangs without a solid bloc of middle-roaders to restore some sanity.— B. A. Tobin, 2661 Macdonald Drive.

Large Advertisements

I note that the private insurance companies operating in B.C. have joined the election campaign with a large advertisement outlining the shortcomings of the I.C.B.C. It always is a matter of great amazement to me that here is a group of businessmen who always claimed that they were losing money in handling automobile insurance should be so interested in getting back into such a market. It should be recalled that this same group spent some $60,000 to fight Autoplan when the matter was under consideration by the former Socred government.

In spite of the short-comings of I.C.B.C. and after all is there any enterprise as large as I.C.B.C. which acts without errors from inception? The voters of this province should take a good look at the rates prevailing in the provinces with Autoplan. I accept the fact that Autoplan is subsidized from general revenue. I pay $5 monthly for medicare but I do not believe that this amount covers the cost of the medical attention I receive. Are not those who consume liquor say in Terrace or Stewart being subsidized? — M. P. B. Wrixon, 1701 Cedar Hill Cross Road.

Bennett Meeting

I was quite disgusted at the spectacle and irresponsible behavior displayed at the Bennett gathering on Saturday evening — at first I thought it must be a children's party. As I approached from two blocks away, loudspeakers were blaring forth Christmas carols. From the gates to the door handouts were pressed upon me from every direction, and there before my eyes were all these grown men in straw hats (the businessmen of our town supporting Social Credit). They were waving banners and placards and wearing their gimmicky buttons like medals! There were even big yellow balloons to top it off. I cannot imagine how much the "parents" must have spent on this party. It was unbelievable that this was a sober, thinking electorate. It seemed that the organizers were trying to build up a mass hysteria in the crowd.

I went to the meeting with a fairly open mind to hear what Mr. Bennett had to say. It was well attended and I was not allowed in unless I wore a button. Husky "bouncers" moved among the crowd warning that there must be no heckling. There was one gentleman sitting on the side who did not rise as Mr. Bennett came down the aisle — no more would I have done unless I had been standing already, but he continued quietly reading his newspaper. A few moments after Mr. Bennett started speaking this man rose to heckle, and was unable to utter more than a few words before he was pushed down. Naturally he objected and two hefty ushers on the sidelines held him down, while another ugly bloke rushed down and delivered a vicious karate chop to the back of his neck. He was then dragged backwards from his seat and the three huskies removed him from the hall.

I have never seen behavior like this before and felt literally nauseated at witnessing such a scene. Is this the way to handle rebels or non-conformists? I have seen David Anderson welcome hecklers in a gentlemanly manner and come back with a wittier retort.

I am left with the impression that the Social Credit party feel they can win the votes by show and fanfare, while repressing the dissatisfied with violence.

Let's have the moderate, sane and responsible candidates in government. — Patricia Murray, 2775 Seaview Road.

NDP Policies

It should, I suppose, be no surprise to see much of the press and even television presentation present the election news with an NDP bias. After all, the Liberal party in Ottawa does not look with disfavor upon the NDP, as it does with the Socreds and Conservatives. Stemming from that, the media takes its policy, and the small "l" liberal tone of the Canadian media, for the most part, is maintained.

On one hand we see the intention of one party to turn this fair province of British Columbia into a controlled, socialized, welfare state, where government steps into all facets of the individual's life. On the other hand, we see the intention to try to retain our individualism, and our freedoms in the face of the awesome power of big government. Three years was not enough to implement the changes from corporate business to government control that the NDP has planned. Given another term of three to four years, it will be virtually impossible to rectify the chaos. All we have to do is look at the mess caused by union controlled government in Britain to see what the NDP is leading to.

This particular letter was prompted by the flood of letters to the editor in recent weeks from faithful NDP party members, who have been exorted to deluge the newspapers with their opinions. The NDP political strategists are very busy these days!

The Socreds have a good group of candidates and need every person's support to bring this about. — "Concerned Voter."

Worm Turns

Mr. Barrett is a great talker. So is Mr. Trudeau. Between the two of them they are talking us out of house and home. This worm is about to turn. On 11 Dec. — "THE WORM," alias R. R. Manning, R.R.3, Victoria

Clever Scheme

Item: In April 1974 the Social Credit official opposition unanimously voted against government rent controls. One of their number, Donald Phillips, spoke on the bill and pointed out that "in any jurisdiction where there have been rent controls within 10 or 15 years there are slums . . . In the long run all tenants will suffer." In December 1975 Lyle Kahl, Socred candidate for Esquimalt, runs a large newspaper ad in which it is emphasized that "Social Credit is pledged to maintain rent controls."

Item: In October 1973 Hugh Curtis stood in the legislature to cast his vote against the Farm Income Assurance Act. In December 1975 his newspaper advertisement reads: "It is our policy that income assurance plans within the agricultural community will not be altered . . ."

Item: In April 1973 the official opposition was apoplectic in its outrage as it filibustered day after lengthy day about the iniquity of a government that would interfere with people's property rights by instituting a land freeze. Yet in December 1975 the Curtis campaign literature pledges that a Social Credit government would keep the Land Commission and would "prohibit the non-agricultural use of farmland."

It is a curious spectacle. We have thousands of Liberals and Conservatives leaping shamelessly into bed with the Socreds while proclaiming that their principles remain intact, while Social Credit itself (the faithless rake) becomes more blatantly socialistic with every passing week of the campaign as it tries to steal the NDP's platform from under it without anyone noticing the clever scheme. The polarization is absolute in the political rhetoric, but where is the polarization in party policy? — Martin MacGregor-Greer, 901 Island Road.

NDP Write In

Do we want to continue with NDP's Socialist policies of continued takeovers of more companies and tie up business with more and more controls? All these controls effectuate lost business and higher unemployment rate. Our mining industry is a prime example. The irony of it all is that the backlash hits us the average working people it was meant to protect. We have to make up lost taxes which do not come from folded businesses or from unbuilt expansions. On top of that we have to pay millions for offices and people to administrate controls. In short, "as controls and paperwork goes up, our productivity falls down."

The accusations from Social Credit that the Crown Corporations are $160,000,000 down in losses can only be defended by opening the books. Why will David Barrett not open the books? Why does Dave refuse to appoint a neutral Auditor General? We, the public, has a right to know. An auditor general is another Social Credit promise, which is a refreshing wind blowing from them and a proof their thinking has changed with their new leadership.

As a former socialist preacher who voted NDP in the last election, I am pleading: "Let us stop the NDP socialism before we get into a complete European Socialist mess. So everybody, please HELP!!—John G. Jorgensen, 3417 Seymour Ave.

Confidence Restored

These are the facts. Social Credit, if elected, will not do away with Mincome, Pharmacare and the ambulance service.

With Social Credit many new jobs will be created by bringing back the mining and oil industries. Confidence will be restored to British Columbia and industry will return thus reducing unemployment.

British Columbia cannot afford to have socialism for another four or five years. — Mary Pearson, Sooke.

One Man Show

So much has been seen of Mr. Barrett during the election campaign, and so little of his party, that one gets the impression the slick eastern campaign managers want to sell chubby Dave and keep people's minds off the NDP and that party's candidates barely emerge into the open, preferring to hang on to the coat tails of their man to the end.

British Columbians are not voting for contestants on the rubber chicken and crack-a-joke circuit, they are about to elect candidates who, together, will govern this province. Is the one man act therefore to mean a one man show in the future? That's how many see it, what they see, they don't like. For here we have a man whose name and those of four other collegaues—Eileen Dailly, Alex Macdonald, Norm Levi, and Jim Lorimer — signed the infamous Waffle Manifesto.

So we have it clearly in front of all of us, the NDP as the socialist machine trying to soft-sell its way into office through one man who stripped of his comedy stands out clearly as an advocate of the Waffle Manifesto.

The NDP may offer you many things, but the price you will pay is State Socialism which will not only dictate how you will be governed, but how you will carry out your daily lives.—T. Floor, 2-3228 Wicklow.

Social Programs

Mr. Bennett not only tells us that he is going to keep the social programs of Mincome, Pharmacare and day care but that he is also going to improve them.

I ask you, how is this possible when he is going to cut revenue? Mr. Bennett claims that government doesn't belong in free enterprise and that he is going to sell the crown corporations for which he can find buyers. I would assume then that he is going to sell the British Columbia Petroleum Corporation which has shown profits of $155.8 million and the Cancel operations which have shown profits of $97.8 million. He also plans to drop the timber royalties back to the old Socred level. This would cut another $187 million out of the British Columbia budget. — Adrian A. Wilson, 4141 Tuxedo Drive.

Scare Tactics

The scare tactics being financed by the mining industry on behalf of the Social Credit are indeed deplorable.

The intense public relations campaign being waged against the Barrett government is an act which shows complete disregard for the well being of the people of this province.

Let us also remember that copper is not the only thing mined in this province, as they seem to indicate. We are fortunate to be sitting on one of the largest remaining coal deposits in the world. We do not want this to fall into the hands of the speculators. This is our coal. The people's coal, to be developed in an orderly manner, with regard to ecological considerations and concern for the environment to the benefit of all.

In 1973 Ben Ginter applied for membership in the NDP. Needless to say, for obvious reasons he was turned down.— G. Townsend, 927 Walker Street.

Curious Silence

Before I vote in this election I would like to know what has become of the N.D.P.'s "Emergency Act" with its "right to confiscate" and their "Financial competence act" where the Public Trustee can take over anybody's assets on the signature of just one doctor (not even a qualified psychiatrist). There has been a very curious silence on the subject lately and it worries me. — R. P. Martin, 670 Niagara.

Canadian Body Formed For Marine Engineers

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

For the first time in history Canada is to have its own national body of marine engineers.

The decision to form the Canadian Institute of Marine Engineers was made in Ottawa on the weekend.

Among those who attended the meeting was Eric Dawson of 121 Burnett, chairman of the Vancouver Island Branch, Canadian Divisional Council, of the Institute of Marine Engineers.

Dawson explained the decision to form a Canadian institute, which will still remain connected with the prestigious British-based IMG is the result of four years of discussion and planning.

The former naval captain, who retired as manager ship repair at CFB Esquimalt in August, 1974, says the need for a national entity is accelerated with the rapid expansion of shipping, generated by the development of Arctic resources.

Branch secretary, Lt.-Cmdr. Neil Sutherland, who is sea training engineer for the Pacific Command, says the new organization will more truly represent the marine industry.

He explained that the IMG's standards are geared more toward European requirements since Britain entered the Common Market and there is a real need for an organization that can set standards applicable to North American marine practices. As an example the British standards do not recognize graduates of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

There are close to 900 Canadian marine engineers in the IMG and Sutherland expects this to grow once the new Canadian organization is in being.

"Only engineers with first or second class certificates of competency can join under the British standards," he explained, "but many of the engineers on this coast, such as tug boat people, hold third class certificates and are excluded because of the British rules. We will be able to bring in more of the local practising engineers."

South Africa, India and Singapore are ahead of Canada in establishing their own national institutes.

Dawson, who is now a partner in a marine engineering consultant firm, foresees the Canadian institute playing a major role in the development of marine technology geared to Canadian needs.

The new organization will be designed so that general managers of shipyards, naval architects and other key personnel in the industry could become associate members.

DAWSON

"If we can have some input, engineers talking to managers on fairly even ground, this could lead to an increase in the general output of the shipyards," Sutherland agreed.

Dawson contends that the Canadian institute will also be able to produce a far more efficient set of standards for marine engineers, making them (engineers) interchangable.

"As an example, the ministry of transport sets all standards for marine engineers, except for the navy, which is exempt," he explained.

Shooting Witnesses Sought

Colwood RCMP are looking for anyone who might have heard the firing of six shots in rapid succession anywhere in the Greater Victoria area last Nov. 2 or 3.

Police issued the plea for information in connection with the investigation of Malcolm Preston Cunningham, 22, whose body was found riddled with bullets lying face down in the bushes in the Sooke Lake - Humpback Road area.

Of particular interest is information from Goldstream area residents, a police spokesman said today.

Sgt. Ed Kokoska, who heads the Colwood RCMP detective branch, said Cunningham was seen alive late the morning of Nov. 2 and his canary yellow truck was seen shortly before noon on Blanshard.

Kokoska indicated police believe Cunningham was not shot in the location where he was found.

The Victoria resident was shot several times in the back and neck and his partly decomposed body was spotted by a train crewsman riding atop a caboose Dec. 2.

Any information on the matter should be phoned to 478-9112 day or night.

MS Cases Rising

TOKYO (UPI) — Multiple sclerosis, a mysterious ailment that troubles North America and Northern Europe, is on the rise in two countries that previously saw little of it — Japan and South Africa.

That is the report of Japanese and South African neurologists, whose findings were published in the September edition of Britain's Journal of Neurology, Neurosurgery and Psychology.

Dr. Allan V. Bird, of the University of Witwatersrand in Johannesburg, and Dr. Ejiro Satoyoshi, of Toho University Medical School in Tokyo, have no explanation for the spread of MS. It was long believed to be mostly an ailment of white people in the colder parts of the United States, Canada and Northern Europe.

In some Northern European countries, the incidence is as high as 45 cases per 100,000 population.

Multiple sclerosis is a crippling disease of the nervous system. Bird said in an interview that nobody knows what causes it and nobody knows how to cure it.

"Dr. Satoyoshi and I haven't got the answers, but we think the emphasis on future research may shift. Geography may not be such an overriding factor as we may have been led to believe."

Bird said that in the three-year 1959-61 period, South Africa had only three confirmed MS cases, an average of one per year. In the four years from 1964-67 there were 26 confirmed MS cases, for an annual average of 6.5. The overall rate remains low — about six cases per 100,000 population.

Bird said the most baffling fact about MS in South Africa is that affects only white people. Although South Africa's blacks outnumber whites about four to one, there has never been a confirmed case in which a black was the victim.

Bird said that among black people in the United States, the incidence of MS is well below that of whites.

School Board Debates Testing 'The Basics'

A series of tests to assess student competency in the basic subjects—reading and writing—is being considered by the Greater Victoria school board.

The tests were suggested after Trustee Peter Bunn told the board Monday that "the writing is on the walls in letters four feet high that the public is dissatisified" with students' grasp of the basics.

"Let's ginger up the situation and put it all together," he said.

"I think the public is saying that before students do the ecology bit—the trips to Goldstream Park—they should be able to spell 'ecology'."

Board chairman Bill Ross said any district-wide examination of student competency would be an "over-reaction" to the problem. He added the tests should be drawn up by the school administration for use in schools on request.

His recommendation came after school officials said that less concentration was given the basics because the board, in former years, had instructed more emphasis be given to other curriculum subjects.

Walt Kitley, president of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association, said the inclusion of a variety of curriculum subjects "meant a greatly increased instruction load for teachers and decreased efficiency in handling the type of drill instruction necessary for high level skill performance."

The factors, he said, also resulted in a decrease in time available for the 3 Rs—reading, writing, and arithmetic.

Doreen Radcliffe, who heads primary instruction in schools, said new programs in the language arts have been initiated, but teachers want feedback on the success of the programs.

"We can't evaluate success because of a lack of testing."

Bunn replied: "All I hear is new, new, new. What the blazes is wrong with the old, old, old. Grammar hasn't changed that much. I don't understand, in something so basic, what's the difficulty?

"Someone slap me down," he said, and Mrs. Radcliffe jumped at the chance.

"May I?" she asked good-naturedly. "You can't blame the teachers, many would like to have more time for the basics."

The testing recommendation was approved by the instruction curriculum committee and will go before the board at the Dec. 15 meeting.

The family of the late Donald R. McArthur wish to express their sincere and grateful thanks to all their friends who so kindly helped them over their time of bereavement. They wish to thank especially the members of the Saanich ambulance crew; Constable MacDonald; Sister Elizabeth; the Rev. Wm. Lunny; Doctor Bapty and Dr. Duxbury; the Sands family and all who helped in anyway during the loss of a dear husband and father. Lois McArthur and family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

GRIFFIN — In loving memory of Ada Jane, who passed away December 9, 1974.
One year has passed since that sad day,
When one we loved was called away;
God took her home — it was His will;
Within our hearts she liveth still.
—Lovingly remembered by her family.

HALLEY — In loving memory of Captain William Ramsay Halley who passed away on December 9, 1969, —Amy.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
—WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS.

Leave Nothing to Chance

Bob and Mary planted their first vegetable garden last year. The results were so encouraging they decided to add a large coldframe so as to obtain fresh vegetables throughout the fall, winter, and early spring.

When asked how the plants in the frame had fared through the frost, snow, and heavy rain that followed, Bob replied "OK, I guess".

"Why are you guessing? Have you checked them?"

"Well, no. Its hardly been the kind of weather to be outside checking coldframes".

The lesson Bob will learn is that any plants being grown under artificial conditions, out of season, need more frequent checking during periods of so-called "bad" weather than at any other time.

This applies to plants in coldframes, cold greenhouses, and greenhouses with occasional heat to keep out frost.

The idea in using these structures is to provide out of season conditions and protection from the elements in order to maintain steady growth.

The gardener has to make sure conditions within the structure are suitable for this purpose, and this means checking three to four times a day whether it is frosty, raining, snowing, or brilliant sunshine.

The slightest change in weather is reflected in a change of conditions under the protective covering, and the gardener has to make sure that change does not affect the plants he is growing.

Many gardeners have given up in despair after their first attempt because they failed to realize that out-of-season crops cannot be sown, covered up and forgotten.

Ventilation of the structure is of prime importance, if only to relieve the high humidity which causes fungus diseases and rotting of stems and foliage.

The amount of ventilation must be adjusted to prevailing weather conditions, and often needs changing several times in 24 hours.

Vents in the greenhouse are left open a crack; coldframe covers are raised on blocks at each corner varying from one to two inches in thickness, or blocked open on one side away from the wind.

It is during the winter we realize why commercial coldframes are covered with loose glasses, that is glasses not hinged to the frame as most home gardeners prefer to construct them.

On frosty clear nights the frames are closed, and possibly covered with boards or mats. These super covers have to come off soon after daybreak, and ventilation increased when the sun strikes the frame, decreased through the afternoon, and covers closed down before the sun leaves the frame in order to gather a little extra warmth for the night.

Brilliant sunshine through glass can burn tender foliage, at the same time causing soft growth that can be severely damaged if temperature suddenly decreases as on a frosty night.

Unless the frame is built on a raised bed, or raised beds are used in the cold greenhouse, we have extra problems during periods of heavy rainfall such as we experienced at the beginning of December.

At that time the surrounding soil had water over the surface, and rose to the surface within the structures, making the beds too wet for normal plant growth. Prompt and careful ventilation was needed to correct this condition before the plants suffered.

The same frequent attention is necessary if the frame or greenhouse is used solely for the storage of plants or roots over winter. Ventilation is essential, and dormant roots suffer less damage from slight temperature changes provided they are not frosted. But they will not stand cold, clammy, wet conditions.

Suitable clothing for wet weather and cold weather is also essential to the successful operation of a frame or greenhouse over winter. With it one enjoys finding the plants and harvesting the crops.

STICK WITH DAVE, THERE IS no doubt
Barrett knows what it's all about
He did what others didn't dare
Like Mincome, Love and Pharmacare.
He lays it straight out on the line
And does his best for yours and mine.
He doesn't like a profiteer
And won't allow one to get near.
He doesn't switch and chop about
Changing parties like a lout.
The opportunists get around
But Dave stays with us, duty bound
We need a steady man like Dave
He works for people like a slave
To solve our problems find a cure,
He'll do it, too, you may be sure.
Now Billy's such a little boy
Daddy gave him a great big toy
To play with while Dad had a rest
But Bill will give away the west.
There's Hugh with money on his mind
Like the others of his kind.
Allen and Garde, there's Pat McGeer
And Sammy with his loud mouth sneer
So stick with Dave, He'll find a way
To ease the problems of today.
Just give him time and you will see
We can't do better — vote NDP.

Selective Price Checks For 200 Firms—Pepin

OTTAWA (CP) — Jean-Luc Pepin, chairman of the anti-inflation board, Monday announced plans to selectively monitor price increases put forward by about 200 of the country's leading companies.

Speaking on the CBC-TV program Newsmagazine, Pepin said details of the program will be released in a few days. The board is expected to introduce a program which will require these 200 companies to inform the board in advance of any price increases.

How long the board will require advance notice from the firms has not been decided, a source said.

The effect of the program would be to give the board advance knowledge of any proposed price increases and a head start on assessing the possible impact of the price hikes.

The anti-inflation board already has been in touch with these select companies which produce vital commodities and received substantial "corporate financial data from all of them" a board spokesman said.

The board also is monitoring thousands of other companies with more than 500 employees although the 200 select companies likely will be watched "more arduously," the spokesman said. Pepin also said the board will announce its wage guides for professionals by the end of the week.

The government's anti-inflation legislation now is before the Senate and, once given approval there, will only require royal assent before becoming law.

This could come by the end of the week, permitting the cabinet to issue regulations that will determine the details of how the selective wage and price controls are to be applied by the board.

Pepin said the board's mandate extends to all sectors of the economy, including government spending.

"If we feel the government is not doing its utmost to control its own spending, we will not hesitate to comment. That's our mandate," he said.

KISSINGER CITING 'WITHIN DAYS'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Repesentative Otis Pike, chairman of the House of Representatives intelligence committee, says he will ask the full House to cite State Secretary Henry Kissinger with contempt of Congress "in a couple of days" unless members of his committee tell him not to do so.

Pike filed a contempt resolution against Kissinger on Monday as Commerce Secretary Rogers Morton announced he has settled a similar dispute with a House subcommittee.

Baldaufs Want Licence Back

The operator of Alston Residence said today she is appealing government suspension of her licence last week because she wants to continue operating a special care home.

Seven of eight men, most of them suffering from mental illness, were escorted from the boarding home of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolf Bauldauf at 228 Edward last Friday and relocated by provincial mental health officials in other accommodation.

The move was the culmination of a dispute between the Baldaufs and the province over the $280 a month rate paid the operators for the care of the eight. The Baldaufs claimed they needed at least $405 a month, the rate paid other operators for similar patients.

A spokesman for the provincial licensing branch said rates are based on the programs offered people in care.

Mrs. Bauldauf said today two of the seven have been relocated at MacAndrew Lodge, where the operators will get the $405 a month rate.

She said she will be represented by counsel at an appeal hearing Thursday.

Earlier in the dispute Mrs. Baldauf said the government had refused to take her special care licence when she offered to give it up. Today she said she wants to keep the licence to offer certain kinds of special care.

Le Devoir Agreement Seen Near

MONTREAL (CP) — The French-language newspaper Le Devoir is expected to publish Thursday following an agreement in principle reached between 29 reporters and publisher Claude Ryan, say a union spokesman.

Terms of the agreement, reached Monday after a 24-hour bargaining session, will be made public tonight as reporters vote on the management offer.

Gerard Leblanc, spokesman for the reporters union affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions, said the union negotiating team was "very happy with Ryan's latest offer" and will recommend its acceptance.

The reporters went on strike Nov. 12 following several study sessions. Outstanding issues in the dispute were wages, job security, and a demand by reporters for greater control over news coverage policies.

Surgery Passes Tests

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The survival chances of persons with severe coronary artery disease rose dramatically after artery-bypass surgery as compared with those treated without surgery, a new study shows.

The report, released Monday, showed a 98-per-cent survival rate for 149 patients who underwent coronary-artery-bypass surgery between November, 1971, and October, 1974, at Veterans Administration Hospital here. The rate was the same for those studied after one, two and three years.

Dr. Daniel Ullyot, head of the study, said that in a comparison group of 47 patients treated without surgery the survival rate was 89 per cent after one year, 77 per cent after two years and down to 68 per cent after three.

Coronary-artery-bypass surgery, a technique developed seven years ago, consists of taking veins from the patient's own legs and grafting them to bypass the diseased heart vessels in order to improve blood supply to the heart.

Medical treatment involves using nitroglycerine to relieve pain and monitoring a patient's diet and lifestyle.

Lawyer Placed Ads

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lawyer Allan McDonell says he placed newspaper advertisements which urged the election of a New Democratic and a Social Credit candidate in the two-seat Vancouver-Centre riding, but he refused to identify the persons behind the action.

He is not part of the organization called "Vancouver Centre Constituents for Responsible Government" which sponsored the advertisement, he said.

The advertisement calling for the election of Mines Minister Gary Lauk and Social Credit candidate Herb Capozzi sparked a dispute last week with Lauk accusing Capozzi's supporters of running it, alleging that Capozzi was trying to appear to be an NDP candidate.

In reply, Capozzi suggested that Lauk himself placed the ad in an effort "to dump" running mate Emery Barnes.

Dance Workshops at 'Y'

Two interesting workshops will be presented at the YM and YWCA auditorium, 880 Courtney, this week.

Tuesday, from 7 to 8:30 p.m., Sherry Black will conduct a tap dance workshop. No previous experience is necessary but registrants should bring hard-soled shoes with heels.

A Mexican folklore workshop will be conducted by Lorelei Debelle on Wednesday from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Hard-heeled shoes are a necessity for this workshop but those taking it need have had no previous experience.

Ms. Debelle is a newcomer to this city. She has lived in Mexico City and studied ballet there and in Canada. She also studied for three years with the El Ballet Folkloric de Mexico and danced one year with the company.

Actively involved with Victoria Operatic Society and a choreographer for the current production of Oklahoma, Ms. Black has studied with Wayne Shaw, Bebe Eversfield and Florence Clough and has been a Smile Show dancer for four years.

The Boy Nobody Wanted

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — A 12-year-old English boy sent to Israel by his grandmother and rejected by his mother and stepfather upon arrival Monday, said he wanted to stay and enjoy the sunshine.

But airport sources said it appeared El Al airlines had little choice but to send the boy back to London.

They said he arrived at Ben Gurion airport Monday evening and was met by his stepfather, who gave him a one-way ticket back.

"I don't want this boy," the stepfather was said to have told El Al officials. "He's not mine and he doesn't interest me."

Witnesses said the stepfather stuffed a few Israeli pounds into the boy's shirt and said, "go buy yourself some ice cream and leave me alone."

The sources said the boy wandered about the terminal until after midnight, when a stewardess took him home. She said she asked the boy if she could take him to the airport Tuesday morning, but he answered, "I would like to stay a few days because it's sunny."

She said she then called his mother, who said, "It doesn't matter to me if he stays here, but not with me."

A message from El Al's London office said the grandmother told officials she was not ready to take the boy back and that he would have to go to an orphanage if he returned.

Israel radio said its newsroom was flooded by calls from people anxious to take the boy in, but it appeared he would have to return to Britain.

The names of the boy and his relatives were not released but authorities said he was not Jewish.

FREEDOM RIDE FIZZLES

KEARNY, Ariz. — Nick F. Cox galloped to freedom from the Arizona State Prison, but was recaptured today and will now be charged as a horse thief.

Cox, 30, who was serving 25 years to life for armed robbery, worked outside the walls caring for the prison's horses. On Friday, he climbed on one and rode away. The horse was later found in the desert several miles away.

Searchers tracked Cox into a thicket and found him early today hiding in a shed.

OAKLAND, Calif. — Timothy Turney, 14, in a coma for nine years, has died.

He was only five when struck by a hit-run driver Jan. 27, 1967, near his East Oakland home.

Timothy had known nothing since he was struck, doctors said. He suffered a severe injury to the brain stem and never recovered consciousness.

They said he continued to breath on his own and was not kept alive by machines. His parents moved to Alaska several years ago.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Police say the thief who robbed the city zoo may have trouble disposing of his loot—a poisonous gila monster.

The 18-inch-long black and orange reptile was stolen Monday.

The gila monster should not be handled with bare hands, a zoo official said.

"Indications are who took it knew what he was doing," a police spokesman said. "I don't know anybody who fences gila monsters."

B.C. Bucks the Trend As Jobless Rate Rises

Times News Service

OTTAWA — The unemployment rate in Canada remained at its 14-year high in November but British Columbia, and four other provinces, bucked the national trend and showed a decline in jobless figures, Statistics Canada reported today.

Across the country, unemployment nudged up to 7.3 per cent of the labor force from 7.2 per cent in October. In B.C. the rate dropped half of one percentage point to 8.1 per cent, still above the national average.

The number of workers without jobs across the country rose by 9,000 to 734,000 while the number of employed also climbed, by 15,000 to 9,388,000.

In the same month last year the unemployment rate was 5.5 per cent.

Young people remained the hardest-hit category as the unemployment rate for those 14 to 24 years of age climbed 0.4 to 13.3 per cent.

The rate for women 25 years of age and over climbed 0.8 to 4.5 per cent while for men in the same age group it dipped 0.2 to 5.0.

While the unemployment rate decreased in five provinces it rose in four.

Rates for the 10th province, Prince Edward Island, are not calculated because of its small population.

Among the increases, the sharpest jump was in New Brunswick, where the rate rose nine-tenths of one percentage point to 13.5 per cent, the second highest rate in the country.

The Newfoundland rate was 18.1 per cent, down from 19.6 per cent in October.

The jobless rate rose in Ontario to six per cent from 5.8 per cent in October, and was up in Quebec to 9.2 per cent from 9.1 per cent.

Alberta continued to have the country's lowest jobless rate at 2.9 per cent of the labor force, down from 3.4 per cent.

The Manitoba rate was 3.7 per cent, down from four per cent, and the Nova Scotia level declined one-tenth of one percentage point to 8.4 per cent.

MB Brass Pay Cut

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan-Bloedel Ltd. has ordered 10 per cent cuts in the salaries of its top executives and has delayed by six months the usual salary review of its other non-union employees," the president of the forest products company said Monday.

Denis Timmis said he had written all salaried employees to tell them of delays in increases and of the "serious losses" suffered by the company.

In the three months ended Sept. 30, MacMillan-Bloedel lost $32.6 million, bringing its nine-month financial position into a deficit of $12.8 million. Of the losses, $19.5 million, was caused by shipping difficulties.

Timmis said the salary cuts affect about 20 top executives.

In 1971, at a time of earlier profit reductions, MacMillan-Bloedel cut those executives' salaries over $50,000 by 10 per cent and those between $35,000 and $50,000 by 5 per cent.

In addition, this time directors' fees have been cut from $3,000 yearly to $1,500 and the $7,500 extra pay of the six directors on the executive committee has been reduced by 10 per cent.

Wholesale Prices Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Prices at the wholesale level continued to move generally higher during October — for a fifth successive month — and were well ahead of comparable year-earlier levels, Statistics Canada reported Monday.

The industry selling price index rose by one-half of one per cent in October and was 8.6 per cent above October, 1974. Pushing the index strongly higher were price rises of three pe cent by iron and steel mills, 1.1 per cent by smelters and refiners and 7.2 per cent by steel pipe and tube mills.

Food and beverage prices, a major influence on the index, also were up three-tenths of one per cent on average.

The general wholesale price index rose three-tenths of one per cent in October and was 5.1 per cent higher than in October a year ago. Out of eight major industry groups measured by this index, only vegetable and animal products and non-ferrous metals showed any price decline.

Both of the wholesale indexes have been rising steadily since June.

Barrett Demands Socred Apology

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Premier Barrett, holding his last election rally outside the Greater Vancouver area, demanded Monday night that the Social Credit party publicly apologize for seeking campaign funds from Americans who own property in British Columbia.

"I demand a public apology for this outrage," he told a cheering, capacity crowd of about 2,000 persons at a school gymnasium in Fort George riding.

Barrett, righting a sore throat as he heads into the final days of campaigning, read from a newspaper account of the fund-raising campaign and, with a flourish, threw the paper over his shoulder.

Mike Bond, Social Credit finance committee official in the neighboring riding of Omineca, said earlier Monday that 40 letters, soliciting money to help defeat Barrett's New Democratic Party government, were sent to Americans holding land in the riding.

The letters came to public attention because one was sent to Frank Kweesling, a Los Angeles lawyer who is uncle by marriage to Doug Kelly, who represented the riding for the NDP in the last legislature and who is seeking re-election.

Premier Barrett repeated his promise to bring in legislation, if re-elected, that would ban the sale of B.C. land to non-Canadians.

He said Social Credit "believes our land should be sold to anybody."

Barrett, who earlier in the campaign rapped Social Credit for spending money in the United States on campaign advertising, continued his attack on Washington State Senator Warren Magnusson.

"I don't want any senator making comments about what

Storm Hits Two Towns

PERTH, Australia — Cyclone Joan lashed two iron ore mining towns in northwestern Australia today with torrential rain and 155 mile per hour winds.

Cyclone Joan, which formed in the Timor Sea northnorthwest of Darwin a week ago, swept down the northwest coast of Australia before crossing inland Monday near the iron ore exporting town of Port Hedland, 1,050 miles north of Perth.

BIG SALE TIGHTENS B.C. TURKEY SUPPLY

VANCOUVER (CP) — Consumers in British Columbia may find a shortage of turkeys in the 14-to-16-pound range this Christmas because of an aggressive out-of-province sales campaign that worked too well.

Bill Ritchie, chairman of the B.C. Turkey Marketing Board said Monday that when the board was faced with a surplus of frozen turkey at the beginning of the year, it began to sell "very aggressively" to buyers from out of the province.

"Because of this, and because the 14-to-16-pound size is popular," said Ritchie, "there may be a shortage."

He said buyers in Alberta were particularly responsive to the sales campaign. Ritchie also said that about 80,000 pounds of turkey have been brought into the province in an attempt to counter any shortage.

Gunmen Reject Exchange

Times News Services

LONDON — Trapped Irish Republican Army gunmen rejected an offer of food in exchange for one of their hostages today, spurned a supply of water and disrupted their hot-line with police in an intensifying war of nerves on their third day under siege.

The police retaliated by cutting off electricity to the apartment living room where the gunmen were holding Mr. and Mrs. John Matthews. It left the three or four IRA gunmen without lights or television news of their ordeal. The apartment has heating.

There were fears that Britain's most wanted man, Michael Wilson, had escaped during the chase into the Matthews apartment last Saturday and was not inside as originally thought.

"We have not made much progress," a police commander said. "But I think they are gradually being worn down and will come out eventually."

The gunmen, without food for three days, refused an offer for a meal in exchange for the release of Mrs. Matthews, 53.

The IRA men also rejected an offer of more water — the first delivery was made Monday — and disconnected the hot-line when they did not want to speak.

PAIR SUSPENDED FOR USING FRENCH

QUEBEC (CP) — Two air traffic controllers at Montreal's Dorval International Airport have been suspended without pay for using French to issue air-traffic control instructions, the Quebec Air Workers Association said Monday.

The Quebec City-based association said one worker was suspended Saturday and a second earlier Monday.

The association, which represents 500 commercial aviation workers in the province, said it deplored the attitude of Maurice Pitre, regional director of the federal air traffic control service and Louis Desmarais, chief of the Dorval air traffic control centre for issuing the suspensions.

A spokesman for the association said other controllers may be suspended as a result of a federal ministry of transport decision limiting the use of French in air traffic control instructions to flights in certain lightly-travelled air corridors.

The association did not give the names of the suspended controllers and airport officials were not available to confirm the suspensions or their duration.

Postal Rate Hike On Foreign Print

OTTAWA (CP) — Postal rates for foreign-printed magazines and newspapers will increase sharply Jan. 1, the post office said Monday.

The higher rates will affect some 200 foreign-printed periodicals imported into the country for mailing to domestic subscribers and news dealers. Not hit by the increases are such foreign publications as Time magazine and Reader's Digest, which are printed within Canada and qualify for the same, lower mailing rates as Maclean's magazine and other Canadian periodicals, a post office official said.

The new rates are on a sliding scale, depending upon weight, and include increases to 3.5 cents from 2.5 cents for publications weighing two ounces or less and increase to 45 cents from 24 cents for publications weighing two to four pounds.

For example, the cost of mailing the U.S.-printed Newsweek magazine to Canadian subscribers will increase to nine cents from six cents Jan. 1. The heavier Playboy magazine will cost 17 cents instead of 10 cents to mail.

Publications printed in Canada are mailed at much lower bulk rates of five cents per pound with a minimum charge of two cents per periodical.

LAND FREEZE BIG ISSUE

The land freeze and back-to-work legislation are the two key issues in Nanaimo riding, where Agriculture and Finance Minister Dave Stupich is still considered the front-runner but slipping back toward the Socred candidate. Al Forrest assesses the situation on Page 5 in the last of eight reports on the Vancouver Island ridings.

SC Finale . . . Carnival Color, Evangelical Fervor

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

VANCOUVER—It wasn't a circus; it wasn't Billy Graham; and it wasn't Shmockey Night.

There was carnival color, evangelical fervor, and the dogged determination of sports fans—but the clue to the event was a long political speech.

There were stars—skating's Karen Magnussen, track's Harry Jerome and hockey's Babe Pratt—but they weren't performing.

Jack Brockman, the man behind Shmockey Night, organized Monday night's rally and the proceedings ran like clockwork with bands and spotlights synchronized to the minute.

Socred candidates in constituencies "from Merritt to the sea" were on hand, each with a delegation vying to be the loudest, most partisan and most faithful.

By far the largest rally of the provincial election campaign, it was billed as a night of entertainment and fun for Socred supporters who have worked hard for their election victory.

Only Thursday's election results will decide whether they have that victory, but there seemed no question in 12,000 minds Monday night.

At least 50 chartered buses were used to bring in supporters and the cavernous Coliseum began filling early. By starting time, the arena was alive with a warmth unusual for Socred meetings.

The walls were covered with posters and the air filled with thousands of waving placards as each delegation tried to outdo the other. The room was a mass of boater hats and every color of balloon.

Roosters, chickens and eggs marched around the room in triumph and procession (elaborately dressed Surrey delegates doing chicken-and-egg joke signs) and bands and cheerleading groups competed from all corners.

Bobby Hales' 16-piece ensemble hooked into the sound system and its jazzy numbers flowed from the foot of the stage into the darkened recesses of the Coliseum.

The grand effect was marred only slightly by a long white banner, hung from the rafters behind with the words: "Hang in there Lau baby," (Allan Lau being he Socred's troubled candidate in Vancouver Centre.)

Party president Peter Hyndman opened the speeches by urging the faithful to relax and enjoy the entertainment adding they "didn't want to compete with B.C.'s largest nightclub act which began in August 1972 . . . and closes in Vicoria Thursday to open in the Cave Friday night."

Radio sportscaster Al Davidson hosted the evening's lineup which began with his daugher singing night-club style favorites like Put a Little Love In Your Heart and Rock-a-bye Your Baby.

"We want plastic man," came a cry from a dark corner. But next on the agenda was folksongs and Christmas melodies from six beautiful young girls — The Blades of Grass, from North Vancouver.

Mr. Inkspot, Bill Kenny, wound up the musical show with more old goodies, like "...Sit Down and Write Myself a Letter" and "...Make Sure It's True When You Say You Love Me."

DESJARLAIS BACK IN JAIL

36-Hour Dash: One Year

Paul Joseph Desjarlais's brief, 36-hour taste of freedom has cost him another year in jail.

The burly 30-year-old former inmate of William Head institution appeared in Victoria provincial court this morning where he pleaded guilty to being unlawfully at large.

Desjarlais was discovered missing from the federal prison at William Head at 10:30 p.m. Saturday. On Sunday he held a Metchosin pair, April and Colin McKenna, captive for more than six hours, forcing them to drive him into the city. The next day shortly after 11 a.m. he was arrested near Chemainus as RCMP were investigating a report of a stolen vehicle.

Judge D. K. McAdam said the one-year sentence will have to be served first before Desjarlais serves the remaining portion of an eight-year sentence he was serving at the time of his escape.

Prosecutor Nick Lang noted that before Desjarlais fled the prison his earliest release date was Feb. 26, 1978.

The accused had also been charged with escape but the Crown withdrew the charge after Desjarlais pleaded guilty to being unlawfully at large, an offence which carries a maximum penalty of two years in jail.

In addition Desjarlais was charged with breaking into S. J. Peden, 2855 Quesnel, and possession of a stolen 1975 GMC mini motorhome.

He was remanded on both of those charges to Dec. 16 for election of trial method and plea.

Lang cited Desjarlais's criminal record which dated back to 1962 and included convictions for escape, breaking and entering, robbery, car theft, assault of a police officer and possession of a dangerous weapon.

Defence counsel said the accused told him "his emotions sometime get out of control of themselves . . . and he couldn't stand staying in prison any longer.

Housing Co-Op Proposal Too Lavish for Province

'Too expensive' for Central Mortgage

A housing co-operative's plans to build a 50-unit development on four and a half acres of provincially-owned land near Hillside Avenue are in jeopardy because the provincial housing department considers the concept to be too lavish and an under-use of scarce building land.

Ken Rayfuse, chairman of the Mount Stephen Housing Co-op, said today that after nearly two years of preparatory work and detailed planning the group learned Monday that it would probably not be given a lease on the land.

Officials in the housing department and the Victoria office of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation consider the scheme "too expensive," he said.

Rayfuse told a press conference this morning that CMHC officials appear ready to renegotiate the concept, but it would be futile to discuss financing until the housing department gives a firm commitment on the use of the property at Mount Stephen and Ryan, near the Bishop Cridge centre.

Rayfuse, a civil servant employed at the Provincial Museum, was careful not to make any charges of political interference, but he was strongly critical of the lack of guidance and encouragement by the department of Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson.

"If we had half the support from the department that Dunhill Development (the crown development agency) and the United Housing Foundation (a Vancouver-based group which has undetaken many co-op housing projects) receive, we could have had these units built months ago," he said.

Rayfuse said the association's only hope now is that it may be able to reopen discussions with the two levels of government by making substantial cuts in the size of the 32 biggest units.

The original design included nine four-bedroom units of 1,515 square feet and 14 three-bedroom units of 1,220 square feet. The group would offer to cut 120 square feet from each unit and also make other savings.

Rayfuse said the original construction cost of a three-bedroom unit would have been a little over $35,000, or $27 per square foot, compared with average costs of around $32 per square foot for other co-op housing developments.

He released copies of correspondence with the housing department and CMHC, including an Oct. 9 report from Neil Jackson, architectural adviser to the housing department.

This said in part: "Not only are the houses luxurious in area but the structural forms are complex and would be expensive. These are the kind of dwellings one might expect to be erected by people with far higher incomes than are listed in the brief submitted by the co-op group.

"The designs could certainly provide very attractive houses, but it would be possible to house 50 per cent more people at least for the same cost, with no difficulty."

Rayfuse said the group's proposed density of around 12 units to the acre was less than the co-op average of 16 units per acre, but the 20 families who were members felt it was "the absolute maximum we could see for our particular design."

He said they felt, strongly that the design should represent a departure from the "standard box" type of construction and layout usually found in such schemes.

For six weeks the members had met daily with their architect, Ken Tebbutt, to thrash out in the most meticulous detail their views on what form the housing should take.

The result was an approach which could be a model for similar housing developments in the province, he said. "We feel it's something unique and we're mighty proud of it."

Duplex Loans for Esquimalt

Extension of the provincial home conversion loan program to Esquimalt was announced today by Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson, bringing the applicable areas to three in Greater Victoria.

Nicolson last month designated Victoria and Oak Bay as eligible areas in which owners may apply for loans to create suites and duplexes to increase the housing supply.

In Esquimalt the municipality asked for designation only of its R2 residential zone, allowing for development up to duplex size. This area amounts to 419 acres in Esquimalt.

Up to 1,200 single family units may be enlarged under the program in Esquimalt, and an owner may apply for a loan of up to $12,000 for the first unit so created.

In the other two Greater Victoria areas property may be expanded beyond the first unit with funds of up to $6,000 per unit available through the program. Secondary loans will not be available in Esquimalt.

Nicholson directed further inquiries to department of housing building superintendent Ken Wright, at 838 Fort, 387-5391, and reiterated the advisability of municipalities, making application for designation rather than individuals.

'Bunch of Defeatists' Comment Gets Action

A one-liner spoken by an exasperated school trustee Monday night may have gained a minor victory of the exceptionally bright child in the Victoria school district.

Usually quiet spoken Trustee Janet Baird labelled her benchmates a "bunch of defeatists" when it became apparent there was little support for her motion on the above-average student.

She had urged that the administration conduct a survey to find out what is being done to stimulate and challenge the above-average student.

But the discussion indicated trustees were not too happy about the motion, arguing about the definition of "above-average" and the costs and benefits of surveys.

Baird said the school district "is not doing a particularly good job" for the above-average child and urged the board to set priorities for the exceptional students.

"But first I'd like to find out what is going on in the district.

"Quite often the exceptionally bright child has been turned off because of lack of challenge. We should do a survey and get the results as a first step."

"A survey is impossible," countered Trustee Dr. Mark Fisher.

He said Baird's motion was a "motherhood statement" and "we'd all like to help . . . but how in God's name do you survey them — in terms of the class average or what?"

Countered Baird: "It's an area we're not even addressing ourselves to. We've done it with other exceptional children (the handicapped) and at the moment I don't think these (above-average) students are getting a fair shake.

When school board assistant superintendent Dr. John Wiens was called into the discussion, he said "the board can't expect a survey to give definitive answers."

But he agreed the survey might be a step in the right direction and Baird's motion won the general support of the board.

Chairman Bill Ross said the problem is funding. New programs for the exceptionally bright student would likely be a major expense.

"In the end it will probably mean money at a time when the board is reducing staff and library facilities need book replenishing."

A more basic question would be to try and develop a better working relationship with teachers in the field to give more assistance to the exceptional student.

The motion will be further discussed at the next board meeting, Dec. 15.

No Irregularity—Deputy

Allegations of irregularity in a senior appointment for the education department have been dismissed by the deputy minister.

In a brief statement Monday deputy minister Jack Fleming said he and a member of the Public Service Commission had investigated the charges made last week by Ken Warren, of Sooke School District administration, concerning methods of filling the post of director of special education in the division of integrated and supportive services.

The allegations had been "fully investigated by me and the public service commissioner involved and we are completely satisfied that this appointment is being made in accordance with regulations laid down by the Public Service Commission," Fleming said.

"As for the specific charges made by Mr. Warren against two members of the department and one consultant to the department, I have been advised that the individuals involved have instituted legal action."

A writ was issued Monday in B.C. Supreme Court to Kenneth Russell Warren, Stuart Underhill, publisher of the Times and Times Publishers Limited, claiming a libel against Frances Louise Fleming, assistant superintendent of the special education branch of the provincial department of education.

Mrs. Fleming's claim against Warren is for damages for libel and-or malicious falsehood contained in a typewritten letter dated Nov. 30 from Warren to Premier Dave Barrett, and seeks an injunction against Warren to restrain him from speaking, writing or circulating any further information on the matter.

The claim against Underhill and the Times is for damages and-or malicious falsehood contained in an article headed "School Allegations Probed" printed in the Times on page 49 Dec. 5. An injunction against further publication on this matter by the Times is also sought.

TOWN TALK

Mrs. Marjorie Jenvey, of 2807 Gosworth Road (near the Hillside Shopping Centre) realized almost every woman's fantasy last weekend. She found a mink . . . by the garbage can!

This one, though, wasn't ready to wear.

Said Mrs. Jenvey: "I was taking some garbage out and I'd just lifted the lid when I saw this little thing by the can.

"He seemed quite friendly so I patted him and he put his front paws on my leg. Then I picked him up and carried him into the house. My husband just about had a fit."

Minkie, as she's named him, is obviously thoroughly domesticated so she's trying to trace his previous owner through radio found ads.

Meanwhile, he's made himself right at home, snuggling up for the night in a box on the sundeck and eagerly gobbling up tasty scraps including raw meat off soup bones.

Mrs. Jenvey said she even raided the freezer for minnows which her husband Frank uses for fishing bait. Her furry guest "hides them in odd corners," she said.

If no one comes along to claim him, however, she could end up with a mink for Christmas.

For the uninitiated, "polled" has another meaning besides that relating to elections. When applied to cattle, it means hornless.

Perhaps the message symbolizes that B.C. voters are on the horns of a dilemma? Or that we're a pretty bovine lot?

He took time out from his work as an independent prospector, a dying breed in B.C. today, to write to the Times to say thanks for helping him get where he is.

Lemay became a familiar face this summer to anyone walking by the Legislative Buildings. He sat on the buildings' lawn for almost a month, protesting delays in the awarding of a prospector's assistance grant.

After several Times stories, Lemay got his grant and headed out to the old Franklin Mining Camp, 40 miles north of Grand Forks. He's been there since September, prospecting for copper and tungsten and doing just fine.

He sends his thanks to the Times, to the Salvation Army which gave him room and board and to the French Canadian Social Cultural Club which offered moral support during his protest.

Course Marking Rapped

A "very real problem" facing universities is widespread skepticism and lack of confidence about the adequacy and purpose of course-marking procedures, a special University of Victoria report says.

Prepared by the UVic academic standards committee the report urges "scrupulous scrutiny" of marking procedures.

Recommendations of the report, to be considered Wednesday by UVic senate, include:

—a thorough long-term examination of marking procedures with a deadline of January 1978;

—that each faculty be allowed to appoint a divisional marking review committee that could recommend raising or lowering of grading and techniques in the interim period.

—that any instructor, whose marking comes to the attention of the committee, shall have opportunity to convey his own views of the matter;

—that department chairmen make every effort to review grades "that strike him as irregular . . . or inequitable and any subsequent action be told the senate before release of marks;

—that senate review these procedures two years after implementation.

"It soon becomes clear," the report says, "that what is needed is nothing less than a well-articled and carefully reasoned educational philosophy for the contemporary university."

Headed by committee chairman David L. Jeffrey, the group was instructed to make recommendations after concern was initially expressed about the number of students who received exceptionally high marks in some courses.

Balsam Ban Still Applies

The ban on cutting balsam for Christmas trees or transporting the trees or branches to other parts of the province is still in effect, the B.C. Forest Service said today.

An official said the reason for the ban is to control an insect — the balsam wool aphid — which has caused extensive damage to trees.

"So far the pest has been contained in a small area of the Lower Mainland and the southeastern region of Vancouver Island," he said. "Its spread could threaten thousands of acres of timber in the interior and along the Island coastline."

National Jobless Up, B.C. Bucks the Trend

Times News Service

OTTAWA — The unemployment rate in Canada remained at its 14-year high in November but British Columbia, and four other provinces, bucked the national trend and showed a decline in jobless figures, Statistics Canada reported today.

Across the country, unemployment nudged up to 7.3 per cent of the labor force from 7.2 per cent in October. In B.C. the rate dropped half of one percentage point to 8.1 per cent, still above the national average.

The number of workers without jobs across the country rose by 9,000 to 734,000 while the number of employed also climbed, by 15,000 to 9,388,000.

In the same month last year the unemployment rate was 5.5 per cent.

Young people remained the hardest-hit category as the unemployment rate for those 14 to 24 years of age climbed 0.4 to 13.3 per cent.

The rate for women 25 years of age and over climbed 0.3 to 4.5 per cent while for men in the same age group it dipped 0.2 to 5.0.

While the unemployment rate decreased in five provinces it rose in four.

Among the increases, the sharpest jump was in New Brunswick, where the rate rose nine-tenths of one percentage point to 13.5 per cent, the second highest rate in the country.

The Newfoundland rate was 18.1 per cent, down from 19.6 per cent in October.

The jobless rate rose in Ontario to six per cent from 5.8 per cent in October, and was up in Quebec to 9.2 per cent from 9.1 per cent.

The Saskatchewan rate rose one-half of one percentage point to four per cent.

Alberta continued to have the country's lowest jobless rate at 2.9 per cent of the labor force, down from 3.4 per cent.

The Manitoba rate was 3.7 per cent, down from four per cent, and the Nova Scotia level declined one-tenth of one percentage point to 8.4 per cent.

MB Brass Pay Cut

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan-Bloedel Ltd. has ordered 10 per cent cuts in the salaries of its top executives and has delayed by six months the usual salary review of its other non-union employees, the president of the forest products company said Monday.

Denis Timmis said he had written all salaried employees to tell them of delays in increases and of the "serious losses" suffered by the company.

In the three months ended Sept. 30, MacMillan-Bloedel lost $32.6 million, bringing its nine-month financial position into a deficit of $12.8 million. Of the losses, $19.5 million, was caused by shipping difficulties.

Timmis said the salary cuts affect about 20 top executives.

In 1971, at a time of earlier profit reductions, MacMillan-Bloedel cut those executives' salaries over $50,000 by 10 per cent and those between $35,000 and $50,000 by 5 per cent.

In addition, this time directors' fees have been cut from $3,000 yearly to $1,500 and the $7,500 extra pay of the six directors on the executive committee has been reduced by 10 per cent.

Wholesale Prices Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Prices at the wholesale level continued to move generally higher during October — for a fifth successive month — and were well ahead of comparable year-earlier levels, Statistics Canada reported Monday.

The industry selling price index rose by one-half of one per cent in October and was 8.6 per cent above October, 1974. Pushing the index strongly higher were price rises of three per cent by iron and steel mills, 1.1 per cent by smelters and refiners and 7.2 per cent by steel pipe and tube mills.

Food and beverage prices, a major influence on the index, also were up three-tenths of one per cent on average.

The general wholesale price index rose three-tenths of one per cent in October and was 5.1 per cent higher than in October a year ago. Out of eight major industry groups measured by this index, only vegetable and animal products and non-ferrous metals showed any price decline.

Both of the wholesale indexes have been rising steadily since June.

Barrett Demands Socred Apology

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Premier Barrett, holding his last election rally outside the Greater Vancouver area, demanded Monday night that the Social Credit party publicly apologize for seeking campaign funds from Americans who own property in British Columbia.

"I demand a public apology for this outrage," he told a cheering, capacity crowd of about 2,000 persons at a school gymnasium in Fort George riding.

Barrett, fighting a sore throat as he heads into the final days of campaigning, read from a newspaper account of the fund-raising campaign and, with a flourish, threw the paper over his shoulder.

Mike Bond, Social Credit finance committee official in the neighboring riding of Omineca, said earlier Monday that 40 letters, soliciting money to help defeat Barrett's New Democratic Party government, were sent to Americans holding land in the riding.

The letters came to public attention because one was sent to Frank Kweesling, a Los Angeles lawyer who is uncle by marriage to Doug Kelly, who represented the riding for the NDP in the last legislature and who is seeking re-election.

Premier Barrett repeated his promise to bring in legislation, if re-elected, that would ban the sale of B.C. land to non-Canadians.

He said Social Credit "believes our land should be sold to anybody."

Barrett, who earlier in the campaign rapped Social Credit for spending money in the United States on campaign advertising, continued his attack on Washington State Senator Warren Magnusson.

"I don't want any senator making comments about what

BIG SALE TIGHTENS B.C. TURKEY SUPPLY

VANCOUVER (CP) — Consumers in British Columbia may find a shortage of turkeys in the 14-to-16-pound range this Christmas because of an aggressive out-of-province sales campaign that worked too well.

Bill Ritchie, chairman of the B.C. Turkey Marketing Board said Monday that when the board was faced with a surplus of frozen turkey at the beginning of the year, it began to sell "very aggressively" to buyers from out of the province.

"Because of this, and because the 14-to-16-pound size is popular," said Ritchie, "there may be a shortage."

He said buyers in Alberta were particularly responsive to the sales campaign. Ritchie also said that about 80,000 pounds of turkey have been brought into the province in an attempt to counter any shortage.

Gunmen Reject Exchange

Times News Services

LONDON — Trapped Irish Republican Army gunmen rejected an offer of food in exchange for one of their hostages today, spurned a supply of water and disrupted their hot-line with police in an intensifying war of nerves on their third day under siege.

The police retaliated by cutting off electricity to the apartment living room where the gunmen were holding Mr. and Mrs. John Matthews. It left the three or four IRA gunmen without lights or television news of their ordeal. The apartment has other heating.

There were fears that Britain's most wanted man, Michael Wilson, had escaped during the chase into the Matthews apartment last Saturday and was not inside as originally thought.

"We have not made much progress," a police commander said. "But I think they are gradually being worn down and will come out eventually."

The gunmen, without food for three days, refused an offer for a meal in exchange for the release of Mrs. Matthews, 53.

The IRA men also rejected an offer of more water — the first delivery was made Monday — and disconnected the hot-line when they did not want to speak.

PAIR SUSPENDED FOR USING FRENCH

QUEBEC (CP) — Two air traffic controllers at Montreal's Dorval International Airport have been suspended without pay for using French to issue air-traffic control instructions, the Quebec Air Workers Association said Monday.

The Quebec City-based association said one worker was suspended Saturday and a second earlier Monday.

The association, which represents 500 commercial aviation workers in the province, said it deplored the attitude of Maurice Pitre, regional director of the federal air traffic control service and Louis Desmarais, chief of the Dorval air traffic control centre for issuing the suspensions.

A spokesman for the association said other controllers may be suspended as a result of a federal ministry of transport decision limiting the use of French in air traffic control instructions to flights in certain lightly-travelled air corridors.

The association did not give the names of the suspended controllers and airport officials were not available to confirm the suspensions or their duration.

Postal Rate Hike On Foreign Print

OTTAWA (CP) — Postal rates for foreign-printed magazines and newspapers will increase sharply Jan. 1, the post office said Monday.

The higher rates will affect some 200 foreign-printed periodicals imported into the country for mailing to domestic subscribers and news dealers. Not hit by the increases are such foreign publications as Time magazine and Reader's Digest, which are printed within Canada and qualify for the same, lower mailing rates as Maclean's magazine and other Canadian periodicals, a post office official said.

The new rates are on a sliding scale, depending upon weight, and include increases to 3.5 cents from 2.5 cents for publications weighing two ounces or less and increase to 45 cents from 24 cents for publications weighing two to four pounds.

For example, the cost of mailing the U.S.-printed Newsweek magazine to Canadian subscribers will increase to nine cents from six cents Jan. 1. The heavier Playboy magazine will cost 17 cents instead of 10 cents to mail.

Publications printed in Canada are mailed at much lower bulk rates of five cents per pound with a minimum charge of two cents per periodical.

SC Finale . . . Carnival Color, Evangelical Fervor

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

VANCOUVER—It wasn't a circus; it wasn't Billy Graham; and it wasn't Shmockey Night.

There was carnival color, evangelical fervor, and the dogged determination of sports fans—but the clue to the event was a long political speech.

There were stars—skating's Karen Magnussen, track's Harry Jerome and hockey's Babe Pratt—but they weren't performing.

It was the Social Credit election finale. A happy, boisterous gathering of 12,000 confident supporters in Vancouver's Pacific Coliseum.

Jack Brockman, the man behind Shmockey Night, organized Monday night's rally and the proceedings ran like clockwork with bands and spotlights synchronized to the minute.

Socred candidates in constituencies "from Merritt to the sea" were on hand, each with a delegation vying to be the loudest, most partisan and most faithful.

By far the largest rally of the provincial election campaign, it was billed as a night of entertainment and fun for Socred supporters who have worked hard for their election victory.

Only Thursday's election results will decide whether they have that victory, but there seemed no question in 12,000 minds Monday night.

At least 50 chartered buses were used to bring in supporters and the cavernous Coliseum began filling early. By starting time, the arena was alive with a warmth unusual for Socred meetings.

The walls were covered with posters and the air filled with thousands of waving placards as each delegation tried to outdo the other. The room was a mass of boater hats and every color of balloon.

Roosters, chickens and eggs marched around the room in triumph and procession (elaborately dressed Surrey delegates doing chicken-and-egg joke signs) and bands and cheerleading groups competed from all corners.

Bobby Hales' 16-piece ensemble hooked into the sound system and its jazzy numbers flowed from the foot of the stage into the darkened recesses of the Coliseum.

The massive, blue-draped stage sported a simple sign: Social Credit—A Way to Work Together over a picture of a calm, smiling Bill Bennett.

The grand effect was marred only slightly by a long white banner, hung from the rafters behind with the words: "Hang in there Lau baby," (Allan Lau being the Socred's troubled candidate in Vancouver Centre.)

Party president Peter Hyndman opened the speeches by urging the faithful to relax and enjoy the entertainment adding they "didn't want to compete with B.C.'s largest nightclub act which began in August 1972 . . . and closes in Victoria Thursday to open in the Cave Friday night."

Radio sportscaster Al Davidson hosted the evening's line-up which began with his daugher singing night-club style favorites like Put a Little Love In Your Heart and Rock-a-bye Your Baby.

"We want plastic man," came a cry from a dark corner. But next on the agenda was folksongs and Christmas melodies from six beautiful young girls — The Blades of Grass, from North Vancouver.

Mr. Inkspot, Bill Kenny, wound up the musical show with more old goodies, like "...Sit Down and Write Myself a Letter" and "...Make Sure It's True When You Say You Love Me."

LAND FREEZE BIG ISSUE

The land freeze and back-to-work legislation are the two key issues in Nanaimo riding, where Agriculture and Finance Minister Dave Stupich is still considered the front-runner but slipping back toward the Socred candidate. Al Forrest assesses the situation on Page 5 in the last of eight reports on the Vancouver Island ridings.

Bennett's Big Vancouver Night

Then Lower Mainland candidates trooped out on the stage with the three sports heroes filling in as replacements for absentees.

Each introduction met with cheers from one section of the crowd, but the wildest, loudest of all came for "the giant-killer." George Kerster is challenging Premier Barrett in Coquitlam and the crowd went hysterical at the mention of Kerster's name.

On an earlier radio hot-line show Bennett predicted Kersler would win in Barrett's Coquitlam riding.

He said in an interview later that canvassing results from workers for Kerster show the premier trailing.

"I've never seen anything like it," Bennett said.

"The enthusiasm of those people is just unbelievable . . . their polls show they have Davy beaten."

BENNETT . . . addressing sea of faces at big Socred rally

The faithful almost raised the roof at the Coliseum when Bennett appeared, almost 90 minutes after the show began, and they continued to shout as he greeted the 30 candidates and kissed the two women on stage.

Bennett seemed happier and more bubbly than ever before in public, but he varied little from his regular speech he has been giving around the province.

He promised an ombudsman, an auditor-general, and greater rights for parents and boards of education.

He said the Socreds had no intention of abolishing social programs initiated by the NDP, or any other previous government and he pledged to extend those benefits when the economy improves.

Hecklers were few. Four young men who began to shout interjections were quickly surrounded by placard-toting supporters who tried to block their view and their voices. But it stayed relatively good-natured and Socred officials were quickly on hand to make sure there were no incidents.

Bennett said Socred candidates don't need help from people outside the province and said his party's campaign was not an "anti-campaign, a fear campaign or an anti-American campaign."

He talked about people from other parties who joined Social Credit and said they didn't join out of expediency or opportunism, but out of a courage which will become recognized on voting day.

The crowd grew a litte listless during the speech, but began cheering again when he talked about eliminating welfare abuse and repealing the Mineral Royalties Act.

He got them to their feet when he promised "to return the full treasury that the Barrett government inherited and the Barrett govennment destroyed."

"The weak link in the economy is the government and we'll change that on Thursday," Bennett said, concluding with the Socred theme "We can get B.C. moving again."

The wild ovation continued for several minutes until the band started up with The First Noel and Santa Claus appeared on stage to say farewell to the crowds.

is going on in politics in B.C.," said Barrett.

Magnusson last week accused the NDP government of gouging Americans by charging $1.60 a thousand cubic feet for natural gas.

Referring to a weekend incident where a heckler was roughed-up at a Social Credit rally in Victoria, Barrett said:

"All hecklers are welcome at my meetings. We don't have anyone to beat them up."

After scheduled appearances on three radio and television talk shows in Vancouver today, Barrett was scheduled to attend an evening rally in his home riding of Coquitlam.

Meanwhile, Progressive Conservative leader Scott Wallace made a surprise visit Monday to an all-candidates meeting in the Vancouver-Burrard and Vancouver-Point Grey ridings.

"Despite some of the elements that have been brought into this campaign, I've been proud of our candidates," Wallace told about 200 persons.

In an interview, Wallace said he is hopeful his party can take three seats, his own Oak Bay riding, Comox on Vancouver Island (held in the last legislature by Karen Sanford of the New Democratic Party, is seeking re-election), and Yale-Lillooet (held by Public Works Minister Bill Hartley, who is also seeking re-election).

"But I think my mind's telling me there's going to be a Social Credit sweep," Wallace said, "while my heart is saying they don't deserve it."

CALL FOR A PIZZA BROUGHT RELIEF

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — A customer telephoned a pizza parlor to place his order, but wound up getting this request: "Call the police."

"Sorry, sir, I can't fill your order," manager Robert Dunham told the customer. "I'm all tied up. But would you mind calling the police?"

Dunham reported a masked man carrying a revolver and rope stole $285 of the pizza parlor's money Sunday night and tied him to a chair.

He said he was able to scoot the chair near the telephone and waited for it to ring so he could relay his message for help.

Hostages Released By Moluccan Gunmen

AMSTERDAM (UPI) — South Moluccan gunmen released two sick hostages today and another man died of injuries suffered when he leaped from a window of the Indonesian consulate to avoid capture.

The developments came as new negotiations got underway in Holland's twin hostage drama that saw two terrorist bands still holding more than 50 persons in the consulate and in a train hijacked a week ago 75 miles north of Amsterdam.

A Dutch official announced the death in a hospital of Indonesian consulate clerk E. Abedy, 52, of injuries when he jumped from a third floor window as seven gunmen stormed into the building last Thursday.

He was the fourth person to die as a result of the seizure of the consulate and the capture of a train a week ago. Three other persons were killed in the train.

Both sets of gunmen said they staged the hostage captures to win Dutch support in their campaign to wrest South Moluccan independence from Indonesia. The islands — once part of the Dutch empire — were formerly known as the Spice Islands and some 40,000 former residents live in Holland.

the weather

The unsettled mild weather which has persisted over B.C. for the past few days will continue through Wednesday. A number of stations have reported record or near record temperatures for the date. Bands of rain will continue to move across extreme southern B.C. as disturbances move inland. Farther north mixed rain and snowshowers will be present along the coast with occasional snow inland. The cold Arctic air is expected to remain north of all regions.

Thanks for the memories.

Remember those stirring promises that heralded the coming of The Insurance Corporation of British Columbia? The promise that the "profits" made by ICBC would remain in the province? The boast that ICBC would be self-supporting? That subsidies would never be required?

That was before Autoplan actually got into operation ... and in less than two years these promises have dissolved into pipedreams.

Remember the $36 million deficit?

"This plan will stand as a beacon to the sound business management of the NDP." So said the Hon. Robert Strachan, the Minister responsible for ICBC, when he introduced Autoplan. The beacon has since faded fast. In its first year of operation, ICBC reported a deficit of $36 million. But remember that $36 million deficit figure. All the forecasts are that it will look good compared with what ICBC will drop in its second year.

And all the high hopes that Autoplan would never be subsidized? Just another pipedream. In June the government proposed that a subsidy of up to 10 cents a gallon on the gasoline tax could be used to support auto insurance. One way or the other, the taxpayer has to pay.

Remember the ICBC strike?

In May 1,800 employees of The Insurance Corporation of British Columbia went on strike. This strike lasted 15 weeks. There were an estimated 100,000 claims still awaiting settlement when the strike began. Another 100,000 new damage claims occurred during the strike itself. About 350,000 driver certificate renewals had to be ignored. The monopoly was immobilized for more than 100 days. If you were in an accident and wanted action —tough.

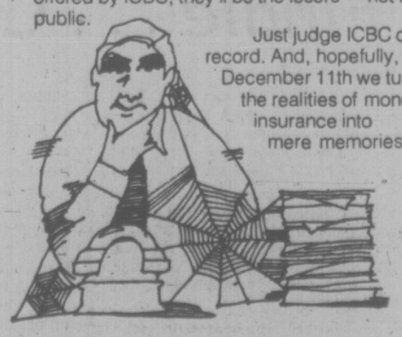
Remember the fun of dealing with a government bureaucracy?

The Insurance Corporation of B.C. spent $32 million on capital expenditures and another $19 million on start-up costs. Just to create another government bureaucracy.

And has it been fun dealing with yet another government monopoly? The feeling that you had to take or leave whatever was offered? The frustration that came with the realization that you had been robbed of the ultimate defence of consumers everywhere — the right to take your business elsewhere.

All the opposition parties in this election recognize that the public good will not be served if ICBC remains a monopoly. They all say Autoplan should have to compete with the private insurance companies. After all, if the private companies are inefficient or cannot match the service or rate offered by ICBC, they'll be the losers — not the public.



Just judge ICBC on its record. And, hopefully, on December 11th we turn the realities of monopoly insurance into mere memories.

TOWN TALK

Mrs. Marjorie Jenvey, of 2807 Gosworth Road (near the Hillside Shopping Centre) realized almost every woman's fantasy last weekend. She found a mink . . . by the garbage can!

This one, though, wasn't ready to wear.

Said Mrs. Jenvey: "I was taking some garbage out and I'd just lifted the lid when I saw this little thing by the can.

"He seemed quite friendly so I patted him and he put his front paws on my leg. Then I picked him up and carried him into the house. My husband just about had a fit."

Minkie, as she's named him, is obviously thoroughly domesticated so she's trying to trace his previous owner through radio found ads.

Meanwhile, he's made himself right at home, snuggling up for the night in a box on the sundeck and eagerly gobbling up tasty scraps including raw meat off soup bones.

Mrs. Jenvey said she even raided the freezer for minnows which her husband Frank uses for fishing bait. Her furry guest "hides them in odd corners," she said.

If no one comes along to claim him, however, she could end up with a mink for Christmas.

A cattle farmer on Kanganoo Road in Metchosin has neatly adapted his farm sign to include a political double entendre.

The sign normally reads Seabreeze Shorthorns (Polled), but after the last word the name Kahl has been added. Lyle Kahl, that is, the Social Credit candidate in the Esquimalt riding.

For the uninitiated, "polled" has another meaning besides that relating to elections. When applied to cattle, it means hornless.

Perhaps the message symbolizes that B.C. voters are on the horns of a dilemma? Or that we're a pretty bovine lot?

Still on the election theme — and what isn't, these days? — there's an example of positive thinking in the Victoria Social Credit campaign office on Douglas.

A small blackboard on which the party workers sign in each morning is cheerfully headed: "Only (blank) more days of socialism left," and today the number was down to two.

But if the confident forecast falls flat on its face and the socialist hordes storm the citadel again, probably to hold it for a minimum of three years, will the sign then read: "Only 1,100 days of socialism left?"

LEMAY
. . . thanks, folks

Camping in the snow at a height of 5,000 feet protected only by a tent may not be everyone's cup of tea, but John Lemay is happy.

He took time out from his work as an independent prospector, a dying breed in B.C. today, to write to the Times to say thanks for helping him get where he is.

Lemay became a familiar face this summer to anyone walking by the Legislative Buildings. He sat on the buildings' lawn for almost a month, protesting delays in the awarding of a prospector's assistance grant.

After several Times stories, Lemay got his grant and headed out to the old Franklin Mining Camp, 40 miles north of Grand Forks. He's been there since September, prospecting for copper and tungsten and doing just fine.

He sends his thanks to the Times, to the Salvation Army which gave him room and board and to the French Canadian Social Cultural Club which offered moral support during his protest.

The Big Banana, if anyone's interested, is now a big union banana.

A look through the list of union certifications granted by the B.C. Labor Relations Board in September reveals that The Big Banana Holding Ltd. of Victoria is now organized by the carpenters union.

Carpenters working at the Big Banana? What do they do? Carve bananas out of wood? Nail them to trees?

Carpenters' business agent Jim Sawyer says he too thought the name was a joke and a put-on until the owner of the company happened to pull out a cheque book and there it was in black and white — The Big Banana.

Actually the holding company was formed to build a Greek restaurant on Store Street near Sam Bawlf's renovation project.

Twenty-four year old Janina Fialkowski, a Canadian pianist at the outset of a promising international career, came to Victoria this week to give a private performance for the benefit of Mrs. Alex Gillespie, Oak Bay Manor.

Mrs. Gillespie is her grandmother who had been unable to attend Miss Fialkowski's enthusiastically received recital at Vancouver's Queen Elizabeth Playhouse on Sunday.

Montreal-born Fialkowski is a protege of 88-year-old Arthur Rubinstein, who has called her "a born Chopin interpreter."

Last year she was winner of a silver medal and prize at the first Rubinstein piano competition held in Israel. She is now a touring artist on the roster of New York's Sol Hurok agency and has given successful concerts in both Israel and Poland.

Monday she attended her first Victoria Symphony concert and expressed both surprise and pleasure in the calibre of the orchestra.

Course Marking Rapped

A "very real problem" facing univeristies is widespread skepticism and lack of confidence about the adequacy and purpose of course-marking procedures, a special University of Victoria report says.

Prepared by the UVic academic standards committee the report urges "scrupulous scrutiny" of marking procedures.

Recommendations of the report, to be considered Wednesday by UVic senate, include:

—a thorough long-term examination of marking procedures with a deadline of January 1978;

—that each faculty be allowed to appoint a divisional marking review committee that could recommend raising or lowering of grading and techniques in the interim period.

—that any instructor, whose marking comes to the attention of the committee, shall have opportunity to convey his own views of the matter;

—that department chairmen make every effort to review grades "that strike him as irregular . . . or inequitable and any subsequent action be told the senate before release of marks;

—that senate review these procedures two years after implementation.

"It soon becomes clear," the report says, "that what is needed is nothing less than a well-articled and carefully reasoned educational philosophy for the contemporary university."

Headed by committee chairman David L. Jeffrey, the group was instructed to make recommendations after concern was initially expressed about the number of students who received exceptionally high marks in some courses.

Woman Hurt

A Victoria police report said Mrs. Winifred Emery, who lives alone, fell at 4:30 a.m. landing on grass. The report said the accident occurred just over an hour after her return from the same hospital for treatment for an unspecified illness.

DESJARLAIS BACK IN JAIL

36-Hour Dash: One Year

Paul Joseph Desjarlais's brief, 36-hour taste of freedom has cost him another year in jail.

The burly 30-year-old former inmate of William Head institution appeared in Victoria provincial court this morning where he pleaded guilty to being unlawfully at large.

Desjarlais was discovered missing from the federal prison at William Head at 10:30 p.m. Saturday. On Sunday he held a Metchosin pair, April and Colin McKenna, captive for more than six hours, forcing them to drive him into the city. The next day shortly after 11 a.m. he was arrested near Chemainus as RCMP were investigating a report of a stolen vehicle.

Judge D. K. McAdam said the one-year sentence will have to be served first before Desjarlais serves the remaining portion of an eight-year sentence he was serving at the time of his escape.

Prosecutor Nick Lang noted that before Desjarlais fled the prison his earliest release date was Feb. 26, 1978.

The accused had also been charged with escape but the Crown withdrew the charge after Desjarlais pleaded guilty to being unlawfully at large, an offence which carries a maximum penalty of two years in jail.

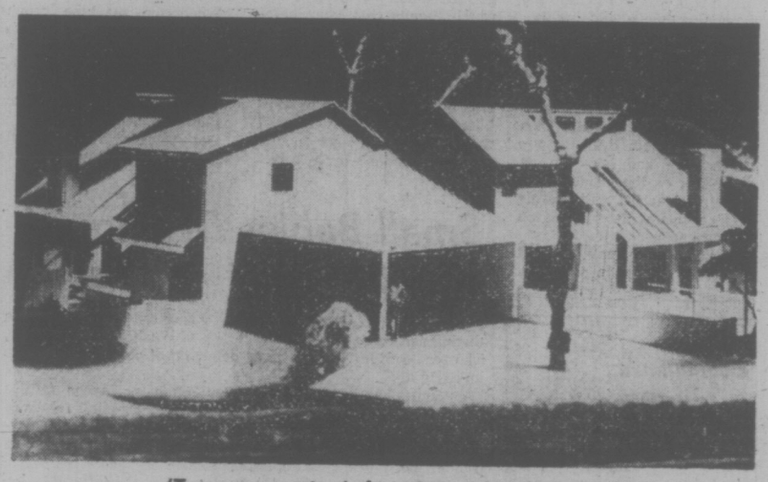
In addition Desjarlais was charged with breaking into S. J. Peden, 2855 Quesnel, and possession of a stolen 1975 GMC mini motorhome.

He was remanded on both of those charges to Dec. 16 for election of trial method and plea.

Lang cited Desjarlais's criminal record which dated back to 1962 and included convictions for escape, breaking and entering, robbery, car theft, assault of a police officer and possession of a dangerous weapon.

Defence counsel said the accused told him "his emotions sometime get out of control of themselves . . . and he couldn't stand staying in prison any longer."

Housing Co-Op Proposal Too Lavish for Province



'Too expensive' for Central Mortgage

A housing co-operative's plans to build a 50-unit development on four and a half acres of provincially-owned land near Hillside Avenue are in jeopardy because the provincial housing department considers the concept to be too lavish and an under-use of scarce building land.

Ken Rayfuse, chairman of the Mount Stephen Housing Co-op, said today that after nearly two years of preparatory work and detailed planning the group learned Monday that it would probably not be given a lease on the land.

Officials in the housing department and the Victoria office of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation consider the scheme "too expensive," he said.

Rayfuse told a press conference this morning that CMHC officials appear ready to renegotiate the concept, but it would be futile to disuss financing until the housing department gives a firm commitment on the use of the property at Mount Stephen and Ryan, near the Bishop Cridge centre.

Rayfuse, a civil servant employed at the Provincial Museum, was careful not to make any charges of political interference, but he was strongly critical of the lack of guidance and encouragement by the department of Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson.

"If we had half the support from the department that Dunhill Development (the Crown development agency) and the United Housing Foundation (a Vancouver-based group which has undertaken many co-op housing projects) receive, we could have had these units built months ago," he said.

Rayfuse said the association's only hope now is that it may be able to reopen discussions with the two levels of government by making substantial cuts in the size of the 32 biggest units.

The original design included nine four-bedroom units of 1,515 square feet and 14 three-bedroom units of 1,220 square feet. The group would offer to cut 120 square feet from each unit and also make other savings.

Rayfuse said the original construction cost of a three-bedroom unit would have been a little over $35,000, or $27 per square foot, compared with average costs of around $32 per square foot for other co-op housing developments.

He released copies of correspondence with the housing department and CMHC, including an Oct. 9 report from Neil Jackson, architectural adviser to the housing department.

This said in part: "Not only are the houses luxurious in area but the structural forms are complex and would be expensive. These are the kind of dwellings one might expect to be erected by people with far higher incomes than are listed in the brief submitted by the co-op group.

"The designs could certainly provide very attractive houses, but it would be possible to house 50 per cent more people at least for the same cost, with no difficulty."

Rayfuse said the group's proposed density of around 12 units to the acre was less than the co-op average of 16 units per acre, but the 20 families who were members felt it was "the absolute maximum we could see for our particular design."

He said they felt strongly that the design should represent a departure from the "standard box" type of construction and layout usually found in such schemes.

For six weeks the members had met daily with their architect, Ken Tebbutt, to thrash out in the most meticulous detail their views on what form the housing should take.

The result was an approach which could be a model for similar housing developments in the province, he said. "We feel it's something unique and we're mighty proud of it."

Duplex Loans for Esquimalt

Extension of the provincial home conversion loan program to Esquimalt was announced today by Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson, bringing the applicable areas to three in Greater Victoria.

Nicolson last month designated Victoria and Oak Bay as eligible areas in which owners may apply for loans to create suites and duplexes to increase the housing supply.

In Esquimalt the municipality asked for designation only of its R2 residential zone, allowing for development up to duplex size. This area amounts to 419 acres in Esquimalt.

Up to 1,200 single family units may be enlarged under the program in Esquimalt, and an owner may apply for a loan of up to $12,000 for the first unit so created.

In the other two Greater Victoria areas property may be expanded beyond the first unit with funds of up to $6,000 per unit available through the program. Secondary loans will not be available in Esquimalt.

Nicolson directed further inquiries to department of housing building superintendent Ken Wright, at 838 Fort, 387-5391, and reiterated the advisability of municipalities making application for designation rather than individuals.

'Bunch of Defeatists' Comment Gets Action

A one-liner spoken by an exasperated school trustee Monday night may have gained a minor victory for the exceptionally bright child in the Victoria school district.

Usually quiet spoken Trustee Janet Baird labelled her benchmates a "bunch of defeatists" when it became apparent there was little support for her motion on the above-average student.

She had urged that the administration conduct a survey to find out what is being done to stimulate and challenge the above-average student.

But the discussion indicated trustees were not too happy about the motion, arguing about the definition of "above-average" and the costs and benefits of surveys.

Baird said the school district "is not doing a particularly good job" for the above-average child and urged the board to set priorities for the exceptional students.

"But first I'd like to find out what is going on in the district.

"Quite often the exceptionally bright child has been turned off because of lack of challenge. We should do a survey and get the results as a first step."

"A survey is impossible," countered trustee Dr. Mark Fisher.

He said Baird's motion was a "motherhood statement" and "we'd all like to help . . . but how in God's name do you survey them — in terms of the class average or what?"

Countered Baird: "It's an area we're not even addressing ourselves to. We've done it with other exceptional children (the handicapped) and at the moment I don't think these (above-average) students are getting a fair shake.

When school board assistant superintendent Dr. John Wiens was called into the discussion, he said "the board can't expect a survey to give definitive answers."

But he agreed the survey might be a step in the right direction and Baird's motion won the general support of the board.

Chairman Bill Ross said the problem is funding. New programs for the exceptionally bright student would likely be a major expense.

"In the end it will probably mean money at a time when the board is reducing staff and library facilities need book replenishing."

A more basic question would be to try and develop a better working relationship with teachers in the field to give more assistance to the exceptional student.

The motion will be further discussed at the next board meeting, Dec. 15.

Balsam Ban Still Applies

The ban on cutting balsam for Christmas trees or transporting the trees or branches to other parts of the province is still in effect, the B.C. Forest Service said today.

An official said the reason for the ban is to control an insect — the balsam wool aphid — which has caused extensive damage to trees.

"So far the pest has been contained in a small area of the Lower Mainland and the southeastern region of Vancouver Island," he said. "Its spread could threaten thousands of acres of timber in the interior and along the Island coastline."

No Irregularity—Deputy

Allegations of irregularity in a senior appointment for the education department have been dismissed by the deputy minister.

In a brief statement Monday deputy minister Jack Fleming said he and a member of the Public Service Commission had investigated the charges made last week by Ken Warren, of Sooke School District administration, concerning methods of filling the post of director of special education in the division of integrated and supportive services.

The allegations had been "fully investigated by me and the public service commissioner involved and we are completely satisfied that this appointment is being made in accordance with regulations laid down by the Public Service Commission," Fleming said.

"As for the specific charges made by Mr. Warren against two members of the department and one consultant to the department, I have been advised that the individuals involved have instituted legal action."

A writ was issued Monday in B.C. Supreme Court to Kenneth Russell Warren, Stuart Underhill, publisher of the Times and Times Publishers Limited, claiming a libel against Frances Louise Fleming, assistant superintendent of the special education branch of the provincial department of education.

Mrs. Fleming's claim against Warren is for damages for libel and-or malicious falsehood contained in a typewritten letter dated Nov. 30 from Warren to Premier Dave Barrett, and seeks an injunction against Warren to restrain him from speaking, writing or circulating any further information on the matter.

The claim against Underhill and the Times is for damages and-or malicious falsehood contained in an article headed "School Allegations Probed" printed in the Times on page 49 Dec. 5. An injunction against further publication on this matter by the Times is also sought.
